GENERAL NOTE.

The L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, passed after the publication of Volumes I and II, materially affects so many passages in those volumes that it is impracticable to deal with these changes in the Addenda.

To meet this situation, the following summary of the general effect of the Act is given.

L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926 (summary).

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 13 and 20 (1) (ix). Estate owners subject to family charges.

Under s. 13 of the S. L. Act, a tenant for life was unable, as respects settled land, to convey or create a legal estate until a vesting instrument was executed. A "tenant for life" includes an absolute owner entitled subject to a family charge, etc.: ib., s. 20 (1) (ix). It should be noted that s. 13 only applies to "settled land"; hence if a tenant can terminate the settlement, e.g., by surrendering (see p. 869, infra) his life interest, a vesting instrument becomes unnecessary.

Now under s. 1 (1) of the Amending Act an absolute owner can convey his legal estate subject to a family charge, etc., as if the land had not been settled land. In such a case a vesting instrument can be dispensed with, if he contracts to deal with the legal estate subject to the charge.

A similar power is given to the "estate owner for the time being" by sub-s. (2) where the power conferred by sub-s. (1) or the limited power for a like purpose conferred on a tenant for life by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 16, has been exercised, or where before 1926 land has been conveyed to a purchaser for money's worth, subject to a family charge, etc., notwithstanding the S. L. Act, 1925, and where necessary by ruling out the instrument creating the charge, etc., as an instrument or one of the instruments creating a settlement. Thus, if a subsequent settlement is made, the estate owner thereunder (notwithstanding S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1), proviso, relating to compound settlements) can make a title subject to the charge in question, without treating the instrument creating it as one of the instruments constituting the settlement. Similarly, absolute owners, mortgagees, personal representatives and trustees for sale, being estate owners, can make a title subject to the charge in these special cases, as if the land was not settled.

The section does not prejudice the power to overreach the charge, whether conferred by the S. L. Act, 1925, or by virtue of a trust for sale or otherwise, nor is it intended to encourage the making of second-class titles. The object is to prevent an injustice being done to persons who have acquired these indifferent titles in the past and to authorise an absolute owner to raise money for his own benefit, subject to a family charge.

If the owner whose legal estate is affected by the charge dies testate, the S. L. Act trustees, if they do not renounce, can prove his will in regard to the "settled land": Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 22. But, whoever are the representatives, will have the option of making title either way. To deprive the estate owner of his option (e.g., by taking the case for all purposes out of the S. L. Act) is unnecessary and contrary to principle; he can always determine the settlement by creating an overreaching trust for sale. It would be unjustifiable to place an absolute owner in a worse position than a tenant in tail in possession, in regard to overreaching family charges.

The section is retrospective: s. 8 (2).

L. P. Act, 1925, s. 140 (2). Counter notices by agricultural tenants.

Section 2 of the Amending Act is explained in the last Chapter of this volume, and no further reference thereto is needed here. The section is retrospective: s. 8 (2).

Extended meaning of "trust corporation."

Section 3 extends the meaning of "trust corporation" to include:—

(a) The Treasury Solicitor and Official Solicitor.

(b) Any person holding any other official position prescribed by the Lord Chancellor.

(c) A trustee in bankruptcy and a trustee under a deed of arrangement with creditors.

(d) In relation to charitable, etc., trusts, when so prescribed or authorised to act by the Lord Chancellor:—

- (i) local and public authorities;
- (ii) corporations, acting without remuneration or not for profit.

The object is to authorise these bodies to accept trusts and give valid receipts though they could not properly be authorised to act as custodian trustees, see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xxviii).

The section is restrospective: s. 8 (2).

Registration under L. C. Act, priority

The object of s. 4 of the Amending Act, with the rules thereunder, is first to secure that registrations shall take effect in their proper order, and, secondly, to give a purchaser two days from the date of an official certificate of search within which he can complete in safety. Incidentally such certificates become essential documents of title, they will only be issued after the office is closed for registration, hence will include entries (including priority notices) made on the date of the certificate.

notices and certificates.

This object is secured by authorising an intended applicant to lodge a priority notice at least two days before the registration is to take effect. Then, if the application is presented within fourteen days and refers to the notice, the registration will take effect as if made when the charge or transaction is effected. Contemporaneous transactions will take effect, for registration purposes, in the proper order.

A purchaser, completing before the end of the second day, is not affected by entries made after the certificate, unless made pursuant to a priority notice registered before the certificate.

The section is not retrospective; the Act was passed on 16th June, 1926.

L. R. Act, 1925, s. 30.

Further advances pursuant to an obligation.

Section 5 of the Amending Act brings the law relating to further advances made pursuant to an obligation affecting registered land into line with L. P. Act, 1925, s. 94 (1) (c). The section is not retrospective.

S. L. Act, 1925, s. 13.

Improvement charges, orders absolute.

Section 6 appears to be a pious declaration of the existing law, for s. 13 of the S. L. Act, 1925, only applies to dispositions by a tenant for life or statutory owner. Presumably it was thought that, as orders vesting or creating a legal estate operate as if made by the estate owner (L. P. Act, 1925, s. 9), any doubt on this score ought to be removed.

Scheduled Amendments.

Operation of scheduled amendments.

The scheduled amendments are retrospective: s. 8 (2), but have effect without prejudice to any title acquired by a purchaser, or any registration effected before 16th June, 1926: s. 7.

Amendments of L. P. Act, 1922.

Sales of glebe land in consideration of a rentcharge.

Section 43 is left in force in regard to glebe land (S. L. Act, 1925, 5th Sch.), the amendment corrects a verbal error, it brings the section into line with S. L. Act, 1925, s. 39 (2).

Customs to demise without licence from the lord.

The amendment of para. 13 of Pt. II of the 13th Sch. confirms the construction placed on this paragraph in 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 81, 82.

Amendments of S. L. Act, 1925.

Trust for sale terminates a settlement.

If land becomes subject to an immediate binding trust for sale, whether or not there is power to postpone, the "settlement" can no longer subsist and the land ceases to be "settled land," see amendments of ss. 1 and 3, also amendment of L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2, and note thereto, infra.

Protection of purchaser without notice of operation of a cesser or shifting clause.

The object of the amendment of s. 13 is to protect a purchaser without notice that a cesser (name and arms) clause or a shifting clause had taken effect or that the life interest had been surrendered, see also s. 110 (2) (a). He might have had notice that there was a settlement, but he would not thereby know that there had been a change in the beneficial ownership.

S. L. Act trustees of compound settlements.

Under s. 31 the S. L. Act trustees of a prior instrument become the trustees of the instruments which are subsequent in date or operation. The amendment carries the matter further, for in default of trustees of a prior instrument, persons who are trustees of the instrument under which there is a tenant for life or statutory owner (whether by virtue of s. 31 or otherwise) will become the trustees of the compound settlement, until other trustees are appointed. This leaves it open for persons interested in prior family charges, if dissatisfied with the trustees, to apply to the Court under s. 34.

Re-entry on non-payment of a rentcharge.

The amendment of s. 39 brings L. P. Act, 1925, s. 121 or 122, into play. To insert a condition for re-entry on non-payment after 30 days was contrary to the practice.

Trust to hold capital money to devolve with settled land without a trust to invest in land.

Section 78 removes (see Re Walker [1908], 2 Ch. 705) the need for a trust to invest in the purchase of land in order that the money should devolve as land. The Act applies to settlements made before 1926: s. 119 (1) (a); it was not intended to affect the beneficial interests of a purchaser (see s. 118) acquired before 1926; this point is cleared up by the amendment.

Surrender of life interest to next remainder-man.

The words in s. 105 (1), which are repealed, were a legacy from a Bill prepared on different lines. The surrender might, e.g., be made to trustees for sale as the persons next entitled, they would not have the powers of a tenant for life under the S. L. Act, but under the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (as amended).

Protection of mortgagees of a portions term.

Though under S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 1 (6), on the execution of the vesting deed, legal portion terms are converted into equitable terms, it was not intended that the sub-term of a mortgagee (L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. VIII, para. 1) derived out of the portions term should be converted into an equitable interest. This is made clear by the amendment.

Amendments of L. P. Act, 1925.

All immediate trusts for sale may be made "overreaching."

Law of Property Act, 1925 s. 2 (2), as amended, reads as follows :—

"(2) Where the legal estate affected is subject to a trust for sale, then, if at the date of a conveyance made after the commencement of this Act under the trust for sale or the powers conferred on the trustees for sale, the trustees (whether original or substituted) are either—

(a) two or more individuals approved or appointed by the Court or the successors in office of the individuals so approved or appointed ; or any equitable interest or power having priority to the trust for sale shall, notwithstanding any stipulation to the contrary, be overreached by the conveyance, and shall, according to its priority, take effect as if created or arising by means of a primary trust affecting the proceeds of sale and the income of the land until sale."

Thus all immediate trusts for sale may become "overreaching" within the requirements laid down in Re Leighs S. E. (1926), W. N. 191 ; 70 Sol. J. 758, and see Articles : 70 Sol. J. 749, 769. Where there is a prior charge, the sub-section merely requires the subsequent approval of the trustees or the appointment of a trust corporation to act as trustee ; it is immaterial how the trust for sale itself was originally created.

It is not necessary, even where there is a prior charge, to comply with this requirement in all cases : see S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36 (2) ; L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV., para. 1 (3), as amended, see infra.

"Binding."

Not all equitable interests are overreachable : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (3). It is unnecessary to construe "binding" as meaning "overreaching" for the general purposes of the Acts, indeed it would make havoc of many provisions were such a restricted meaning placed on "trust for sale" ; a more natural meaning would be "effectual" or "irrevocable," see Re Goodall [1909], 1 Ch. 440. This construction is warranted by Ad. of E. Act, 1925, where the same definition (s. 55 (1) (xxvii)) is given of a "trust for sale," for in s. 39 (1) (ii) an "effective trust for sale" is obviously not considered as applying merely to an overreaching trust.

The effect of the amendment, as respects S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20 (1) (viii), taken with the amendments of ss. 1 and 3, supra, is to rule out the words " or until sale of the land " which, for practical purposes, become obsolete.

Fee simple subject to a right of entry.

The object of the amendment of s. 7 (1) is to secure that a fee simple in land affected by a rentcharge to which a right of entry (L. P. Act, 1925, s. 121) is annexed, shall nevertheless (ib., s. 1 (1) (a), 1st Sch., Pt. I) be treated as a " legal estate."

There can be only one legal right of entry affecting a fee simple, namely, a right annexed to a legal rentcharge: ib., s. 1 (2) (c). When an equitable right of entry, giving an absolute right to the land, takes effect, the estate owner of the land must make the conveyance required to give legal effect to it: ib., s. 3 (3).

Right of beneficiaries to be consulted.

Section 26 (3) as re-enacted only confers an equitable right to be consulted on the persons entitled to the income of land until sale, where the trust for sale is statutory.

Receipts by trustees for sale.

Section 27 (2) was re-enacted to remove the doubt whether, as respects trustees for sale, the restriction in regard to receipts of capital, applied to statutory trusts for sale, as well as those created by a " disposition."

Additional powers of trustees for sale.

Section 28 gives the S. L. Act powers to trustees for sale; under the amendment the additional powers conferred by a " settlement " become exercisable by the former S. L. Act trustees when they become (S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36; L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV., para. 1 (3)) trustees for sale.

Statutory trusts of the proceeds of sale.

The amendment of s. 35 makes it clear that where an undivided share was formerly " settled land " and the settlement remains on foot in regard to other property, the best method of " giving effect to the rights of the persons interested in the land " is to pay the proper proportion of the proceeds to the S. L. Act trustees.

Semble, the same principle might be properly applied if an undivided share had been subject to a separate trust for sale.

Beneficial owners holding on trust for sale.

The words added to s. 36 (2) are merely declaratory. There is nothing in the Act to prevent a sole beneficiary from dealing with his land in any manner recognised by the general law. It is true that under s. 23, for the protection of a purchaser a trust for sale continues " until the land has been conveyed to or under the direction of the persons interested in the proceeds of sale," but this recognises the right of a beneficiary to give directions. When a trustee also becomes sole beneficiary his dominion is complete.

Sales in lots by mortgagees at apportioned rents.

The amendment of s. 89 (6) renders unnecessary Form No. 11 in Vol. II, p. 75. Provided that the rent reserved by the lease is equitably apportioned for the purposes of the sale, the mortgagee can, under the statutory power, make a title to separate parts of the land comprised in the lease. As to the power for a mortgagee to apportion rents: ib., s. 190 (5).

Mortgages for securing future advances.

The words substituted in s. 94 (2) show that the mortgagee may rely on a search made at the time when the original mortgage was created, though the actual advance is made at a subsequent date.

Handing over deeds by a mortgagee.

The object of the amendment of s. 96 (2) is to enable a mortgagee, when paid off, to hand over the deeds without making a search: see ib., ss. 197, 198.

Purchaser's right to power of attorney, or a copy.

A purchaser, if he does not obtain the original power of attorney, will, under s. 125 (2) as amended, be entitled to a plain copy of the material parts, which he can, by applying to the Central Office, convert into an office copy.

Secret trust, protection of a purchaser.

A purchaser, without notice of a secret trust, will, if he deals with the trustee or mortgagees deriving title under the trustee (who produce the title deeds), get a good title though the legal estate may have been transferred to the beneficiaries by the vesting provisions: 1st Sch., Pt. II, as amended.

The Act does not transfer a legal estate held in trust for persons in undivided shares or as joint tenants: ib., s. 36, 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 3; also Pt. IV, para. 1 (1). In such cases the trustee becomes a trustee for sale; he can convey the legal estate to a purchaser. If the latter has no notice of the trust, the beneficiaries will not be able to sustain an objection that the receipt by a sole trustee for the purchase money is invalid: ib., s. 27 (2), as amended, for they were responsible for putting the trustee in a position to make title as if he were an absolute owner. The proper course, however, is to appoint an additional trustee, see pp. 479–83, infra.

Power to disclaim onerous term.

Where a right of redemption has been barred before 1926 and the former mortgagee only has a mortgage term vested in him, he or his representative can disclaim the term out of which the mortgage was created, before proceedings are commenced and before dealing with the head term, though it would otherwise be transferred to him by the vesting provisions: 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 7 (m).

Over-reaching powers of trustees for sale.

The amendment of 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (3), brings this sub-paragraph into line with s. 36 (2) of the S. L. Act, 1925, so that the persons who, on 31st December, 1925, were the S. L. Act trustees, become trustees for sale with power to overreach the limitations of the former "settlement."

Vesting on an appointment in place of the Public Trustee.

Where persons entitled to undivided shares in the proceeds appoint trustees in place of the Public Trustee, no vesting declaration (express or implied) is required, for the legal estate will vest by virtue of the Act: 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (4) (iii), amendment.

In the case of enfranchised land, fines and fees would have become payable had the legal estate passed by the appointment instead of by the Act.

Partition actions.

An order for partition or sale must be obtained within eighteen months from 1st January, 1926, to prevent the land vesting in trustees for sale: 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (10). There are many writs on record which have not been proceeded with.

Persons entitled to apply for stay of proceedings.

" One-half or upwards ": ib., para. 1 (11); this is in accordance with the original Bill and with the principle formerly adopted in the Partition Acts.

Legal rentcharges paramount to trust for sale.

" Legal rentcharges affecting the entirety " are placed on the same footing as tithe rentcharges: ib., para. 1 (12); they remain paramount to the trust for sale as do legal mortgages: ib., para. 1 (8).

Severance during lives only.

Where the severance only applies during the lives of the tenants for life, the entirety being otherwise settled to devolve together, a trust for sale becomes unnecessary: Pt. IV, para. 4 (new paragraph).

Where a settlement is made after 1925 the life interests should not be severed by the trust instrument unless a trust for sale is employed, but the tenants for life can make their own arrangements as to sharing the income.

Amendments of T. Act, 1925.

Trustees power to give receipts.

The amendment of s. 14 (2) (a) is to meet the point that the restriction did not apply where the trust for sale was created by statute.

Filing of powers of attorney.

A power of attorney executed outside the United Kingdom may be filed within ten days after its receipt here: s. 25 (4), amendment.

Liability for rents and covenants.

The amendment of s. 26 (1) corrects a clerical error and restores the original enactment.

Advertisements for claims.

An advertisement in a daily London newspaper is no longer essential if inserted in a newspaper circulating in the district in which the land is situated: s. 27 (1), amendment.

Amendments of L. C. Act, 1925.

Charge by way of indemnity.

The amendment of s. 10, Class C (iii), removes a doubt. For the class of charge which need not be registered, see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 77 (7).

Registration in Yorkshire.

The object of s. 10 (6), as amended, is to secure that the items in question shall be registered locally instead of at the Land Registry; formerly it was optional. The registrations effected in London will be sent to Yorkshire. This does not free a purchaser of Yorkshire land from the consequences which may arise if, in regard to other items, he does not obtain a certificate of search in London.

Local land charges.

The amendments of s. 15 were made to remove certain doubts which occurred in practice.

Amendment of Univ. & Coll. Estate Act, 1925.

Sales in consideration of a rentcharge.

The amendment of s. 3 corresponds with the amendment of S. L. Act, 1925, s. 39, supra.

AUTHORITIES ON THE ACTS.

The following cases, affecting the new Acts, have been reported or decided since Vol. I was published :—

L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (2). Howe v. Dartmouth (tenant for life and remainderman.)

The principle in Howe v. Earl of Dartmouth (1802), 7 Ves. 137a, no longer applies where leaseholds are held on trust for sale, with power to postpone, within L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (2) : Re Brooker (1926), W. N. 93 ; 70 Sol. J. 526. It never applied to a settlement by deed : Re Van Straubenzee [1901], 2 Ch. 779 ; cf., s. 32 (1). See also Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 33 (5) (intestacy, trust for sale).

L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 28 (2), 31 (2) (5) ; S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 83, 84, 102 (2) (b), (3), 3rd Sch. (Repairs payable out of income.)

Trustees for sale have the powers given by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 102, though the persons interested in the income until sale are not infants. Repairs (semble not being "improvements" within S. L. Act, 3rd Sch., payable out of capital), though relating to matters of a substantial or permanent nature, are payable out of income. The principle in Re Hotchkys (1886), 32 Ch. D. 408, 418, 420, is no longer applicable : Re Gray (1926), W. N. 279 ; 70 Sol. J. 1112.

L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (4). (Order in favour of tenant for life of proceeds.)

An order made before 1926 under S. L. Act, 1884, s. 7, giving certain powers to a tenant for life of the proceeds of sale remains "in force" and he can exercise the powers conferred in the names of the trustees for sale : Re Lady Francis Cecil (1926), W. N. 138.

L. P. Act, 1925, s. 84 (9). (Restrictive covenants.)

The Court, where it has no jurisdiction to give modified relief, will stay proceedings to restrain a breach of a restrictive covenant, to enable an application to be made to the authority : Feilden v. Byrne [1926], 1 Ch. 620.

L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (11) (i) and (iv). (Trustees for sale represent a share.)

At any rate for the purposes of Pt. IV., para. 1 (11), trustees for sale of an undivided share may be treated as sufficiently representing such share, apart from the persons beneficially interested : Darlington v. D. (1926), W. N. 192 ; 70 Sol. J. 775, also Art. ib., 769–70.

S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1) (v). (Family charge does not include an ecclesiastical rentcharge.)

A yearly pension to an incumbent, a charge for the repair of a chancel of a church, and a procuration or synodal payable to a bishop or archdeacon is not a family charge within S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1) (v) : Re Braby and Newman's Contracts, 17th June, 1926, Reg. Lib., 1926, B. 1009 (Ch. D.) ; but an annuity, given by will, which, under a power of appropriation, is charged on land, is a family charge and creates a settlement: Re Bird (1926), W. N. 296; 162 L. T. Jour. 341.

S. L. Act, 1925 s. 67. (Sale of heirlooms.)

Order made subject to bringing a scheme into Chambers for effecting the sale and to the payment of the purchase money to the trustees for investment: Re Lord Bateman's Settled Heirlooms, Times Newsp., 11th June, 1926; 70 Sol. J. 810.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 (1), 19 (1), 20 (1) (v) and (ix), 93. (Who are tenants for life. Effect of assignment of life interest and of conveyance of fee simple respectively.)

A "person of full age" may include a "company" for the purposes of the S. L. Act: Re Earl of Carnarvon's S. E. (1926), W. N. 242; and see 70 Sol. J., 901-2.

A contract for or assignment on sale of a life interest leaves the powers with the former tenant for life, though the purchaser may be a "tenant for the life of another" within s. 20: ib. (Re Chesterfield Estates).

But such a contract or assignment, made before 1926, of the fee simple subject to a family charge brings the purchaser within s. 20 (1) (ix); accordingly the purchaser has the powers of a tenant for life: ib. (Re Highclere Estates).

S. L. Act, 1925, s. 24. (Trustees to act in name of tenant for life.)

Where an application is made for leave for the S. L. Act trustees to exercise the powers, the tenant for life should either be made a party or his written consent should be strictly proved: Re Cecil's S. E. (1926), W. N. 262.

S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para 1. (Number of vesting instruments; capital money.)

Where convenient two or more vesting deeds may be executed for giving effect to a settlement, referring to different parcels: Re Clayton's S. E. [1926], Ch. 279; 95 L. J. Ch. 169.

No vesting instrument is required in relation to capital money: ib.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 (1), 22 (2), 108 (2), 109. (Additional powers; trustees' rights to capital money and investments.)

Additional powers conferred by all and each of the instruments creating a compound settlement are exercisable by a tenant for life, though, if wrongly exercised, they might affect prejudicially family charges originally paramount to the instrument under which the tenant for life takes his interest, for a wrongful exercise can be restrained: Re Cowley S. E. [1926], Ch. 725. Any other decision would, in certain cases, have rendered almost insuperable the task of preparing a vesting instrument without mentioning equitable interests. In restraining the exercise of such a power, it is conceived that the Court would draw a clear distinction between the exercise of a power for carrying out a transaction for the benefit of the settled estates as a whole, even though its exercise might indirectly affect a family charge, and one which primarily affected the beneficial interests in question.

Additional powers, relating to the investment of capital, may be made exercisable by a tenant for life subject to the consent of a third party being obtained: ib., cf. Lonsdale v. Lowther [1900], 2 Ch., at pp. 696–97.

All capital money arising after 1925 must be paid to the trustees of the compound settlement, but investments representing capital money, not affected by a subsisting family charge, will not be transferred to such trustees: Re Cowley, supra. But capital money may be subsequently made subject to a family charge: p. 376, infra.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 (1), 3, 13, 22 (2), 31 (1); 1st Sch. Form No. 1; 2nd Sch., para. 1 (1), (2) (3). (Compound settlement; restoration of life interest.)

A compound settlement, speaking broadly, consists of the documents for the time being creating it; semble it is a separate entity. Independently of the L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926 (amending s. 31), there must be S. L. Act trustees of the first instrument (unless trustees of the compound settlement have been appointed by the Court) to execute a vesting instrument for giving effect to the settlement: Re Cradock's S. E. [1926], 95 L. J. Ch. 364; W. N. 179. See also as to the meaning of a compound settlement: Re Ogle's S. E., infra.

Where a life interest is restored, though the tenant for life takes under the prior instrument, he has the additional powers (if any) conferred by the resettlement: Re Cradock, supra.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 23, 24, 104; L. P. Act, 1925, s. 155. (Release of statutory powers by statutory owner having no interest and not being a trustee of the settlement.)

A statutory owner (not being a trustee of the settlement), having no beneficial interest, is not within S. L. Act, 1925, s. 24, hence cannot consent to an order authorising the trustees to exercise the powers in his name: Re Craven S. E. (1926), W. N. 257; 70 Sol. J. 1111. But he can release his statutory powers under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 155, with the result that the trustees become statutory owners: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 23, though a tenant for life (ib., s. 104) cannot release his powers: S. C.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 (1) (iii), 23, 117 (1) (ix). (Class gift in shares; contingency; statutory owners.)

A trust for a class of persons who attain twenty-one, in equal shares, whereof only one member has attained the requisite age, there being others capable of taking, does not create a trust for sale until the land becomes divisible in shares; in the meantime the S. L. Act trustees, there being no tenant for life of the entirety, are the statutory owners: Re Bird (1926), W. N. 296; 162 L. T. Jour. 341. In default of express appointment, the executors would have been S. L. Act trustees: s. 30.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 16 (1) (iii), 18, 2nd Sch., para. 1. (Mortgages by tenant for life having a general power of appointment.)

A tenant for life in whose favour a vesting deed has been executed pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 1, having a general equitable power to appoint subject to rentcharges for lives, may, notwithstanding s. 18, under s. 16 (1) (iii), execute a legal mortgage for raising money for his own benefit, subject to the rentcharges: Re Egerton's S. E. [1926], Ch. 574.

Under s. 16 (3) his power to raise money by virtue of s. 71 (the money being paid in the first instance to the S. L. Act trustees) in priority to the rentchargees would have been available had they consented to postpone their charges to an equitable charge created under the power of appointment: see also s. 16 (2), and L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 20, 23 and 117. (Trust to pay a share of rents and accumulate the balance.)

Though a person who would have been entitled to the income, save for a trust to accumulate the whole or a part, is a tenant for life: ss. 20 (1) (viii), 117 (1) (xix), yet if the trust is to pay a share of the income or an annuity to a person, and to accumulate the balance there is no tenant for life, and the statutory owners have the powers under s. 23: Re Frewen [1926], Ch. 580; 95 L. J. Ch. 297.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1, 3, 20 (1) (viii); L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended. ("Immediate binding trusts for sale.")

All immediate trusts for sale are now capable of being "binding" or overreaching trusts for sale within Re Leigh's S.E. (1926), W. N. 191; 70 Sol. J. 758; for under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended, every trust for sale is "overreaching," subject, in some cases only, to the subsequent appointment of a trust corporation or the approval by the Court of the trustees.

For cases where a trust for sale is "overreaching," though a trust corporation is not acting and the trustees have not been approved: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36 (2); L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (3), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

By reason of the amendments of S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 3, under which, if land becomes subject to an immediate trust for sale, it ceases to be settled, and of the extension of the meaning of "immediate binding trust for sale" by the amendment of L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), the words "or until sale of the land" in S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20 (1) (viii), have become practically obsolete. The word "binding" shows that the trust must not be capable of being "revoked" as in Re Goodall [1909], 1 Ch. 440, it is sufficient if it is effectual, though in Leigh's Case (a special case) it was held to mean "overreaching." And see 70 Sol. J. 749, 769.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 20 (1) (viii), 117, 118. (Resulting trusts arising from a gap in the limitations.)

An "implied or constructive trust" includes a resulting trust; the decision in Re Baroness Llanover [1907], 1 Ch. 635, 650, is overruled by s. 20 (1) (viii), but by reason of intermediate transactions, which must be regarded: s. 118, there was no tenant for life, hence the S. L. Act trustees of the will (s. 23) became the statutory owners: Re Llanover S. E. [1926], Ch. 626.

There is not the same inducement to strain the meaning of s. 20 where, if that section does not apply, there will be statutory owners within s. 23.

S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 (1), 20 (1) (ix), 31. (Each fee simple owner subject to a family charge must be treated as entitled under a separate settlement, though the charge also affects other land.)

Trustees can be appointed for the purposes of the Act of land remaining vested in an owner in fee simple, taking under a settlement, subject to family charges, without thereby constituting them trustees of settlements arising by reason of pre-1926 Conveyances on Sale, made subject to but indemnified against family charges. Each fee simple owner of land subject to the charges should be treated, as respects his land, as entitled under a separate settlement, thus one document may create or form part of more than one settlement: Re Ogle's S. E. (1926), W. N. 227; 70 Sol. J. 953.

Jud. Act, 1925, s. 155 (1); Ad. of E. Act, 1925, ss. 1 (1), 3 (1) (ii). (Separate administration of trust estate granted to remainderman.)

Where a tenant for life dies intestate, entitled only as trustee to a fee simple vested in him under L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. II, paras. 5, 6 (c), no S. L. Act trustees having been appointed, and leaving a remainderman entitled in fee simple, administration will be granted to the remainderman limited to the trust estate: Re Dalley (1926), 70 Sol J. 839.

Jud. Act, 1925, ss. 160, 162. (Administration granted to a creditor notwithstanding a minority.)

In the case of an insolvent estate, the beneficiaries, including an infant, having disclaimed, full administration will be granted to a creditor notwithstanding the minority: Re Herbert [1926], P. 109. Though the deceased was insolvent, representation may be severed in regard to a trust estate: Jud. Act, 1925, s. 155 proviso.

CHAPTER I.

THE NEW LAW AS TO TRUSTEES.

SECT. I.—The nature of a trust and the different kinds of trusts.

Definition of a trust.

A TRUST may be defined as an obligation attached to the ownership of real or personal property or of some interest in, or power over, real or personal property binding the person in whom such property, interest, or power is vested to hold or exercise it for the benefit of some other person or persons (including or excluding, where there are two or more persons, the person in whom the interest or power is vested, as the case may be), and which obligation is enforceable by means of the equitable jurisdiction of the court.

Bare trust.

A trust may be a bare trust, or an active trust. A bare trust is where the instrument imposes on the trustee no duty beyond that implied by law from the bare relation of trustee and beneficiary, e.g., where land is vested in A. in trust for B., the simple duty of A. being to convey the land to B., or according to his direction, whenever required so to do, and in the meantime to permit him to receive the rents and profits.(a)

Secret trusts.

Some difficulties have been experienced in consequence of a practice, never expedient, of vesting the legal estate in land belonging to the true purchaser, in a bare nominee, without declaring a trust for sale and having a separate document, which does not come on the title, showing how the net proceeds and the rents and profits until sale are to be held. There can be no justification, after 1925, for not employing a trust for sale in view of the wide powers conferred on trustees for sale by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28. There should be at least two trustees unless a trust corporation is acting.

Bare nominees.

Protection of purchaser without notice.

The difficulties arose by reason of the vesting provisions in the 1st Sch. to that Act. To some extent these have been removed by the amendment of Pt. II of that Sch. contained in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., but only where the purchaser does not have notice of the trust (b) and the deeds are produced by the nominee or the persons deriving title under him, e.g., his mortgagees.

(a) The meaning of a "bare trustee" and the authorities on the subject will be found in Vol. I, pp. 268–69.

Active trust.

An active trust is where the instrument imposes on the trustee some special duty beyond the simple obligation above referred to, e.g., a trust to sell, or to manage, or to receive the rents and apply them in a particular manner.

How an active trust may become a bare trust.

A trust originally active may become a bare trust, either by reason of all the special duties having been performed, or by reason of the obligation to perform such duties having been put an end to by the act of all the persons beneficially interested in their performance, which act is usually called an election. Thus, if personal estate is given to a trustee in trust to apply the income during the minority of A. for his maintenance, and on his attaining twenty-one in trust for A. absolutely, the trust becomes a bare trust so soon as A. attains twenty-one. Again, if land is vested in a trustee upon trust to sell and divide the proceeds between a number of persons, all of whom, being sui juris, join in requesting him not to sell but to convey the land to not more than four of them on trust for sale (L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3 (1) (b) (ii) proviso) as real estate, the original trust, from the date of such request, becomes a bare trust, though under ib., s. 23, a purchaser may treat the original trust for sale as subsisting until the land is actually conveyed to or by the direction of the beneficiaries. That Act does not prevent a sole trustee for sale who is exclusively and absolutely entitled to the proceeds of sale from making a title as if there were no trust for sale.(c)

Election.

Sole trustee.

Express and constructive trusts.

Trusts may be also divided into express trusts, and implied or constructive trusts.

What is an express trust.

The most obvious example of an express trust is where trusts are declared, and trustees appointed to perform them, by a deed,

Construction of vesting provisions.

Undivided shares.

(b) As to restrictions on constructive notice: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 199. Some argument has been put forward to restrict the plain meaning of para. 3 of Pt. II of the 1st Sch. on the ground that the introductory words in s. 39 (2) speak only of "outstanding estates"; but a schedule is just as much part of an Act as a section, and cannot be controlled in this way; moreover, the section is not in terms confined to "bare" outstanding estates. The getting in of the legal estate does not destroy a trust but gives legal effect thereto: ib., 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 8. In many cases the true owners held in undivided shares; in such cases the legal estate may remain in the nominee as a trustee for sale: ib., Pt. IV, para. 1 (1), and he would only have to appoint another trustee to act with him: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (6).

Will, or other instrument in writing: Petre v. P. (1852), 1 Drew. 371. But a writing is not in all cases essential. Thus, if land is conveyed by A. to B., parol evidence is admissible notwithstanding the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 53 (1) (b) (which replaced the Statute of Frauds, s. 7), to show that the intention of the parties was that B. should be a trustee for A., and a trust thus established becomes an express trust: Rochefoucald v. Boustead [1897], 1 Ch. 196; 66 L. J. Ch. 74. Also where a person occupies a fiduciary position to another (e.g., as agent), money or other property deposited with him on the strength of that position is held by him on an express trust.(d) Where a husband borrowed trust money from the trustees of his marriage settlement he was held to be an express trustee: Re Dixon [1900], 2 Ch. 561; 69 L. J. Ch. 609.

Instances of implied or constructive trusts.

An implied or constructive trust is one arising by implication or construction of law from certain circumstances.

Thus, if there is a duly constituted trust, and a stranger to the trust so acts that the court fixes on him the duties and responsibilities of a trustee, that person is a constructive trustee: Soar v. Ashwell, infra. Again, if A. purchases land in the name of B. and provides the purchase-money, or if he voluntarily transfers stock into the name of B. or the joint names of himself and B., B. will be deemed a trustee for A.: Cripps v. Jee (1793), 4 Bro. C. C. 472, unless A. is B.'s husband: Glaister v. Hewer (1803), 8 Ves. 199, or father: Hepworth v. H. (1870), L. R. 11 Eq. 10; 40 L. J. Ch. 111, or stands to B. in loco parentis: Currant v. Jago (1844), 1 Coll. 261, in which case the purchase or transfer will be considered as an advancement in consideration of the relationship, unless it is shown by evidence or may be presumed from the circumstances that a gift from A. to B. was intended.(e)

Rebuttal by relationship.

Trusts for sale implied by law.

There are many trusts for sale implied by statute, e.g.—

(1) A trust either to retain or sell land created after 1925 is construed as a trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 25 (4);

(2) Of land acquired with the proceeds of other land held on trust for sale: ib., s. 28 (1);

(3) Of land retained for an infant under a partition by trustees for sale: ib., s. 28 (4);

(d) Soar v. Ashwell [1893], 2 Q. B. 390; North American, &c., Co. v. Watkins [1904], 1 Ch. 242; 2 ib. 233; 73 L. J. Ch. 117, 626; Re Eyre Williams [1923], 2 Ch. 533; 92 L. J. Ch. 582; Toates v. T. [1926], 2 K. B. 30.

(4) Of mortgaged property when the right of redemption is barred : ib., s. 31;

(5) Of land purchased under a power in personalty settlement : ib., s. 32 ; just as a trust for sale would be implied if the land had been purchased in breach of trust;

(6) Of land expressed to be disposed of in undivided shares : ib., ss. 34, 35, or becoming under a settlement liable to be held in undivided shares : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36. See also the transitional provisions as to land which before 1926 was held in undivided shares : L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. III, para. 2 (land of an infant and a person of full age not being settled land) ; Pt. IV (land formerly held in undivided shares or where the shares fall into possession after 1925) : ib., para. 2 and S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36;

(7) Of land held by joint tenants (not being settled land): L. P. Act, 1925, s. 36 ; see also as to tenancies by entireties : ib., 1st Sch., Pt. VI;

(8) Of land (not being settled land) passing on an intestacy : Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 33.

Resulting trust.

Again, if property is conveyed to a trustee, upon trusts which partly fail or do not exhaust the whole legal interest conveyed, there will, as a general rule, be an implied trust to the extent of the undisposed-of interest for the grantor, which trust is usually called a resulting trust. A resulting trust does not arise under a voluntary conveyance made after 1925 merely because the property is not expressed to be conveyed for the use or benefit of the grantee : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 60 (3). Again, after a contract for sale of land, the vendor is deemed a trustee for the purchaser subject to the payment of the purchase-money. Where a fluctuating body of persons contribute to a fund, vested in trustees and intended to be permanent, for the purpose of performing a particular service for the contributors for the time being, and the need for that service comes to an end, the surplus of the fund, after providing for the purposes of the trust, belongs to the class of contributors ascertained at the date when the purposes of the trust came to an end, in proportion to their contributions.(f)

Renewal of lease by trustee in his own name.

A trustee cannot derive any personal advantage from the administration of the trust property, hence, if a trustee renews a lease in his own name, he will be deemed to hold the new lease for the benefit of his beneficiaries.(g)

Against whom a trust may be enforced.

A trust may be enforced against the person in whom it was originally reposed, and all persons deriving title to the property under him, whether by representation, conveyance, or devise, other than purchasers for valuable consideration without notice of the trust.

Trusts must be declared and disposed of in writing.

The L. P. Act, 1925, s. 53 (1) (b) (replacing Statute of Frauds, s. 7), provides that a declaration of trust respecting any land, or any interest therein, must be manifested and proved by some writing signed by some person who is able to declare such trust or by his Will, but trusts arising or resulting by implication or construction of law are excepted by sub-s. (2). Grants and assignments of trusts must also be in writing and signed by the grantor or his agent duly authorised in writing or by Will: s. 53 (1) (c).

Fraud.

It has been held in numerous cases that the Statute of Frauds could not be pleaded to cover a fraud, e.g., to enable a trustee to retain the trust property as his own, hence, in such cases, parol evidence is admissible to prove the trust: Re Marlborough [1894], 2 Ch. 133; 63 L. J. Ch. 471.

SECT. II.—The powers and duties of trustees as regards sales.

The T. Act, 1925, reproduces the provisions of the T. Act, 1893, relating to sales by trustees enabling them to sell by auction, &c.: s. 12, and relating to depreciatory conditions: s. 13, and gives a new power to sell any part of the land, whether the division is vertical, horizontal or otherwise. Most important of all is, however, s. 28 of the L. P. Act, 1925, under which trustees for sale have all the powers of tenants for life (including, e.g., power to deal with surface and minerals separately: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 50); they may delegate these powers to certain beneficiaries under s. 29. Purchasers from trustees for sale are not concerned with the trusts of the proceeds of sale which are paid to two trustees or a trust corporation: ib., s. 27.

Not only are the S. L. Act powers exercisable by trustees for sale, but they can also be exercised by personal representatives: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 39.

(g) Keech v. Sandford (1726), Ch. Cas. 61; cf. Bevan v. Webb [1905], 1 Ch. 620, and see Griffith v. Owen [1907], 1 Ch. 195. As to restrictions on renewal of leases: L. P. Act, 1922, 15th Sch., paras. 5 to 8.

Duties of trustees for sale as to price and mode of sale.

Trustees holding land on trust for sale should use proper diligence to obtain the best price, and should take care to satisfy themselves as to the value of the property before they proceed to a sale.(h) If they sell by private contract, they should not, as a general rule, sell at a sum below that at which the property has been previously valued; and if they sell by auction, they should properly advertise the intended sale. If the trustees are also entitled to the proceeds they are in the position of absolute owners.

Trustees still liable to beneficiary for selling with improper conditions.

Section 13 does not relieve a trustee from liability to his beneficiary, if he sells under conditions unnecessarily depreciatory and the purchase-money be thereby rendered inadequate.

In the case of every trust for sale of land a power to postpone the sale is implied, unless a contrary intention appears: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 25 (1).

Implied power to postpone sale.

Where a power to postpone sale is implied or expressed in the trust instrument, then, subject to any express direction to the contrary in the trust instrument, the trustees for sale are not liable for postponing the sale, in the exercise of their discretion, for any indefinite period; a purchaser of a legal estate is not concerned with any directions respecting the postponement: ib., s. 25.

Effect of future trust for sale.

A trust for sale to take effect at a future time, or on certain conditions, can only be exercised at the time and in accordance with the conditions prescribed.(i) Where there is a future trust for sale, the trustee cannot make title, for under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30, he merely becomes a trustee for the purposes of that Act. The tenant for life or statutory owner or the personal representatives in whom the legal estate is vested must make title, just as in the case of stocks and shares the persons to make title are the legal owners whose names appear in the register, so in the case of land the person to make title will be the "estate owner" (i.e., the legal owner) who, but only if the title is registered, will be the registered proprietor under the L. R. Act, 1925.

Estate owners.

Power of sale useless.

A power of sale divorced from a legal estate is useless for the purpose of making title: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1 (7); though it may constitute S. L. Act trustees: S. L. Act, s. 30. In some cases a power of sale is given to a trustee under a deed of arrangement with creditors, but the better practice is to create a trust for sale. A sole trustee of such a deed can act: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 3.

Deed of arrangement.

Protection of purchaser where land held on trust for sale, beneficiaries cannot call for conveyance of shares.

Under the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 23, where land is held on an express or implied trust for sale, the trust, so far as regards a purchaser, is deemed to be subsisting until the land has been conveyed to or by the direction of the persons interested in the proceeds of sale.(j) The fact that the share in the proceeds of sale of one beneficiary had vested in possession never did entitle him to call for an immediate sale of the entirety or for a conveyance of his undivided share in the land.(k) The reason was that when land was held on trust for sale it could be disposed of to better advantage as an entire estate. To split it up into undivided shares would have damaged the interests of the beneficiaries. Now, under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3 (1) (b) (ii) proviso, the beneficiaries absolutely entitled can call on the original trustees for sale to convey the land to not more than four of the beneficiaries on trust for sale. It is a mistake to suppose that a trust for sale in any way hampers dealings which, under the old law, could have been effected by the beneficiaries.

A trust to sell within a given time may be exercised afterwards.

A trust to sell within a given time does not preclude the trustees from selling after that time, if the nature of the trust requires that there must be a sale, notwithstanding the lapse of time, either by the trustees or by the court: Pearce v. Gardner (1852), 10 Hare, 287; indeed, so far as a purchaser is concerned, the trust for sale remains good till terminated in the manner provided by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 23; nor is a purchaser concerned with directions respecting the postponement of a sale: ib., s. 25 (2).

Trustees can sell by underlease.

Under a trust for sale of leaseholds trustees can sell by way of underlease, reserving a proper proportion of rent in each case, having regard to the head rent.(l)

(j) This section disposes of the doubts raised in Re Tweedie and Miles (1884), 27 Ch. D. 315; 54 L. J. Ch. 71.

(l) Re Judd and Poland [1906], 1 Ch. 684; 75 L. J. Ch. 403, overruling Re Walker and Oakshott [1901], 2 Ch. 383; 70 L. J. Ch. 666; and see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 48 (3).

Sale of land must include the timber.

Trustees for sale must sell the timber with the estate, though there may be a provision against impeachment for waste.(m)

Consideration for timber or fixtures paid to wrong person.

Where, on a sale, the consideration for timber or fixtures is paid to the wrong person, and the money is subsequently made good to the trust with interest (if any) at the rate fixed by the court, it may, at the instance of the purchaser or persons deriving title under him, confirm the title: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 49 (3). This would apply whether the sale was made by a tenant for life, statutory owner, trustees for sale, or personal representatives.

Trustees for sale can sell surface and minerals apart without express authority.

Mortgagees.

Tenants for life, trustees for sale and personal representatives can deal separately with surface and minerals without any order of the court: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 50; L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28; Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 39. So also can mortgagees, save where the mortgage is made before 1912 and the statutory powers have not been applied to the mortgage: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 101 (2) (ii). If this power is not available the court may supply the deficiency: ib., s. 92.

Unlimited power of sale in a settlement was valid.

Ceases when the estate vested in fee simple in possession.

A power of sale vested in trustees by a settlement, the proceeds being directed to be laid out in the purchase of land to be settled on the like limitations as the land sold, did not transgress the rule against perpetuities, though no limit was imposed by the terms of the instrument as to the period during which it might be exercised. Such a limit was in fact implied from the nature and object of the power, which was intended to authorise alienation during the continuance of the particular interests created by the settlement, and when those interests determined and the land became vested in fee simple in possession, either under the ultimate limitation in the deed or by reason of a disentailing assurance, the power ceased also. Thus, if before 1926, lands were settled on A. for life, with remainder to the sons of A. successively in tail, with remainder to B. in fee simple, and a power of sale unlimited in terms was vested in trustees, such power remained in force during A.'s life, and, if he left male issue, until a tenant in tail attained twenty-one and barred the entail, and upon that event happening, or on the death of A., if he had no male issue, the power ceased.(n) Semble, the existence of a jointure rent-charge, the fee simple being vested in possession subject to such jointure, did not keep alive the power.(o) According to the modern practice, a power of sale is now rarely, if ever, used, it being sufficient to appoint trustees for the purposes of the S. L. Act. In some cases a power of sale is given to the trustees under a deed of arrangement with creditors, but a trust for sale is preferable. Again, when a tenant in tail barred and there were family charges still on foot, it was formerly the practice to preserve the power of sale during his life and to keep on foot his statutory powers to enable him to over-reach the family charges.

Powers of sale not required.

If a power of sale has once been validly created then the trustees and their successors in office remain the S. L. Act trustees of the settlement so long as the settlement remains subsisting: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 33 (1); a settlement remains on foot so long as any limitation, &c., subsists, or is capable of being exercised, or so long as there is a minority: ib., s. 3. But it ceases as soon as the land becomes subject to a trust for sale: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. There is no longer any need to keep alive an estate tail to preserve the statutory over-reaching powers of a tenant for life, for an absolute owner subject to family charges has such powers: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20 (1) (ix), though he can also deal with the land as absolute owner subject to family charges: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1.

Effect as to S. L. Act trustees.

Duration of settlements.

Absolute owner subject to family charges.

Even in such cases as deeds of arrangement with creditors, a trust for sale (a power to postpone is implied: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 25) is preferable, for no question can arise as to whether it is too remote: ib., s. 23. Moreover, all the statutory powers of a tenant for life(oo) are conferred on trustees for sale: ib., s. 28, but are not conferred on trustees with merely a power of sale. A power of sale conferred by a strict settlement, which extends beyond the purposes authorised by the statutory power, will be exercisable by the tenant for life as an additional power, and not by the persons on whom it is expressed to be conferred: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 108–9.

Trust for sale preferable to a power of sale.

Express power of sale when exercisable by a tenant for life.

Under the old law, if property was settled, as to one undivided share, for one class of persons, and as to the other share for another class, the fact that one share became absolutely vested in possession did not put an end to the power, which remained in force until the entirety became vested.(p) Now the entirety of the land will vest in trustees for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 34, 35; 1st Sch., Pt. IV; S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36.

Power remained though an undivided share became vested.

Doctrine did not apply where power was for purpose of division.

The doctrine that a power of sale unlimited in terms ceased so soon as the property became absolutely vested, did not apply where the power was made to take effect on the coming into existence of the absolute limitation, e.g., where property was given to trustees in trust for a class of persons absolutely, either immediately or after the determination of a prior life interest, with a power to sell for the purpose of division. Such a power was held to be valid on the ground that it must from its nature be exercised within a reasonable time, i.e., before the expiration of twenty-one years.(q) A future power of sale operates to create S. L. Act trustees: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30.

Power limited in terms might continue after property had become vested.

Where a power of sale was conferred so as in terms to be exercisable only within the permitted period, such a power remained in force notwithstanding that the property had become absolutely vested, if such appeared to be the settlor's intention and there had been no election by all the beneficiaries to put an end to it.(r)

Power of sale subsisted until purposes failed.

A power of sale was not extinguished until all the purposes for which it was originally created had ceased to exist.(s)

Power of sale where it authorised a mortgage.

A power to sell in order to raise a sum of money, semble, implied a power to mortgage, which was a conditional sale: Mills v. Banks (1724), 3 P. Wms. at p. 9; but this was only the case when the purpose of the trust would be answered by a mortgage; for if the intention appeared that a sale out and out should be made, a mortgage was not a valid exercise of the power.(t)

Implied power to raise money.

Now, if trustees are authorised to pay or apply capital for any purpose, they will have and be deemed always to have had power to raise the money by sale or mortgage: T. Act, 1925, s. 16. This section does not apply to S. L. Act trustees (unless they are statutory owners: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 23, 26), for in the case of settled land it is the duty of the tenant for life or statutory owner to raise the money required for giving effect to the settlement: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 16, 71, 108, 109. A personal representative has power to raise money on mortgage: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 39.

Duty of tenant for life to raise money.

Purchasers and mortgagees dealing with trustees acting under a trust or power are protected by T. Act, 1925, s. 17; special protection is also given where the transaction is expressed to be carried out under s. 16 of the S. L. Act, 1925: see sub-s. (2), also ib., ss. 94–5.

Protection of purchasers and mortgagees.

Powers to partition can be properly ignored, for all land held in undivided shares is subjected to a trust for sale; but trustees for sale, in proper cases, have power to partition land among the persons interested in the proceeds of sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (3) (4). Certain contracts for sale made before 1926 by co-owners can be carried out under the old law: ib., 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (10); and partition actions commenced before 1926 can be continued if an order for sale or partition is made within eighteen months from 1st January, 1926: ib., para. 1 (10); L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Powers to partition.

Partition actions.

Land subject to a discretionary power of sale, as opposed to a trust for sale, retained its character of real estate until sale.(u) This is of little importance now, save where a lunatic owner was living and of full age on 1st January, 1926: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 51 (2).

Land remained real estate until power was exercised.

Trust property could always be sold jointly with property belonging to other persons or held on different trusts, if by reason of the situation of the two properties, or for any other reason, a joint sale was likely to produce a better price than separate sales.(v) On this principle a joint sale by trustees of the reversion expectant on a lease, and by the owner of the lease, was held good: Morris v. Debenham (1876), 2 Ch. D. 540.

Trust property sold jointly with other property.

In the case of a joint sale, the trustees have authority to agree with the other vendor as to the apportionment of the purchase-money; this must be done before the purchase is completed, and the purchaser dividing his money according to such apportionment is safe unless he has notice that the apportionment is an improper one: Re Cooper and Allen (1876),

Apportionment of purchase-money between trustees and another vendor.

4 Ch. D. 802. If, however, the two properties are so situated that, primâ facie, nothing will be gained by a joint sale, the onus lies on the trustees to show that it is a prudent and right thing: Re Cooper and Allen, supra.

Joint dealings with undivided shares.

An undivided share in the proceeds of land or in any other property may be dealt with by trustees or personal representatives under any trust or power in conjunction with the owners, &c., of the other shares (without prejudice to the trust for sale affecting the entirety), though any of the trustees or representatives may be interested in the other shares: T. Act, 1925, s. 24.

Contract, if a breach of trust not enforced.

If a trustee enters into a contract for sale which is, under the circumstances, a breach of trust as between himself and his beneficiary, the court will refuse to enforce its specific performance either at the instance of the vendor or of the purchaser, and will, at the instance of the beneficiary, even restrain the vendor from giving effect to it, leaving the purchaser to his remedy in damages, if any.(w) To affect a purchaser with notice, a pending action should be registered in regard to the proceedings: L. C. Act, 1925, ss. 2 and 3. If under such a contract the property has been actually conveyed to the purchaser, the question whether it will be set aside may depend on whether he had notice of the breach of trust.

Trustees can give receipt for capital.

Provided that, in the case of trustees for sale and S. L. Act trustees, either a trust corporation is acting or there are at least two individuals, trustees can give a valid receipt for purchase or other capital money, and the purchaser is not liable to see to its application.(x)

Bankruptcy trustee, &c.

A sole trustee in bankruptcy and a sole trustee of a deed of arrangement with creditors can, notwithstanding the restriction imposed by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (as amended), give valid receipts as a trust corporation: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 3.

Meaning of "trust corporation."

This section extends the meaning of "trust corporation" as originally defined in L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xxviii), and in S. L. Act, 1925, s. 117 (1) (xxx); the restriction as regards capital money arising under that Act is imposed by s. 94, and the power to give receipts is conferred by s. 95.

Powers to delegate.

Trustees were not, under the old law, justified in delegating to an agent, or even to one of themselves, the power to receive money, and formerly a purchaser, or other person liable to pay money to trustees, was entitled to insist on all the trustees being personally present to receive and take charge of it or on their giving a written authority for payment of it to their joint account at a bank: Re Flower (1884), 27 Ch. D. 592; 53 L. J. Ch. 955.

Cases in which trustees, &c., may appoint agents.

Now, however, trustees and personal representatives may employ and pay agents and are not responsible for the default of the agent if employed in good faith: T. Act, 1925, s. 23 (1). In particular, they may appoint a solicitor to be an agent to receive purchase-money or other consideration by permitting him to have and produce a deed with a receipt therein or thereon: ib., s. 23 (3), as an absolute owner could do under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 69.

Property abroad.

Policies.

Again, authority is given to delegate trusts and powers to agents abroad in respect of property outside the United Kingdom: T. Act, 1925, s. 23 (2); and to authorise a banker or solicitor to give a receipt for insurance money by producing the policy with a receipt: ib., s. 23 (3).

Trustee, &c., going abroad.

A trustee, personal representative, tenant for life and statutory owner going abroad may give a power of attorney in accordance with T. Act, 1925, s. 25, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Tenant for life who has parted with his interest.

If a tenant for life has parted with his beneficial interest, and refuses to act, the court may make an order authorising the S. L. Act trustees to exercise the statutory powers in his name: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 24; this is an example of statutory delegation. The section is designed to prevent a tenant for life from holding up dealings with settled land unless he is given a bribe to execute the requisite documents.

Powers of trustees transferred to tenant for life as respects settled land.

It is no longer a matter of the powers expressed to be conferred on trustees being subordinated to those given by the S. L. Act to a tenant for life, but all powers relating to dealings with the legal estate in settled land are wholly transferred to the tenant for life or statutory owner: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 108–9; he is not only a trustee of the legal estate in the land but of the powers: ib., s. 107; and must give effect to the equitable interests and powers: ib., s. 16.

Trustee for sale cannot buy from himself.

A trustee for sale cannot purchase trust property from himself either directly or indirectly,(y) nor, where there are two or more trustees, can one buy from the others. The sale is liable to be set aside, as a matter of course, by the beneficiary, provided that he applies to the court for that purpose within a reasonable time; it is not necessary to show that the trustee has taken any advantage. If before the setting aside of the sale, the trustee has sold at an increased price, the beneficiary may claim the advantage.(z)

(y) Re Postlethwaite (1888), 59 L. T. 58; Dart., 7th ed., 38; and see articles 130 L. T. Newsp. 457; 46 Sol. J. 226.

Purchase from beneficiaries.

In some cases the difficulty can be got over by arranging a sale from the beneficiaries to the trustee, when this is duly carried out the trustees for sale will be bound to give effect to the transaction. In this case, however, contrary to the general rule, the equitable interests must be brought on to the title to the land. Care must be taken to deal with the trustee estate owners for all ordinary cases; the beneficiaries, alone, not having the legal estate, cannot make title.

Court will authorise purchase by trustee.

The court will generally authorise a purchase by a trustee of the trust property on being satisfied that such purchase is for the benefit of the beneficiary: Farmer v. Dean (1863), 32 Beav. 327. There is, however, no rule which, in the absence of circumstances of doubt or suspicion, will prevent a person who has entirely ceased to be trustee of an instrument containing a trust for sale from becoming a purchaser of the trust property: Re Boles, &c., Co. [1902], 1 Ch. 244; 71 L. J. Ch. 130.

Dealings where tenant for life is interested.

Where, on a dealing with settled land, the transaction takes place with the tenant for life, then, for the purposes of the transaction, the S. L. Act trustees stand in the place of the tenant for life and exercise the powers in his name. These transactions can be carried out though the tenant for life is one of the S. L. Act trustees, or an order has been made authorising the trustees to exercise the powers in his name, or he is a lunatic; but not where the dealings are with a body of persons which includes a S. L. Act trustee (not being the tenant for life), unless action is approved by the Court.

Not applicable to trustees for sale.

It is true that trustees for sale have the powers of a tenant for life (L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28), but the powers conferred by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 68, cannot be adapted to dealings with one of two or more trustees for sale, for the trustees for sale cannot properly represent one of themselves. No power is given for some trustees to deal with another member of their own body, but the trustees collectively can deal with the tenant for life though he is also a S. L. Act trustee.

Power is given to the court by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 64, to authorise transactions not within the express powers of that Act (subject to an express exception in regard to improvements), and by T. Act, 1925, s. 57, in regard to property vested in trustees (not being S. L. Act trustees), so as to authorise any transaction not within their powers. The sections are not designed for the purpose of varying beneficial interests, created by the trusts of the settlement: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 68.

Transactions generally.

Sect. III.—The powers, duties, and liabilities of trustees as regards the investment of trust money and the management of trust property.(a) Investments.

Authorised investments by trustees.

Settlements and Wills usually contain express trusts for investment and define the investments which may be held and purchased, but an interim investment clause is supplied by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 73.

T. Act, 1925.

Unless expressly forbidden,(b) trustees may also invest in or upon the investments authorised by the T. Act, 1925.(c)

Bearer securities.

Bearer securities are now authorised: T. Act, 1925, ss. 7, 68 (13), provided that the bonds are deposited with bankers for safe custody and collection of income. The reason for this additional power is not that savings are effected in stamp duty on simple changes of investment, for this is generally represented by a slight addition to the market price, but because large savings in stamp duty can be effected when voluntary settlements are made.

Retainer.

Trustees are not liable for continuing to hold investments which have ceased to be investments authorised by the trust instrument or by general law: ib., s. 4.

Power to vary.

A power to vary investments is given by s. 1 (1), but is generally inserted in trust instruments; under the old law such a power, though omitted, was implied.(d)

Extent of liability of trustees in case of loss of trust fund.

Rule in Howe v. E. of Dartmouth repealed as respects land and an intestate's estate.

The rule in Howe v. Earl of Dartmouth (1802), 7 Ves. 137, to the effect that property invested in a manner not authorised by a Will must be converted and the excess of income treated as capital, has been repealed (Re Brooker (1926), W. N. 93), as respects land, by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (2); it does not apply to the estate of an intestate: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 33 (5); it never applied to a settlement by deed.(f) Hence, the beneficiaries in reversion under a marriage settlement were never entitled, as against the tenant for life, to attribute to capital the excess of income obtained by an unauthorised investment.(g)

Difference between trustees authorised or required to invest with consent.

If trustees are authorised to invest or change the investment with the consent of the tenant for life, neither party can be compelled to acquiesce in the desire of the other, but the voluntary concurrence of both parties is requisite to a valid exercise of the power: Lee v. Young (1843), 2 Y. & C. 532; 12 L. J. Ch. 478. But where the trustees are authorised and required to change the investments at the request of the tenant for life, the court will compel the trustees to comply with the requests of the tenant for life.(h) In the investment of capital money under the S. L. Act, the trustees must follow the directions of the tenant for life: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 75, but semble, not if they have evidence that the investment is undesirable: Re Hunt's S. E. [1906], 2 Ch. 11; 75 L. J. Ch. 496. Whether desirable or not, they are not liable for paying or applying capital money for any authorised purpose: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 98; nor are they liable for the acts of the agents employed by the tenant for life: ib.

Investments under S. L. Act.

Management and liabilities.

Insurance.

Composition.

The T. Act, 1925, authorises trustees to insure: s. 19; and see Re McEacharn (1911), 103 L. T. 900; provides for the application of any insurance money where the policy is maintained under any power or obligation: ib., s. 20; and to compound and compromise claims, accept property before the time at which it is made transferable, apportion blended funds, &c.: ib., s. 15.

Acceptance of leases.

A power to accept leases on renewal or otherwise (so far as the law permits: L. P. Act, 1922, 15th Sch., paras. 5, 6, 7, 8) is given by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 53, and this power is exercisable by trustees for sale or personal representatives. All money arising under a trust for sale of land is applicable for the purchase of land which must be conveyed on trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28. It is also applicable for S. L. Act purposes: ib.

Indemnity.

Indemnities are given to trustees and personal representatives in regard to rent and covenants by T. Act, 1925, s. 26; by means of advertisements for claimants by ib., s. 27 (as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.), in regard to notice acquired from having acted in another trust: ib., s. 28, and in regard to acting on powers of attorney by ib., s. 29.

Further indemnities are given to S. L. Act trustees and to personal representatives by S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 96–100.

Extent of trustee's liability for insolvency or fraud of agent.

A trustee is bound to conduct the business of the trust in the same manner as an ordinary prudent man of business, regardful of the future pecuniary interests of those having claims upon him, would conduct his own, and beyond this he is not liable.

Independently of statutory powers he may employ solicitors, brokers, and other agents to do that which in the ordinary course of business other people would employ such persons to do. Hence a trustee or personal representative is not liable for loss arising from the failure of bankers with whom money has been deposited pending distribution or a permanent investment, unless such deposit has been made or allowed to remain without sufficient reason,(j) or for the fraud of a broker (including a broker who is a co-trustee authorised to be employed and paid: Shepherd v. Harris [1905], 2 Ch. 310; 74 L. J. Ch. 574) who embezzles money given to him for investment: Speight v. Gaunt (1883), 9 A. C. 1; 53 L. J. Ch. 419, provided that he exercised proper care in selecting the broker: Robinson v. Harkin [1896], 2 Ch. 415; 65 L. J. Ch. 773, or for a theft committed by a servant, provided that the servant is properly entrusted with the custody of the article, and has been selected and employed without negligence; it makes no difference that the trustee is remunerated for his services: Jobson v. Palmer [1893], 1 Ch. 71; 62 L. J. Ch. 180. A personal representative placing goods in the hands of a tradesman, to be disposed of in the ordinary way of business, is not liable for loss arising from the tradesman becoming bankrupt: Job v. J. (1877), 6 Ch. D. 562. A trustee has been held liable for a loss occasioned by the fraud of his solicitor, to whom he had given money for investment,(k) on the ground that it is not in the ordinary course of business to give money to a solicitor for investment: Speight v. Gaunt, supra. On the other hand, and in accordance with the above principle, it is apprehended that a trustee is not liable for accepting a title which his solicitor has advised to be good, but which turns out defective.

Deposit account.

Frauds of agents.

Bankruptcy of tradesman.

Trustee liable for fraud or neglect of solicitor in certain cases.

Now trustees and personal representatives are entitled, while an investment is being sought for, to deposit money at a bank on a deposit or other account: T. Act, 1925, s. 11; to pay calls on shares: ib.; to employ agents generally: ib., s. 23; and to deposit documents for safe custody with bankers, &c.: ib., s. 21.

Banking accounts.

properly left with the tenant for life, though in some cases endorsements must be made before they are handed over.

A trustee is not liable if, after receiving notice that a beneficiary has charged his life interest, he continues to pay the trust income to that beneficiary: Re Pawson [1917], 1 Ch. 541; 86 L. J. Ch. 380.

Trustee's indemnity, rights of third parties.

A trustee is entitled to be indemnified out of the trust estate for any personal liability incurred in the proper management of it, and in such a case a person recovering damages against a trustee may avail himself of the benefit of this right of indemnity and proceed directly against the trust estate.(l)

Trustee may act on a surveyor's report as to value.

In some cases (m) a trustee was formerly held liable for lending money on a mortgage security which proved insufficient in value, where he acted on the advice of a surveyor, on the ground that, in the circumstances, he ought to have exercised an independent judgment. A trustee may now safely act on an independent surveyor's (n) report if made in accordance with T. Act, 1925, s. 8. The report should state the amount which can be safely advanced.(o) A trustee is well advised in not lending more than one-half of the value of business premises, but that is not a definite rule: Palmer v. Emerson [1911], 1 Ch. 758; 80 L. J. Ch. 418.

Duty of trustees, if mortgaged property has fallen in value.

When mortgaged property on which trust money has been invested falls in value so as to be an insufficient security, it is not the absolute duty of the trustees at once to call in the money, but they have a discretion which they must exercise as practical men with a due regard to all the circumstances of the case, such as the position and solvency of the mortgagor. The prudent course in such a case is to apply to the court for directions by an originating summons.(p)

Liability of trustee who lends too large an amount on an authorised security.

tion: T. Act, 1925, s. 9. If new trustees are appointed, it is their duty to realise; they are not bound to give the trustee who committed the breach of trust the option of replacing the fund and taking the security: Re Salmon (1889), 42 Ch. D. 351.

Effect of right of redemption being barred.

Where trustees acquire land by reason of the right of redemption being barred they hold it, under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 31, on trust for sale, with power to postpone. If it represents capital money under the S. L. Act, the land may be made subject to the settlement by means of a subsidiary vesting deed.

On what principle a loss will be apportioned between tenant for life and remainderman.

If a security is realised at a loss, and there are arrears of interest, the general rule is that the sum recovered ought to be apportioned between the tenant for life and remainderman in proportion to the amounts due at the date when it was recovered in respect of arrears of interest and in respect of principal: Re Broadwood [1908], 1 Ch. 115; 77 L. J. Ch. 18.

Land purchased by trustees which is not conveyed on trust for sale.

Where trustees purchase land under powers in a money settlement executed after 1911, which does not direct the land to be held on trust for sale, the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32, supplies the necessary trust and directions as to the application of the rents and profits until sale. This section was required not merely to remove the doubt whether title ought to be made as if there were a mere power of sale as opposed to a trust for sale, but to make it clear that the land acquired devolved under the settlement or Will as personal estate. The trusts would generally be inapplicable to real estate, with the result that the land might have passed in a different direction from the personalty settled.

Trust to retain or sell.

Now a trust, either to retain or sell, created after 1925, will be construed as a trust to sell (q) with a power to postpone: ib., s. 25 (4).

Trustee to sell real estate improperly purchased.

If a trustee buys real estate with trust money, having no power to do so, the beneficiaries may (subject to L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3 (i) (b) (ii) proviso) elect to adopt the purchase: Wiles v. Gresham (1854), 2 Drew. 258; 23 L. J. Ch. 667. But if they do not all concur in such election, or any of them are under disability, it is the duty of the trustee to re-sell; in fact, the property is, by virtue of the breach of trust, stamped with an implied trust for sale. Under the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32, the trustees are given an implied power to postpone the sale only where they have power to purchase land; semble, the same principle would be applied to s. 25, which confers a power to postpone unless a contrary intention appears. If the money produced by the re-sale is more than was given for the property, the whole belongs to the trust; if less, the trustees must make up the deficiency. Under ib., s. 23, the purchaser will obtain a good title in relying on the implied trust for sale unless the land has been conveyed to or by the direction of the persons interested in the proceeds of sale. This section is retrospective.

(q) This section in effect confirms the decision in Re Crips (1907), 95 L. T. 865.

Joint receipts.

Where there are two or more trustees, they must (subject to the powers for the majority of charity trustees to act on behalf of all) all join in a receipt for trust money payable to them; in the case of executors the receipt of those who prove is sufficient: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, ss. 2 (2), 8, 24. Though a personal representative may become a trustee for sale for administration purposes: ib., s. 33, this does not prevent a sole personal representative, in his capacity as such, from giving valid receipts: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. Where all the trustees join, they will all primâ facie be considered as having received the money; but one of them may show that the money was in fact received by the others, and that he joined only for conformity: T. Act, 1925, s. 30; S. L. Act, 1925, s. 96. In that case he is not answerable for a misapplication by the others. But a trustee, though not liable for merely permitting his co-trustees to receive the money, is not justified in allowing it to be retained by the latter for longer than the circumstances require: Brice v. Stokes (1805), 11 Ves. 319.

Money received by co-trustee.

Trustees jointly and severally liable for breach of trust.

Where a breach of trust is committed, the trustees are jointly and severally liable to the beneficiaries to make good the loss, and if one of them is compelled to pay the whole he is entitled to a contribution from the others, assuming that they are all in pari delicto. The fact that one trustee leaves the management of the trust to the others does not entitle him to an indemnity from them, unless there are some special circumstances, as where the active trustee is the solicitor for the trust or has derived a personal benefit from the breach.(r)

Right to contribution inter se.

Where a breach of trust is committed at the request or with the assent of a beneficiary, his share in the trust fund is primarily liable to make good the loss.(s) In accordance with this doctrine, the T. Act, 1925, s. 62 (reproducing T. Act, 1893, s. 45), enables the Court to impound the interest of a beneficiary, even as against a married woman restrained from anticipation: 2 Wolst. and Cherry, 11th ed.

Decisions on construction of s. 6 of the Act of 1888, and s. 62 of the Act of 1925.

It has been held on the construction of that section and of s. 6 of the T. Act, 1888, that the words "in writing" apply only to a consent, and not to a request;(t) and (2) that in order to make a beneficiary liable, in respect of an improper investment, it must be shown not only that he instigated, requested, or consented in writing to the investment, but that he knew the facts which would make it a breach of trust: Re Somerset [1894], 1 Ch. 231; 63 L. J. Ch. 41.

Liability where one of trustees committing breach is a beneficiary.

When a breach of trust is committed by two trustees, one of whom is a beneficiary, and the circumstances are such that, if neither had been a beneficiary, both would have been in pari delicto, the interest of the trustee who is also a beneficiary in the trust fund is primarily liable to make good the loss to the other beneficiaries. If this is insufficient, the deficiency must be made good by the two trustees as between themselves in equal shares.(u)

Application of Limitation Acts to trusts.

It was formerly the law that, as regards express trusts, the Limitation Acts did not apply between a trustee and beneficiary. This rule has been modified by the following enactments:—

Express trust not to exclude statute.

LIM. ACT, 1874, s. 10.

After the commencement of this Act no action, &c., shall be brought to recover any sum of money or legacy charged upon or payable out of any land or rent, at law or in equity, and secured by an express trust, or to recover any arrears of rent or of interest in respect of any sum of money or legacy so charged or payable and so secured, except within the time within which the same would be recoverable, if there were not any such trust: See Carson, 2nd ed., 208, as to this section.

Construction of Act of 1888, s. 8.

Again, the T. Act, 1888, s. 8, enables trustees in certain cases to plead the Limitation Acts.(v)

This section has been held to apply:—

(2) Where a tenant for life brought an action against the trustees for a loss arising from an investment on a mortgage of land of insufficient value made more than six years before, notwithstanding that interest on the mortgage had been regularly paid to the beneficiary: Re Somerset [1894], 1 Ch. 231; 63 L. J. Ch. 41;

(3) Where the trustee of a Will under which an infant was residuary legatee was called on twelve years after the latter attained twenty-one to account for the residue, and the trustee stated that he had expended it for the infant's maintenance during minority;(w)

(4) Where trustees paid over the capital of a settled legacy to the tenant for life and the action was not commenced till more than six years after the tenant for life's death.(x)

The section does not extend to an annuity charged upon real estate and secured by an express trust where the trustee still remains in possession of the property upon which it is charged: Re Jordison [1922], 1 Ch. 440; 91 L. J. Ch. 497.

The fraud of a trustee's agent of which the trustee is ignorant does not deprive him of the benefit of the section: Thorne v. Heard [1895], A. C. 495; 64 L. J. Ch. 652.

Where a trustee, who was directed to accumulate rents for a term of years, applied them in a different way without any fraudulent intent, and an action was brought against him after the end of the term by a person interested in the accumulations, it was held that the trustee was liable only as regards rent received and applied by him during the six years before the issue of the writ.(y)

The T. Act, 1925, s. 61 (replacing Jud. T. Act, 1896, s. 3), also enables the Court in proper cases to relieve trustees from liability in respect of breaches of trust,(z) even where trust money has been paid to the wrong person.(a)

Power to relieve trustee from personal liability.

When a trustee applies for relief under this section the onus lies on him to show that he has acted honestly and reasonably.(b) Whether he has acted reasonably depends on the circumstances of each case, and one of the tests is whether he would have acted in the way he did had he been dealing with his own money.

Relief refused.

Relief has been refused :—

(1) To a trustee who invested on a mortgage without making any inquiry as to the nature and value of the property, relying entirely on his co-trustee, who was a solicitor : Re Turner [1897], 1 Ch. 536 ; 66 L. J. Ch. 282 ;

(2) To a trustee who, in lending money did not observe the requirements of T. Act, 1925, s. 8 ; no special circumstances were put forward in explanation : Re Stuart [1897], 2 Ch. 583 ; 66 L. J. Ch. 780 ;

(3) To a trustee who invested on a second mortgage without taking proper advice : Chapman v. Browne [1902], 1 Ch. 785 ; 71 L. J. Ch. 465.

A trustee does not entitle himself to relief by proving that he has acted reasonably and honestly ; he must show that in all the circumstances he ought fairly to be excused for his breach of trust.(c)

Relief granted.

On the other hand, relief has been granted :—

(1) Where trustees, erroneously assuming that they had a power of sale, sold leaseholds and thereby diminished the income of the tenant for life : Perrins v. Bellamy [1899], 1 Ch. 797 ; 68 L. J. Ch. 397 ;

(2) Where executors acting reasonably and honestly paid to their solicitors various sums to be applied in administration of the estate, but which the solicitors misapplied : Re Lord De Clifford [1900], 2 Ch. 707 ; 69 L. J. Ch. 828 ;

(3) Where an executor committed a devastavit, supposing, with reason, that the estate was ample to meet the debts : Re Kay [1897], 2 Ch. 518 ; 66 L. J. Ch. 759, but in a case of this

SECT. IV.—Disclaimer.

Disclaimer.

If a person appointed to be a trustee by deed or Will is desirous of disclaiming the trust, and has done no act which would amount to an acceptance of it, he should execute a deed of disclaimer in proper form, bearing in mind that any form is incorrect which affects to convey and release property the trusts whereof he disclaims.(d)

Disclaimer of legal estate affected by rent.

Power is given by L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 7 (m), introduced by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., for a person or his personal representatives to disclaim in writing a legal estate affected by rent or onerous covenants to which he would otherwise have become entitled under the statutory vesting provisions.

Disclaimer by married woman.

If a married woman disclaims it should be by deed: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 168.

Disclaimer in bankruptcy.

Disclaimers under Bkcy. Act, 1914, need not be under seal: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 52; or when not required to be evidenced in writing: ib.

What is acceptance of a trust.

What will amount to the acceptance of a trust must depend upon the acts or conduct of the trustee. For instance, the execution of the deed by which the trust is created, or any interference in the management of the estate under the trusts of the deed, would be regarded as an acceptance.

Probate acceptance of trust.

There can be no disclaimer of a trust which has once been accepted; where the trustees are also executors, the probate of the Will amounts to an acceptance of the trust: Mucklow v. Fuller (1821), Jac. 198. On the other hand, a renunciation of the executorship is not of itself a disclaimer of the trust. If an executor is allowed to withdraw his renunciation this operates without prejudice to previous acts by and notices to any other representative, who has previously proved: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 6.

Renunciation of probate.

Revocation of one office does not revoke other.

When a person is appointed trustee and executor, and by a codicil the testator revokes the appointment of that person, as executor, this does not amount to a revocation of the trusteeship: Graham v. G. (1853), 22 L. J. Ch. 937.

Partial disclaimer.

A trustee cannot disclaim as regards a part only of the property

---

devised to him: Re Lord and Fullerton [1896], 1 Ch. 228; 65 L. J. Ch. 184.

Disclaimer by conduct.

The acceptance by a devisee of a devise to him is presumed unless he disclaims, but he may disclaim by conduct as well as by deed: Re Clout & Frewer [1924], 2 Ch. 230; 93 L. J. Ch. 624. After 1925, a devise only operates in equity.

Refusal to receive the income of a legacy held on trust cannot be treated as a disclaimer of the legacy as regards future income, unless it is supported by consideration, or has changed the position of interested persons: Re Young [1913], 2 Ch. 272; 82 L. J. Ch. 171.

Conduct which amounts to a disclaimer of the office of trustee is a disclaimer also of the legal estate: Re Birchall (1889), 40 Ch. D. 436.

Consequences of disclaimer.

The effect of a disclaimer is to put all parties in the same position as if the disclaiming party had not been named in the trust instrument, except that it leaves a vacancy in the trusteeship. If a sole trustee and executor or all the executors under a Will disclaim, the legal estate in freeholds and leaseholds will pass to the administrators when appointed, under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, Pt. I. If one of two or more trustees disclaims, the others take the legal estate, also the powers and authorities requisite for the administration of the trust. The disclaimer must be absolute, and is irrevocable.(e)

A power may be disclaimed.

Under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 156, a person to whom any power, whether coupled with an interest or not, is given, may by deed disclaim the power, and on such disclaimer the power may be exercised by the other or others, or the survivors or survivor of the others, of the persons to whom it is given. But the statutory powers conferred on a tenant for life are not capable of assignment or release: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 104. This does not prevent a tenant for life from disclaiming his life interest and so losing his powers.

SECT. V.—The appointment of new trustees, the discharge of trustees, and the powers conferred by statute for these purposes.

Provisions in Trustee Act as to appointment of new or additional trustees.

The T. Act, 1925, ss. 35–40, contain provisions with respect to the appointment of new or additional trustees. These provisions apply to and include trustees for the purposes of the (e) Semble, the dictum to the contrary of Swinfen Eady, J., in Re Young, supra, cannot be accepted.

S. L. Act, whether appointed by the court or by the settlement, or under provisions contained in the settlement: ib., s. 64. Under that section the persons nominated to appoint new trustees of the settlement will, after 1925, be the persons to appoint new or additional trustees, though the S. L. Act trustees were originally appointed by the court.

Appointment of S. L. Act trustees.

Before 1926, if S. L. Act trustees had been appointed by the court, their successors were rightly treated as the persons having power to appoint trustees in their place. In some cases this practice was ignored and S. L. Act trustees were expressed to be appointed by the person nominated by the settlement to appoint new trustees for other purposes. Such appointments, though obviously unauthorised, are confirmed, subject to any orders of the court: ib., s. 64.

Increase of number.

The number of trustees may be increased: s. 37 (1) (a), provided that the number is not in the case of settlements and dispositions on trust for sale of land made to exceed four: ib., s. 34. An additional trustee can now be appointed where there is no vacancy: s. 36 (6), subject to the restrictions as to number. This in effect over-rules Re Gregson (1887), 34 Ch. D. 209; 56 L. J. Ch. 286. Under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30 (3), where a sole personal representative (not being a trust corporation), becomes a S. L. Act trustee, he is bound to appoint an additional trustee to act with him unless he retires, and new trustees are appointed in his place.

Trustees dying before testator and trustees who disclaim or retire.

The provisions relating to a dead trustee apply where a trustee dies in a testator's lifetime, and the provisions relating to a continuing trustee apply to a refusing or retiring trustee if willing to appoint: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (8).(f)

Representatives of last surviving or sole trustee.

Where the representatives of a last surviving or sole trustee act, they are ousted immediately the donees of a power of appointing new trustees exercise their power: Re Routledge [1909], 1 Ch. 280; 78 L. J. Ch. 136. The acting personal representatives of a sole or last surviving trustee may act in the trust until new trustees are appointed: T. Act, 1925, s. 18; S. L. Act, 1925, s. 34 (2). These provisions (relating to survivorship of trusts), taken with T. Act, 1925, ss. 36 (7), 43, render it undesirable to define "the trustees" as including the survivor of them or the representatives of the survivor or other the trustees or trustee for the time being of the trust instrument.

Definition unnecessary.

(f) Re Norris (1884), 27 Ch. D. 333; 53 L. J. Ch. 913; Re Coates to Parsons (1886), 34 Ch. D. 370; 56 L. J. Ch. 242.

Number of trustees.

If, before 1926, there were more than four trustees for sale or S. L. Act trustees, they can continue to act, but after 1925 the number must not be increased beyond four: T. Act, 1925, s. 34. This restriction does not apply to charity trustees.

Separate appointments of trustees for sale.

Where trusts of the proceeds of sale of land are declared by a separate instrument to that whereby the trust for sale is created (e.g., by a Will and an Assent on trust for sale, or by a personalty settlement and a conveyance on trust for sale), there must be separate appointments of new trustees of each instrument: T. Act, 1925, s. 35 (1). One relates to the equitable interests, namely, the proceeds of sale, and the other to the legal estate, but the same persons must be appointed of both instruments: ib. This merely gives statutory confirmation to a practice which has been in force for many years.

Protection of purchasers.

Though the persons having power to appoint new trustees of a conveyance or assent on trust for sale are bound to appoint the same persons (if any) who are the trustees of the settlement of the proceeds, a purchaser is not concerned to see that the proper persons are appointed trustees of the land: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 24. This is another thread in the curtain masking the equitable interests.

Memorandum of appointment endorsed.

To keep the history up to date, when a new trustee (including an additional trustee: T. Act, 1925, s. 68 (17)) of a conveyance or assent on trust for sale is appointed, a memorandum stating who are for the time being the trustees for sale will be endorsed on the conveyance or assent relating to the legal estate: ib., s. 35 (3).

Appointment of S. L. Act trustees.

When new S. L. Act trustees are appointed of the settlement (e.g., the deed, Will or compound settlement, &c., declaring the trusts), there will be no separate appointment of S. L. Act trustees of the vesting instrument (relating to the legal estate); instead there will be a deed declaring who are the S. L. Act trustees for the time being: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 35; this also applies when a trustee is discharged without a new appointment: ib.

Memorandum on vesting instrument.

On all such occasions there will be a memorandum on the principal vesting instrument stating who are the existing S. L. Act trustees, giving their names and addresses: ib.; T. Act, 1925, s. 35 (2).

Protection of purchasers.

A purchaser can rely on the statements contained in a deed declaring who are the existing S. L. Act trustees: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 110 (2) (e). He can also rely on the original statement in the vesting instrument: ib., s. 110 (2) (b).

Appointments in place of infants.

An infant can no longer act as a trustee or personal representative: L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 19 (4)–(6), 20; 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 7 (g), Pt. III, paras. 3 and 4; Jud. Act, 1925, s. 165. Express power is now given to appoint new trustees in place of an infant: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1).

Presumption.

There is now a presumption that the parties to a conveyance are of full age: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 15.

Appointment in place of trustee removed.

If a trustee is removed under a power in a trust instrument (" instrument " in T. Act, 1925, includes a statute: ib., s. 68 (5)), the powers apply as if he were dead or in the case of a corporation desired to be discharged: ib., s. 36 (2).

Appointment in place of Public Trustee.

Under L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (4) (iii) (as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.), the persons entitled to more than a moiety " may appoint new trustees in place of the Public Trustee "; this is not strictly a case of " removal," the Public Trustee ex hypothesi has not been requested to act and has not consented to act. It is an independent express power, and on the exercise thereof, the land by the Act itself (as amended) vests in the new trustees on the statutory trusts.

Appointment of self.

The appointors can appoint themselves, the power does not refer to " other persons," cf., T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1).

Dissolution of corporation.

If a corporation is dissolved it becomes incapable of acting, and the statutory power becomes exercisable: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (3); as to vesting orders: ib., ss. 44 (ii) (c), 51 (1) (ii) (c). The court has power to re-create a legal estate which determines by reason of the dissolution: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 181. The possibility that a fee simple may determine by reason of the dissolution does not prevent it being a legal estate: ib., s. 7 (2).

Acting executors.

Acting executors can exercise a power to appoint new trustees without the concurrence of an executor who has renounced or has not proved: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (4).

Renouncing executors.

Executors intending to renounce can also appoint new trustees without accepting the executorship: ib., s. 36 (5).

Additional trustees.

Where a trust corporation is not acting and there are not more than three trustees, additional trustees can be appointed under ib., s. 36 (6), though there is no vacancy in the trust. There may be a question whether the persons nominated to appoint new trustees could, under this sub-section, appoint themselves as additional trustees, for the words " whether or not being the persons exercising the power " which occur in sub-s. (1), have not been inserted.

Separate trustees as to distinct trusts.

Separate sets of trustees may be appointed for the purposes of distinct trusts : ib., s. 37 (1) (b), but a sole trustee, not being a trust corporation, must not be appointed unless when appointed he will, see the restrictions in L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2) (as amended), and in S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 94, 95, be able to give valid receipts for capital : T. Act, 1925, s. 37 (2) ; nor can a trustee be discharged unless there will be either a trust corporation or at least two individuals left to act : ib., s. 37 (1) (c). The meaning of " trust corporation " has been extended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 3.

Appointment of sole trustee.

Restriction on discharge of a trustee.

Evidence of vacancy.

Recitals showing, in certain cases, that there is vacancy in the trusteeship are made conclusive in favour of a purchaser: T. Act, 1925, s. 38.

Retirement without a new appointment.

The retirement of a trustee without an appointment of a new trustee is provided for by ib., s. 39.

Implied vesting declarations.

Implied vesting declarations on the appointment or discharge of a trustee are provided for by ib., s. 40. This also removes certain doubts as to the validity of vesting declarations made under T. Act, 1893, s. 12. Vesting declarations (express or implied) generally transfer legal estates : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 9.

Stamp.

At present the Inland Revenue do not demand an additional 10s. stamp on an implied vesting declaration, but where this practice is relied on the stamp should be adjudicated.

Registered land.

Effect will be given on the register to vesting declarations express or implied : L. R. Act, 1925, ss. 82 (1) (g), 103.

Additional statutory powers to appoint new trustees.

In addition to the powers to appoint new or additional trustees given to persons by T. Act, 1925, ss. 36 and 37, or to the court, attention should be drawn to the following special powers or provisions :—

Undivided shares in proceeds of sale.

(1) Persons absolutely entitled in undivided shares to proceeds of sale of land may require the land to be conveyed to not more than four of themselves on trust for sale : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3 (1) (b) (ii) proviso.

Trustees for infant.

(2) Trustees for sale, when effecting a partition, can constitute themselves trustees for sale of land held for an infant : ib., s. 28 (4).

Dispositions in undivided shares or to joint tenants.

(3) Dispositions in undivided shares or to joint tenants (not of settled land or charity land) create trustees for sale : ib., ss. 34–36 ; 1st Sch., Pt. IV ; S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36.

Parents or guardian of infant beneficiary (additional trustee).

(4) Where a legal estate formerly vested in an infant and others, becomes vested in one person as trustee, and no other person is able and willing to do so, the parents or guardian of the infant may appoint an additional trustee: L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. III, para. 2, proviso.

In place of Public Trustee (infant's estate).

(5) Where a legal estate held by an infant in a fiduciary capacity or as mortgagee vests in the Public Trustee, and no other person is able and willing to make the appointment, the parents or guardians may appoint new trustees in place of the Public Trustee: ib., para. 3 (i). They can also do so in the case of settled land: S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch. para. 3 (1) (iv).

Infant's trust or mortgage estate.

(6) Where an infant's trust or mortgage estate becomes vested in a sole co-trustee or mortgagee, and no other person is able and willing to do so, the parents or guardians may appoint new trustees in place of the infant: L. P. Act, 1925, para. 4 (b) proviso.

In place of Public Trustee (settled land).

(7) Where settled land held in undivided shares becomes (for want of S. L. Act trustees) vested in the Public Trustee, the persons having power under the settlement to appoint new trustees can appoint trustees in place of the Public Trustee: ib., Pt. IV, para. 3 (v).

In place of Public Trustee (land held in undivided shares).

(8) Where, for any other reason, land, held in undivided shares, vests in the Public Trustee, the persons interested in more than an undivided half of the land or the income thereof may appoint new trustees in place of the Public Trustee, with the consent of any incumbrancers of undivided shares: ib., para. 4 (iii).

Infant's property under a Will or intestacy.

(9) Where under a Will or on an intestacy an infant becomes entitled to property not given to trustees, then the personal representatives may appoint a trust corporation, or two or more individuals not exceeding four, to be trustees of the property: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 42.

Discharge of trustees.

Independently of any statute, a trustee may apply to the court to be discharged from the trust, but he will have to pay the costs of the action unless he can show that circumstances have arisen which alter the nature of his duties.(g) The representative of a deceased sole trustee may decline to act, and will be entitled to the costs of any proceedings for the appointment of a new trustee.(h) It is conceived that this is not affected by T. Act, 1925, s. 18, for that section only gives a power for the representative to act. In such cases there can be no objection to the personal representatives of the deceased trustee themselves appointing new trustees.

Personal representative refusing to act as trustee.

Where one of two trustees disclaims, the other may retire and appoint trustees.

Under the statutory power, a retiring trustee, being one of two originally appointed, may appoint a trustee in his own place, the other having previously disclaimed ;(i) but he must appoint a trust corporation, or at least two trustees, if a sole trustee would not have power to give receipts for capital : T. Act, 1925, s. 37 (2).

Meaning of "acting trustees."

Under the old law, where an express power to appoint new trustees was given to the "acting trustees for the time being," it was held that the co-heiresses of the last surviving trustee came within this description, the mere fact of their making the appointment being sufficient to constitute them "acting trustees" ;(j) but representatives can appoint new trustees without accepting the trust.

Beneficiary may be appointed.

A person beneficially interested, including a tenant for life under a settlement, may be appointed a new trustee, unless the instrument shows an intention to the contrary.(k)

Donee may appoint himself.

An appointment of the donee himself, or one of the donees, is now generally proper : T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1), see the words "whether or not being the persons exercising the power."(l)

Appointment of self.

A similar power to appoint the donees, or any of them, is given to personal representatives when appointing trustees of infant's property : Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 42. Whether a person nominated to appoint new trustees can appoint himself as an additional trustee under T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (6), apart from some express provision, is perhaps still doubtful. If the nominee refused to exercise the power it would not prevent the trustees from appointing him to act with them.

Solicitor or husband.

Appointments by the donee of his solicitor, or of the husband of the donee, are good, though not being appointments which the court would generally make.(m)

Consent of assign of tenant for life not necessary.

If a tenant for life with a power to appoint new trustees sells or mortgages his life interest, the consent of the purchaser or mortgagee to an exercise of the power is not necessary.(n)

Surviving trustee cannot appoint special executor for purpose of statutory power.

A sole surviving trustee of a Will cannot by his own Will appoint (besides general executors) a special executor for the purpose of carrying on the trusts of the first Will, so as to make such special executor the personal representative of the first testator for the purpose of the statutory power: Re Parker [1894], 1 Ch. 707; 63 L. J. Ch. 316. But a tenant for life of settled land can appoint the S. L. Act trustees to be his special executors as respects such land, and in default of such an appointment, he will be deemed to have done so: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 22.

Special executors o settled land.

Trustee becoming bankrupt or lunatic.

The statutory power can be exercised in case of the bankruptcy (o) or lunacy (p) of a trustee. But where a lunatic trustee is entitled in possession to some beneficial interest in the trust property, a new trustee cannot be appointed in his place under T. Act, 1925, s. 36, without the leave of the Judge or Master in Lunacy: ib., sub-s. (9). For instance, under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 19 (2), or 1st Sch., Pt. III, para. 2, his beneficial legal estate might have become vested in other persons who were antagonistic. A purchaser, however, will be protected if the appointment states that the lunatic was "not entitled to a beneficial interest in the trust property in possession": T. Act, 1925, s. 38 (1).

Appointment in place of lunatic beneficiary.

Bodies Corporate (Joint Tenancy) Act, 1899.

Under the Bodies Corporate (Joint Tenancy) Act, 1899, a corporate body can be appointed to act jointly with an individual: Re Thompson [1905], 1 Ch. 229; 74 L. J. Ch. 133. The court has power to authorise a trust corporation to charge for its services when the appointment is made by the court: T. Act, 1925, s. 42.

Expense of appointments.

The expense of the appointment of new trustees must generally be borne by the trust estate: see Lewin, 12th ed., 831.

Power for court to appoint new trustees.

Whenever it is expedient to appoint a new trustee, and it is found inexpedient, difficult, or impracticable so to do without the assistance of the court, the court may, under the T. Act, 1925, s. 41, make an order for the appointment of a new trustee on the doctrine that the donee of a power could not derogate from his own grant, i.e., might not take away what he had already granted (Alexander v. Mills (1870), L. R. 6 Ch. 124; 40 L. J. Ch. 73), and never applied to a power of appointing new trustees: Hardaker v. Moorhouse (1884), 26 Ch. D. 417; 53 L. J. Ch. 713; cf. Re Bedingfeld & Herring [1893], 2 Ch. 332, 337. Now a tenant for life, so far as regards a purchaser of the settled land, has not got to show that the assignee of the life interest has consented to the exercise of any of the statutory powers: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 104.

or new trustees, either in substitution for or in addition to any existing trustee or trustees, or although there is no existing trustee, and may (ss. 44 to 56) make any orders vesting property subject to the trust in the trustees: Re Albert Road, Norwood [1916], 1 Ch. 289; 85 L. J. Ch. 187. A vesting order can now be made (ss. 44 and 51), whether or not the new trustee is appointed by the court. An administrator who has cleared the intestate's estate becomes a trustee of the residue, and the court may appoint another trustee to act with him: Re Ponder [1921], 2 Ch. 59; 90 L. J. Ch. 426; cf. Pollock v. Ennis (1921), 1 Ir. R. 181.

S. L. Act trustees.

As regards settled land, the court has power to appoint trustees for the purposes of the S. L. Act, whenever there are no such trustees, or it is otherwise expedient that new trustees should be appointed: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 34. Where a trust corporation is appointed sole trustee, capital money can be paid to it: ib., ss. 94, 95.(q)

Trustees of compound settlements.

Having regard to S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 30 to 33, and to the amendment of s. 31 (L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.), under which, if there are no S. L. Act trustees of the prior instrument, the trustees of the instrument creating the life interest will (until a new appointment is made) be the trustees of the compound settlement, it will seldom be necessary to apply to the court for the appointment of trustees.

Where the trust property is being administered in court power remains exercisable subject to supervision of court.

Where there is an administration action, the order does not take away the power to appoint new trustees conferred by the instrument or by statute, but the donee can only exercise it subject to the supervision of the court; if he nominates a fit person, the court will not nominate someone else because it may prefer the latter. If the donee nominates a person whom the court does not think fit and proper, the court will not itself make the appointment, but will call on the donee to make a new one.(r) same into court, and thus discharge themselves of their trust: 2 Wolst. & Cherry's Conv. Statutes, 11th ed. Under s. 68 the expression "securities" includes stocks, funds, and shares and, so far as relates to payment into court, has the same meaning as in Jud. Act, 1925, Pt. VI.

In what cases trustees are justified in paying money into court.

A trustee may avail himself of the above power whenever there is any reasonable doubt as to the person beneficially entitled to the fund, and will in such case be allowed the costs of the payment into court and also his costs on the application for obtaining it out of court;(t) but if a trustee pays the fund into court when there is no reasonable doubt as to the title of the persons claiming it, or under other circumstances which, in the opinion of the court, render such a course unnecessary and vexatious, he will not only be refused his own costs of the application by the party entitled for the payment of the fund out of court, but will also be ordered to pay the costs of the applicant;(u) nor will a trustee be justified in paying money into court under the Act after notice of the intention of the beneficiary to bring an action to have the accounts taken: Re Waring (1852), 16 Jur. 652; 21 L. J. Ch. 784.

Payment into court discouraged.

In view of the indemnities given by T. Act, 1925, ss. 26 to 30, and in particular of the extension of the power (formerly only exercisable by personal representatives) to advertise for claims, it is conceived that the court will not encourage trustees to pay money into court. The power given by Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 42, to appoint trustees of infants' property, will still further reduce the number of cases when money can, with propriety, be paid into court. Compensation money for land taken under compulsory powers will seldom be paid into court: L. P. Act, 1925, sub-s. 42 (7).

Where a fund was held in trust for A. for life, with remainder in trust for such person as A. should by deed or Will appoint, and in default of appointment in trust for B., and after the death of A. his solicitor wrote to the trustee that there was no ground for supposing that he ever made an appointment, it was held that the trustee ought to have been satisfied with the evidence, and was not justified in paying the money into court.(v)

When money given to a married woman may be paid into court.

Formerly a trustee having in his hands money belonging absolutely to a married woman (not as her separate property) was not bound to pay it to her husband upon the joint request of both, but might pay it into court, so as to give her the opportunity of asserting her equity to a settlement.(w) But where, under the M. W. P. Act, 1882, the money is her separate property, it must be paid to her.

Policy money may be paid into court.

Money payable by an assurance company under a life policy may be paid into court if, in the opinion of the directors, no sufficient discharge can otherwise be obtained: Life Assurance, &c., Act, 1896, s. 3.

Disputed debt.

The L. P. Act, 1925, s. 136, after making an absolute assignment (see Bowles v. Baker (1910), W. N. 110) of a debt or thing in action, of which express notice has been given, effectual to pass the legal right to such debt, &c., provides that if the debtor, trustee, or other person liable in respect of such debt, &c., shall have had notice that the title to such debt, &c., is disputed, he may either call upon the parties to interplead or pay the money into court.

As to money deposited with banker.

A banking company having received notice of conflicting claims to money placed with them on deposit cannot pay such money into court; but if the money is paid in, and the person claiming it petitions for its payment out, he thereby recognises the payment, and cannot object to pay the costs incidental thereto: Re Sutton (1879), 12 Ch. D. 175; 48 L. J. Ch. 350.

Prior breaches of trust.

The payment of a trust fund into court does not protect the trustees from responsibility in respect of prior breaches of trust: A.-G. v. Alford (1855), 4 D. M. & G. 843.

Originating summons.

By the R. S. C., 1883, O. 55, the personal representatives of a deceased person, and the trustees under any deed or instrument, may take out an originating summons, in the Chancery Division, for the determination of any question arising in the administration of the estate or trust.(x) any testamentary disposition, on his personal representatives in like manner and with the like incidents as if the same were a chattel real. But where a tenant for life is the trustee of the legal estate in settled land, representation, specially limited to that land, will on his death be granted to the S. L. Act trustees unless they renounce: Jud. Act, 1925, s. 162; Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 22; see Re Dalley (1926), 70 Sol. J. 839.

Where, by reason of the death, the land ceases to be settled land, and the former S. L. Act trustees have no capital money, they can be properly asked to renounce.

Devolution of powers and trusts.

Under the T. Act, 1925, s. 18, powers and trusts in respect of any property vested in two or more trustees are exercisable by the survivors and survivor of them. Until (y) the appointment of new trustees, they are exercisable by the personal representatives (i.e., the executors, original or by representation or administrator, but not executors who have renounced or not proved: sub-s. 4) of the last surviving or of a sole trustee.

Duty of bare trustee.

If a bare trustee refuses to convey land to a beneficiary solely and absolutely entitled to the entirety when requested so to do, he will have to pay the costs of any action commenced against him to compel a conveyance.(z) But if there remains in the trustee any purpose unperformed for which the legal estate is vested in him, he is, subject to the exception stated in L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3 (1) (b) (ii) proviso, entitled to refuse to execute any conveyance until those purposes are fully performed. Trustees for sale are, however, bound to give effect to the directions of the persons interested in the proceeds of sale: ib., ss. 3, 23, 26 (3), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. Also personal representatives must not postpone making an assent merely on account of a claim for duties, &c.: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 36 (10), and in the meantime should give possession to the beneficiary: ib., s. 43.

Power for court to make vesting orders.

Wider powers are now given by T. Act, 1925, ss. 44 to 56, to the court to make orders vesting the land or the right to transfer or call for a transfer of the stock or appointing some person to make such conveyance or transfer.(a) The effect of vesting orders in relation to a legal estate in land is stated in L. P. Act, 1925, s. 9. A vesting order operating as a disentailing assurance

And by way of relief against forfeiture in favour of an underlessee, including a chargee by way of legal mortgage: ib., s. 146 (4).

As to Title Deeds.

Right of trustees to retain title deeds.

Right of beneficiaries to inspect.

Trustees, other than bare trustees, but including tenants for life and statutory owners who have now become the trustees of the legal estate in settled land, have the right to retain title deeds which have been delivered to them by the settlor or have otherwise come into their hands,(b) but the beneficiaries have a right to inspect and take copies at any time: Ex p. Holdsworth (1838), 4 Bing. N. C. 386; 7 L. J. C. P. 225. This extends to a person interested in the proceeds of sale, in the absence of special circumstances: Re Cowin (1886), 33 Ch. D. 179; 56 L. J. Ch. 78; indeed a right to proceeds of sale is now treated as an "equitable interest" in land: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (x). Even under the old law a legal tenant for life had a right to the custody of the deeds, unless he had been guilty of misconduct so that the safety of the deeds was endangered, or there was a pending action relating to the property, and it was more convenient for the purposes of the action that they should be in court.(c)

Tenant for life.

Tenants for life and statutory owners, as holding the legal estate in settled land, are entitled to the documents relating to the title of the legal estate. The S. L. Act trustees are not liable in any way on account of any vesting instrument or other documents of title relating to the settled land (other than securities for capital money) being placed in the possession of the tenant for life or statutory owner; but in certain cases they must, before they deliver the documents to him, endorse notice of the principal vesting instrument on one of the documents of title: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 98 (3).

Protection of S. L. Act trustees.

documents be handed over to the S. L. Act trustees, who will thenceforth exercise the powers in his name: ib., s. 24 (1).

Personal representatives.

Where, pending an assent, the legal estate in the settled land is vested in personal representatives, they will be entitled to the deeds.

Rights of remainderman.

Any person entitled to a vested remainder may require the tenant for life to produce the title deeds for the remainderman's inspection, in order to enable him to dispose of or otherwise deal with his interest in the property.(d) It has been held that this right did not extend to a person entitled to a contingent remainder: Noel v. Ward (1816), 1 Madd. 322; it is conceived that this decision would not be followed at the present day, though every remainderman can only have an equitable interest. Under the old law an equitable tenant for life in possession to whom the deeds had been delivered might retain them as against the trustees: Taylor v. Sparrow (1863), 4 Giff. 703; as between an equitable tenant for life and the trustees, the court would, as a general rule, for the purpose of enabling him to exercise his statutory powers, order the deeds, including appointments of new trustees, to be delivered to the former on his undertaking not to part with them without the consent of the trustees, and to produce them upon all reasonable occasions.(e) After 1925 such an undertaking will not be required. The result, in practice, was that the tenant for life of land, whether legal or equitable, obtained the custody of the deeds without any application to the court, and where they were held by solicitors who acted for both parties the deeds are treated as being in the legal custody of the tenant for life. The guardians of an infant tenant for life were the proper persons to keep the title deeds,(f) but after 1925 the deeds must be given either to the personal representatives or to the S. L. Act trustees in whom the legal estate may be vested: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 26; see also s. 23 if the infant only has a defeasible or contingent interest.

Equitable tenant for life entitled to custody of deeds on terms under the old law.

Minority.

Trustee could not require co-trustee to place certain deeds at bank.

Unless there were special circumstances, a trustee was not entitled to have title deeds and non-negotiable securities removed

Act, 1925, ss. 7, 68 (13); and trustees now have power to deposit documents at a bank, &c., for safe custody and to pay the costs, if any, out of income.

Renewal of Lease by Trustee or Tenant for Life.

Renewal of lease by trustee or tenant for life enures for the benefit of the trust.

If a trustee accepts a renewal of a lease, whether or not by virtue of a right of renewal,(g) he must hold the new lease for the benefit of the trust. For this purpose it is considered as engrafted on and as forming part of the old lease; the rule applies to every person who in respect of the old lease occupies some special position by virtue whereof he owes a duty to the other persons interested, e.g., a tenant for life, or a partner, or a mortgagee.(h) But if, in the case of a lease to which no right of renewal is attached, the person renewing is in no sense in a fiduciary position, but is merely one of two or more persons interested in the old lease, the rule does not apply: Re Biss [1903], 2 Ch. 40; 72 L. J. Ch. 473.

How far doctrine applies to purchase of reversion.

The doctrine that a renewal of leaseholds by a tenant for life enures for the benefit of the settled estate sometimes applies to a purchase of the freehold reversion.(i) It only applied to leaseholds which were renewable by custom or contract. If the trustee of a lease which is not thus renewable buys the reversion he may, in the absence of fraud, hold it for his own benefit: Bevan v. Webb [1905], 1 Ch. 620; 74 L. J. Ch. 300.

Abolition of perpetually renewable leases.

This matter has ceased to be of any importance where the lease was perpetually renewable, for it is now converted either into a fee simple (if it belonged to a copyholder) or into a long term: L. P. Act, 1922, s. 145, 15th Sch.; 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 52, 89–106.

Acceptance of leases.

A tenant for life has power to accept a lease: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 53, hence trustees for sale and personal representatives can do so also: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28; Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 39.

Constructive trustee entitled to be recouped expenditure.

If a tenant for life or other person has purchased land under circumstances which make him a constructive trustee, he is entitled to be recouped any expenditure incurred by him in improvements: Rowley v. Ginnever [1897], 2 Ch. 503; 66 L. J. Ch. 669.

Trustees' Costs.

Trustee cannot charge for professional services.

It is an established rule that, apart from express directions, a trustee or personal representative shall have no allowance for his care and trouble: Robinson v. Pett (1734), 3 P. Wms. 249; hence a trustee who is a solicitor is only entitled to be repaid costs out of pocket, he cannot charge the trust estate for his professional services.(j) The rule equally applies where the trustee is a member of a firm of solicitors, and the business is done by the firm;(k) and it applies to all professional persons, and not to solicitors only: Matthison v. Clarke (1854), 3 Drew. 3; 24 L. J. Ch. 202. It does not, however, apply to the Public Trustee, and the court has power, when appointing a trust corporation, to authorise the trust corporation to charge: T. Act, 1925, s. 42.

Solicitor trustee preparing a lease must account to trust estate for costs received from lessee.

In accordance with the above rule, if a solicitor trustee and his firm make profit costs by preparing leases, which costs are paid by the tenants, the solicitor must account to the trust estate for the costs thus received: Re Corsellis (1887), 34 Ch. D. 675; 56 L. J. Ch. 294.

Solicitor trustee may employ partner, if the latter takes the whole profit.

But a solicitor trustee may employ his partner to act in any business relating to the trust, and may pay him the usual charges, provided that it has been expressly agreed between them that the partner so employed shall take the whole profit.(l)

Exception to general rule established by Cradock v. Piper, applies only to proceedings in Court.

An exception to the general rule that a solicitor trustee is only entitled to costs out of pocket has been established by the case of Cradock v. Piper: (1850), 1 Mac. & G. 664; 19 L. J. Ch. 107; see Re Corsellis, supra; where it was decided that when a solicitor or his firm appears in an action on behalf of himself and a co-trustee, and the expense is not thereby increased, then the solicitor or his firm is entitled to the usual costs. The exception is an anomaly, and was not extended to a solicitor mortgagee: Re Doody [1893], 1 Ch. 129; Re Roberts [1890], 43 Ch. D. 52; 59 L. J. Ch. 25.

Costs of solicitor mortgagee.

However, under the Mortgagees' Legal Costs Act, 1895, a solicitor mortgagee may, as regards mortgages made after June, 1895,(m) charge the usual remuneration for investigation of title and the preparation and completion of the mortgage; and, as regards all business transacted either before or after that date in relation to the security, may charge against the security the usual remuneration, except where costs have been disallowed and the time for appeal has passed.

Effect of clause authorising trustee to charge for professional services.

If the settlor merely authorises a trustee to retain his professional costs, he will be allowed to charge for everything which, if he had not been a solicitor, he would have been justified in employing a solicitor to do; he will not be allowed his charges for things which a trustee or personal representative ought to do without the intervention of a solicitor, such as for attendances to pay premiums on policies, attendances at the bank to make transfers, attendances on proctors, auctioneers, legatees, and creditors.(n)

Costs of collecting rents.

Apart from express agreement, solicitors are not entitled to charge a gross sum for collecting the rents of the trust estate: Re Shilson, Coode & Co. [1904], 1 Ch. 837; 73 L. J. Ch. 541.

Power to employ agents, &c.

But though no general power has been given for a professional trustee to charge, general powers have been conferred to employ and pay agents, and to delegate trusts during absence abroad: T. Act, 1925, ss. 23 and 25, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

New Supplementary Powers.

Attention should also be called to certain supplementary powers, not previously referred to.

Power to lend for term certain.

Trustees (including personal representatives) may contract not to call in money lent by them for a term not exceeding seven years, provided that the requirements of T. Act, 1925, s. 10 (1), are complied with.

(m) See Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie [1896], 1 Ch. 135; 65 L. J. Ch. 194; Day v. Kelland [1900], 2 Ch. 745; 70 L. J. Ch. 3; Cheese v. Keen [1908], 1 Ch. 245; 77 L. J. Ch. 163.

Power to lend part of proceeds of sale.

Trustees (including tenants for life and statutory owners) on a sale of a fee simple or of a term having at least 500 years to run, may leave not more than two-thirds of the purchase money on a legal mortgage of the property without taking a valuers' report: ib., s. 10 (2).

Reconstruction, &c., of companies.

Trustees (including personal representatives) may concur in schemes for the reconstruction or amalgamation of companies, and accept new securities by way of exchange: ib., s. 10 (3).

Allotment letters, &c.

They can deal with allotment letters and conditional or preferential rights to subscribe as authorised by ib., s. 10 (4).

Reversionary interests, valuations, examination of accounts.

Special powers are given in relation to reversionary interests, the making of valuations and the examination of trust accounts by accountants by ib., s. 22.

Judicial Trustees.

The court may, on the application of any person creating or intending to create a trust or of a trustee or beneficiary, appoint a person (called a "judicial trustee") to be a trustee of that trust (and for this purpose the administration of the estate of a deceased person is to be deemed a trust), either in substitution for or in conjunction with any existing trustee or executor. Any fit person may be nominated, or the court, if not satisfied of the fitness of a person so nominated, may appoint an official of the court to be trustee. The judicial trustee acts under the direction of the court. He may receive remuneration, and his accounts are to be audited annually.(o)

The functions of judicial trustees are further defined by the Judicial Trustee Rules, 1897, 1899 and 1910. A person interested in an estate is not entitled as of right to the appointment of a judicial trustee, which is a matter entirely within the discretion of the court. Thus, where a reversioner under a Will applied for the appointment of a judicial trustee to act alone or jointly with the testator's widow, who was sole executrix and tenant for life, the application was refused as being against the wish of the executrix and the intention of the testator: Re Ratcliff [1898], 2 Ch. 352; 67 L. J. Ch. 562.

Number of personal representatives.

Under Judicature Act, 1925, s. 160 (replacing Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 10) representation will not be granted to more than four persons, and administration will, if a beneficiary is an infant, or there is a life interest, be granted either to a trust corporation or to not less than two individuals.

Power to appoint additional executor or administrator.

The court has power to appoint an additional executor or administrator during a minority or the subsistence of a life interest where there is a sole personal representative not being a trust corporation: ib., s. 160 (2).

Court not bound to appoint official, but can appoint the Public Trustee.

On the retirement of a judicial trustee the court, if not satisfied of the fitness of the person nominated by the applicant, is not bound to appoint an official, but may appoint a person suggested by the retiring trustee as his successor: Douglas v. Bolam [1900], 2 Ch. 749; 70 L. J. Ch. 1. The Court can appoint another person, including the Public Trustee, on the retirement of a judicial trustee: Re Johnston (1911), 105 L. T. 701.

The Public Trustee.

The Public Trustee.

By the Public Trustee Act, 1906, which came into operation in 1908, it was enacted:—

Establishment of the office.

S. 1. (1) There shall be established the office of public trustee.

(2) The public trustee shall be a corporation sole under that name with perpetual succession and an official seal, and may sue and be sued under the above name like any other corporation sole, but any instrument sealed by him shall not by reason of his using a seal be rendered liable to a higher stamp duty than if he were an individual.

The Public Trustee Rules, 1907, r. 3, definitely established the office: For these rules, see (1907), W. N. 329.

The Rules.

The Rules of 1907 have now been rescinded by the Rules of 1912: For these rules, see (1912), W. N. 173; and see 56 Sol. J. 299; and references to the Rules in this note mean the Rules of 1912, which came into operation on the 15th April, 1912, as varied by the Rules of 1925.

Deputies.

Rule 4 provides for the appointment of deputy public trustees (see also rr. 42 and 43).

Trust property.

The Public Trustee can hold trust property, whatever its nature may be: Re Leslie [1911], 1 Ch. 611; 80 L. J. Ch. 486; but as to the management and carrying on of businesses, see s. 2 (4) and r. 7.

Where the Public Trustee may act.

Section 2 (1) of the Act gives the Public Trustee a discretionary power to accept trusts and act:—

Small estates.

(a) In the administration of estates of small (p) value (see s. 3 and rr. 12–15).

(p) The value must be taken at the date of the application to the Public Trustee to act, not at the testator's death: Re Devereux [1911], 2 Ch. 545; 80 L. J. Ch. 705.

Custodian trustee.

(b) As custodian trustee. Under s. 4, where the Public Trustee accepts the office of custodian trustee, the property is to be vested in him, while the trustees appointed under the trust remain as managers. Rule 30 provided for the appointment of banking and other corporations as custodian trustees (q) provided that they did not represent that any liability attached to the Public Trustee or to Government funds. This rule has now been superseded by r. 1 of the Rules of 1925. It becomes of importance because bodies authorised to act as "custodian trustees" under the new rule are also capable of acting as "trust corporations": L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xxviii); S. L. Act, 1925, s. 117 (1) (xxx); Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 55 (1) (xxvi); T. Act, 1925, s. 68 (18); Jud. Act, 1925, s. 175 (1). The meaning of "trust corporation" has been extended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 3, but the additional bodies there referred to are not authorised to act as custodian trustees.

Ordinary trustee.

(c) As an ordinary trustee (see s. 5).

Judicial trustee.

(d) As judicial trustee: see Re Johnston (1911), 105 L. T. 701.

As administrator of convict.

(e) As administrator of the property of a convict under the Forfeiture Act, 1870.

Extension of powers by the Rules.

These powers are pursuant to the provisions of the Act, defined and, to an extent, extended by r. 6, under which the Public Trustee may accept:—

(a) Any trust created or declared by any trust instrument.

(b) As incident to a trust, the guardianship of an infant beneficiary or the office of agent or attorney.

(c) Probate or letters of administration of any kind and either as principal or agent. As administrator he is not required to give the usual bond (s. 11 (4)): In b. Woolley (1911), 55 Sol. J. 220.

(d) As custodian trustee, any trust created or declared by any trust instrument.

(e) Money or damages recovered or awarded on behalf of an infant may be paid to the Public Trustee under the R. S. C., Ord. 22, r. 15.

Appointment of the Public Trustee.

The Public Trustee may be appointed:—

(1) An administrator of small estates under £1,000 (r) in value on the application of any person who, in the opinion of the Public Trustee, would be entitled to apply for an administration order: s. 3 (1).

(q) See also 54 Sol. J. 735; Re Cherry [1914], 1 Ch. 83; 83 L. J. Ch. 142.

(r) I.e., under £1,000 at the date of the application to the Public Trustee to act and not at the testator's death: Re Devereux [1911], 2 Ch. 545; 80 L. J. Ch. 705.

Power to act as sole trustee.

(3) As ordinary trustee in the same manner and by the same persons or the court as if he were a private trustee : s. 5 (1). He may be appointed sole trustee, though the number of the original trustees may have been two or more : s. 5 (1), and was appointed sole trustee by the court in Re Leslie [1911], 1 Ch. 611 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 486, where the trust instrument provided that the number of trustees should not be reduced below three. In the same case Eve, J., stated : " It seems to me that in all cases to which the statutory power of appointing new trustees is applicable, that is to say, in all cases where the donee of the power can either appoint under s. 10 of the Act of 1893 [now T. Act, 1925, s. 36] or under the combined effect of that section and s. 5 of the Public Trustee Act, 1906, the settlement must be read as authorising the payment—in the event of the Public Trustee being appointed —of capital money to a sole trustee and as intending the giving to a sole trustee of notice." As being a " trust corporation " the Public Trustee can give receipts as a sole trustee for sale : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2), as amended ; and as a sole S. L. Act trustee can give receipts and accept notices : S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 94, 95, 101. Upon the appointment of the Public Trustee a co-trustee may retire under the T. Act, 1925, s. 39, notwithstanding that there are not more than two trustees and without the consents required by that section : Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 5. Further, after 1925, if any trust corporation is acting, the other trustees can be discharged under T. Act, 1925, s. 39, independently of the Public Trustee Act, 1906.

Power for other trustees to retire.

When order of court required.

Apart from an order of the court the Public Trustee cannot be appointed trustee of an instrument which prohibits his appointment : s. 5 (3). Notice of the proposed appointment of the Public Trustee must be given to the beneficiaries who can apply to the court to prohibit the appointment : s. 5 (4). Retiring trustees have been authorised by the court to appoint the Public Trustee notwithstanding an objection raised by one beneficiary.(s)

Notices to beneficiaries.

(s) Re Firth [1912], 1 Ch. 806 ; and see Re Kensit (1908), W. N. 235 ; Re Claremont (unreported), Annual Practice, p. 2305. The report of Re Hope-Johnstone (1909), 53 Sol. J. 321, is erroneous. No order was made, as Public Trustee may act jointly with other trustees or alone.

The Public Trustee may act jointly with other trustees or alone, and is in the same position as regards powers, duties and liabilities and the control of the court as a private trustee: s. 2 (2). As a general rule it is better that he should act alone; it saves costs. He is in no different position so far as regards binding his beneficiaries from that of a private trustee.(t)

Applications to Public Trustee.

Applications to the Public Trustee should be made to his London office in Kingsway, or to a branch office, e.g., in Manchester: r. 40.

Consent of Public Trustee to act.

Rule 8 enables a testator to appoint the Public Trustee to be trustee or custodian trustee of a Will without his previous consent, but the appointment does not take effect until the Public Trustee consents to act. It is, however, generally expedient to submit a draft of the Will to the Public Trustee, of which he is to act as executor, in case he may have suggestions to make thereon. The same rule makes it obligatory, where a co-trustee appointed by Will to act with the Public Trustee accepts office, upon such co-trustee to give notice of such appointment as soon as practicable to the Public Trustee. Except in the case of Wills no appointment of the Public Trustee can be made until his consent (u) has been obtained: r. 8 (2).

Production of documents.

Upon receiving an application to act as trustee or custodian trustee the Public Trustee can require the production of the trust instrument and such other particulars as he may think desirable: r. 9. If, after taking into consideration the matters mentioned in r. 10, he decides to act, he must accept the office in writing under his hand and official seal: r. 10.

Charitable trusts.

The Public Trustee is not bound to accept a trust, but he cannot refuse only on the ground of the small value of the trust property: s. 2 (3). He may not accept a trust exclusively for a religious or charitable purpose: s. 2 (5).(v) the trustees who had desired to retire agreed to continue to act. There were special circumstances in that case, the settlement having been made to protect the settlor, and there were wide discretionary trusts. Hence, the judge's remarks to the effect that members of the family, cognisant of all the circumstances, would be better able to carry out the trusts than a public official to whom it would be difficult to explain all the facts.

Foreign settlements.

The Public Trustee may not become trustee of any foreign settlement.(w)

General provisions.

Rules 16–29 contain general provisions as to the administration of trusts and estates.

Investigation and audit of trust accounts.

Provisions for the investigation and audit of trust accounts not under the jurisdiction of the Public Trustee are contained in s. 13 and rr. 31–37 ; see also T. Act, 1925, s. 22.

The application must be made to the Public Trustee (r. 31), who may require a deposit to be paid to cover costs (r. 32 (1)). Any trustee or beneficiary may apply, and the auditor must be a solicitor or public accountant agreed upon by the beneficiary and trustees, or, in default of agreement, the Public Trustee or some person appointed by him, but a beneficiary or trustee is not eligible : s. 13. The notices mentioned in r. 31 must be given. The applicants may be required to pay the costs of the audit : Re Utley (1912), 56 Sol. J. 518.

Appeals.

Where the Public Trustee makes an order in his judicial capacity, the parties have the right to appeal : s. 10 ; even as to costs of an audit : Re Oddy [1911], 1 Ch. 532 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 404.

Fees.

The general fees chargeable by the Public Trustee are prescribed by s. 9 and the Public Trustee (Fees) Order, 1925.(x)

The income fee payable in respect of life annuities, prescribed by r. 1, is payable out of those annuities and not out of residue : Re Bentley [1914], 2 Ch. 456 ; 84 L. J. Ch. 54.

The special fees (reduced scale) payable in respect of trusts, where, under the L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., or S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 3, land vests in him, are prescribed by the Public Trustee (Fees) Order, 1925. He can act as trustee when so requested, unless other trustees are appointed in his place.

State guarantee in respect of the Public Trustee and the position of his co-trustees.

Section 7 supplies a limited State guarantee against loss where the Public Trustee acts. It does not extend to persons acting in conjunction with the Public Trustee, and, as has been pointed out in 54 Sol. J. 261, 267, such persons are not expressly protected against loss occasioned by the acts or defaults of the Public Trustee and may remain liable to their beneficiaries to make good such loss. They may also possibly be in the unenviable position of being called upon by the Public Trustee to contribute towards the amount payable under the State guarantee.

(x) See Stat. R. & O., 1925, No. 1269/L47 ; 1926, W. N. 32, rescinding the Orders of 1917–1923.

It seems more probable that if the co-trustee takes no active part in the breach of trust the court would treat the Public Trustee as being on the same footing as if he were a solicitor trustee.

New rules. The Public Trustee Rules, 1925, were made to meet the case of land which became automatically vested in the Public Trustee by virtue of the vesting provisions in L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., and S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 3.

CHAPTER II.

THE LAW OF HUSBAND AND WIFE AS REGARDS THE WIFE'S PROPERTY AND CONTRACTS.

SECT. I.—The interest of a husband in his wife's property not within the M. W. P. Acts or given for her separate use.

Real estate.

BY the common law the husband was entitled to the rents and profits of his wife's real estate during their joint lives. He was also entitled, if he survived his wife, and there had been issue born alive of the marriage, to an interest during his life called an estate by the curtesy, in any freehold property to which the wife was entitled in possession at any time during the coverture, for an estate of inheritance descendable to such issue. Such an estate still gives the tenant the powers of a tenant for life: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20.

Abolition of estate by the curtesy.

Exceptions.

Subject to the exceptions below, estates by the curtesy have been abolished as to deaths after 1925 by L. P. Act, 1922, 12th Sch. (1) (d), as to enfranchised land, and by Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 45, as to land generally. But the husband of a wife entitled to an estate tail may still take an equitable interest by the curtesy under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130; and if the wife was a lunatic and of full age on 1st January, 1926, and dies without having recovered her testamentary capacity, the husband may still become entitled in equity to an estate by the curtesy under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 51 (2).

Conveyance by deed unacknowledged.

The husband and wife together can dispose of her freehold lands by deed, but it is no longer necessary that the deed should be acknowledged by her: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 167.

On what property curtesy attached under the old law.

Undivided shares.

The following points with respect to curtesy were settled:

(1) Curtsey attached to an undivided share of land held in coparcenary, or in common (land cannot be held in undivided shares after 1925), but not to land held in joint tenancy, nor to a reversion or remainder which did not fall into possession during the coverture: Co. Litt. 29.

Intervening estates.

(2) Where contingent remainders intervened between a limitation to a wife for life and a reversion to her in fee, the right of curtesy existed until the contingency happened: Boothby v. Vernon (1725), 9 Mod. 147.

(3) Curtesy attached to a right of redemption: Casborne v. Scarfe (1737), 1 Atk. 603; and to money directed to be laid out in the purchase of land: Cunningham v. Moody (1748), 1 Ves. Sen. 174; and to an equitable estate: Watts v. Ball (1758), 1 P. Wms. 108.

Right of redemption; capital money.

(4) Curtesy attached to land belonging to the wife for her separate use, if and so far as it was not disposed of by the wife in her lifetime or by her Will,(a) even where she took under a devise which took effect after her death under the Wills Act, 1837, s. 33.(b)

Separate property.

(5) Curtesy still attaches to land of which the wife is tenant in tail, provided that a child is born capable of taking under the entail, though the wife may eventually die without issue.

Estate tail.

(6) It also attached to land in which the wife had an estate of inheritance subject to an executory limitation over, provided that a child was born, and the wife's estate was such as, notwithstanding the executory limitation, might have descended to such child. Thus in a case where an estate was devised to a woman in fee, with an executory limitation over in case she died under twenty-one and without leaving issue; the devisee had a child, who died, then the mother died under twenty-one, and it was held that the husband was tenant by the curtesy.(c) But where there was a devise to A. in fee, and if she died leaving issue then to such issue, it was held that as the issue took as purchasers, and could not have taken by descent, there was no curtesy.(d)

Defeasible estate.

There was no curtesy in copyholds except by special custom: Gilb. Ten. 206.

Copyholds.

By the common law the husband was entitled to the rents and profits of his wife's chattels real during their joint lives, and he had an absolute power to dispose of them either voluntarily or for a valuable consideration, by act inter vivos; this power extended to reversionary and contingent interests, unless the interest was of such a nature that it could not possibly vest in the wife in possession during the coverture: Duberley v. Day (1852), 16 Beav. 33; 22 L. J. Ch. 99; but so far as this power was not exercised by a complete act during the coverture, they went to the survivor, without administration.(e) As a general rule on a devolution on death after 1925, save as between joint tenants, representation should be taken out as regards any interest in land: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 53 (2): see Re Dalley (1926), 70 Sol. J. 839.

Chattels personal and paraphernalia, old law.

By the common law the chattels personal of a wife belonged absolutely to the husband, so far as he obtained possession of them during the coverture. The wife's paraphernalia, viz., her wearing apparel and ornaments suitable to her condition in life, were a partial exception to this rule. These passed to the wife if she survived, but she could not give them away in her lifetime. The husband might dispose of them (except wearing apparel) (f) by an act inter vivos, but not by Will, and they were subject to his debts: 2 Steph. Com. 287.

Things in action, old law.

By the common law the husband acquired an absolute interest in his wife's things in action (which included debts owing to her, arrears of rent, legacies, reversionary interests in stocks, shares,(g) and other personal property not in possession), so far as they were reduced by him into possession during the coverture, but not otherwise. An assignment by the husband, even if made for a valuable consideration, of a reversionary interest in personalty or other thing in action of the wife, was void against her, if she survived him, unless he or his assignee had reduced it into possession.(h)

Wife's equity to a settlement.

The court would at any time before a thing in action of a married woman was paid, or transferred by a trustee in whose hands it was, oblige the husband to make a reasonable provision out of it for the wife and children. This right of the wife was called her equity to a settlement.(i) If money is in court it is no longer necessary before it is paid out that the married woman should be separately examined: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 167.

J. Ch. 353; or in money to arise from the sale of land impressed with a trust for sale,(j) and might also dispose of a reversionary interest and release the wife's equity to a settlement in or out of any personal estate to which the wife had become entitled under any instrument made after 1857 (except such interest in personal estate as might have been settled on her by any settlement, or agreement for a settlement, made on her marriage, and except also any interest which by the terms of the instrument she was restrained from alienating). These powers still hold good, but may be exercised without the deed being acknowledged: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 167.

dispose by deed acknowledged.

The Act of 1857 does not apply to a reversionary interest created by a Will made before 1857, and followed by a codicil made after that date but not affecting that particular bequest: Re Elcom [1894], 1 Ch. 303; 63 L. J. Ch. 392.

Case not within the Act of 1857.

Under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 169, the court may bind the interest of a married woman which she is restrained from anticipating or is unable to dispose of under the general law, including her reversionary interest under her marriage settlement; the court may also impound the interest of a married woman who has in writing instigated a breach of trust, though she is restrained from anticipation: T. Act, 1925, s. 62.

A married woman can by deed release a power of appointment among her children, though she has a prior life interest which she is restrained from anticipating.(k)

The marriage before 1883 of a female joint tenant severed the joint tenancy as regards any property which, by the mere act of marriage, vested in the husband, i.e., personal chattels in possession, but not as regards chattels real or things in action: Re Butler (1888), 38 Ch. Treated as two persons.

For the purpose of acquiring any interest in property after 1925, husband and wife are treated as two persons: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 37: 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., p. 191; see also Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46 (2).

SECT. II.—Trusts for the separate use of a married woman, with or without a restraint on anticipation.

Equitable doctrine of separate use.

Equity has always recognised the right of a married woman to the separate enjoyment of property where it has been given on trust for her separate use, or where the language of the instrument has shown the intention of the donor to be that she shall enjoy it independently of her husband. Where such a trust is created, the wife can dispose of the property which is the subject of it, whether consisting of real: Taylor v. Meads (1865), 4 D. J. & S. 597; 34 L. J. Ch. 203, or personal estate, and whether belonging to her in possession or reversion, as if she were a feme sole, and it was never necessary that the deed of disposition should be acknowledged.

If legal estate in land given to separate use of wife was vested in her, she could convey under Trustee Act.

If land was given before 1883 to a married woman in fee simple for her separate use so that she had the legal estate as well as the equitable separate estate, semble, upon a sale or mortgage, she could, under s. 16 of the T. Act, 1893, have conveyed the legal estate to the purchaser or mortgagee by an unacknowledged deed: Re Howgate and Osborn [1902], 1 Ch. 451; 71 L. J. Ch. 279. The contract and payment of the consideration money constituted her a bare trustee for the purchaser or mortgagee, and thus brought her within the operation of the section: Re Docwra (1885), 29 Ch. D. 693; 54 L. J. Ch. 1121. The difficulty was that, at law, the husband would have taken a joint life estate with the wife and a possible estate by the curtesy. Now any disposition by her after 1882 would be valid under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 170, reproducing M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 1, with amendments.

Restraint on anticipation.

A trust of the rents or income of real or personal property for the separate use of a married woman has been frequently accompanied by a clause imposing a restraint on anticipation. In that case her power is restricted to receiving the income as it becomes due, and she is, apart from the leave of the court under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 169, incompetent to make any disposition of, or to bind herself by admission : Bateman v. Faber [1898], 1 Ch. 144 ; 67 L. J. Ch. 130 ; in regard to the rents or income before they accrue due; but since M. W. P. Act, 1882, she may disclaim a legacy or other gift of personalty even though it is subject to a restraint on anticipation : Re Wimperis [1914], 1 Ch. 502 ; 83 L. J. Ch. 511 ; and before coverture she may modify the trusts in such a way as to evade the provisions restricting her power of anticipation : Re Chrimes [1917], 1 Ch. 30 ; 86 L. J. Ch. 217. Until 1882 she could not give a valid power of attorney to receive income : Kenrick v. Wood (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 333 ; 39 L. J. Ch. 92 ; nor could the court release the restriction, though it would be clearly for her benefit so to do.(l) The L. P. Act, 1925, s. 129, empowers a married woman by deed to appoint an attorney for the purpose of executing any deed or doing any act which she herself might do : See 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 347–48.

Married woman may appoint attorney.

Principles on which court will act in the exercise of the power to bind the interest of a married woman.

The power given to the court of dispensing with a restraint on anticipation will be exercised with caution. The first question on any application for this purpose is, whether it is for the benefit of the wife that it should be complied with. In determining this the court will balance the undoubted benefit of the restriction against anticipation against the alleged benefit of its removal. Thus, it will not remove the restraint in order to pay debts caused by the extravagance of the wife or her husband : Re Pollard [1896], 2 Ch. 552 ; 65 L. J. Ch. 796 ; nor in order to extend the scope of investments so as to give her a larger income : Re Blundell [1901], 2 Ch. 221 ; 70 L. J. Ch. 522 ; but it has done so to enable parents to start an only son in a profession by which he would cease to be dependent on them : Re Sawyer [1896], 1 Ir. R. 40. Even where the removal is for the wife's benefit, the court has a discretion whether it will make the order or not, and it refused to do so in a case where the object was to give effect to an arrangement of which the court, on other grounds, disapproved : Re Little (1889), 40 Ch. D. 418 ; 58 L. J. Ch. 233.

Under the Jud. Act, 1925, s. 192, the court may override a restraint on anticipation : Morgan v. Morgan and Kirby [1923], P. 1 ; 92 L. J. P. 8.

(l) Robinson v. Wheelwright (1855), 21 Beav. 214 ; 6 D. M. & G. 535 ; 25 L. J. Ch. 385 ; see Wilton v. Hill (1856), 25 L. J. Ch. 156.

Restraint on anticipation may be annexed to capital as well as income.

A restraint on anticipation may be annexed not only to a trust of income, but also to a limitation of the fee simple of land, or to an absolute gift of Consols or other personal property. The result of the cases on this subject may be thus stated :—

(1) If a legacy or share of residue is given to a married woman, or a trustee for her, " without power of anticipation," without any direction as to the payment or transfer of it to her, the testator will be supposed to intend that the executor shall retain and invest the capital, and pay the income to her, and the restraint will take effect :(m)

(2) If a legacy or share of residue is directed to be paid or transferred to a married woman " without power of anticipation," such a direction negatives any right in the executor or trustee to retain the money, and the restraint on anticipation is repugnant and void :(n)

(3) If the gift is reversionary, the restraint on anticipation takes effect until it falls into possession ; and whether it remains in force afterwards depends on whether the language of the trust instrument brings the case under (1) or (2) :(o)

(4) Where the restraint is imposed on an estate in fee simple the land formerly became unsaleable : Bates v. Kesterton [1896], 1 Ch. 159 ; 65 L. J. Ch. 108, till the court made an order removing the restraint.

Fee simple, &c., with a restraint.

Now a married woman entitled to a fee simple or term of years in land with a restraint on anticipation has the powers of a tenant for life : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20 (1) (x) ; the limitation or trust creates a settlement : ib., s. 1 (1) (iv), and the land is " settled land " ; hence a vesting instrument must be made in her favour : ib., s. 13, in which S. L. Act trustees are nominated, and she can then make a title.

Can only attach to separate property.

A restraint on anticipation contained in an instrument dated or coming into operation before 1883 is of no effect, unless the income to which it applies is given expressly or by necessary implication to the married woman for her separate use: Stogdon v. Lee [1891], 1 Q. B. 661; 60 L. J. Q. B. 669.

Can only attach to shares of legatees born in testator's lifetime.

A restraint on anticipation imposed by a testator on the shares of his daughter's children is only valid as to the shares of the children born in the testator's lifetime: Re Game [1907], 1 Ch. 276; 76 L. J. Ch. 168.

Effect of rule as to perpetuities on restraint.

Moreover, in imposing a restraint on anticipation, care must be taken that the restraint should cease after the expiration of lives in being and twenty-one years.

Does not apply to income already due.

A restraint on anticipation does not prevent a disposition of income already due but not actually paid: Hood-Barrs v. Heriot [1896], A. C. 174; 65 L. J. Q. B. 352; but a judgment cannot be enforced against income, to which the restraint applies, accruing due after the date of the judgment;(p) nor against arrears due at the date of the judgment, if the restraint existed at the date of the contract: Wood v. Lewis [1914], 3 K. B. 73.

A gift for separate use without the intervention of trustees makes husband a trustee.

Where money or other property has in fact been given to the separate use of a wife without the intervention of trustees, and has been paid or transferred to the husband, the separate trust remains attached to it unless and until it is shown, or can be inferred from the circumstances, that she has assented to its being freed from that trust. Such an inference will be made if the husband, with the acquiescence of the wife, uses the money in trade or in his family expenditure.(q) But where a married woman, to whom a legacy has been given, received from the executor a country cheque which she indorsed and handed over to her husband, whose bankers received it and by his direction placed the money to his deposit account, it was held on the evidence that the wife did not intend to give the cheque to her husband, and that it was still her separate estate: Green v. Carlill (1877), 4 Ch. D. 882; 46 L. J. Ch. 477. The burden of proving a gift of a capital sum by a married woman to her husband lies upon the persons claiming under the husband: Re Flamank (1889), 40 Ch. D. 461; 58 L. J. Ch. 518.

Separate income of wife, how long it remains her separate property.

The separate income of a wife remains her separate property so long as it is retained in the hands of the trustees of the settlement, or is paid to her separate account at a bank, or to (q) Gardner v. G. (1859), 1 Giff. 129; 28 L. J. Ch. 903. It is apprehended that this inference is not affected by s. 3 of the M. W. P. Act, 1882, and that the money would, under the circumstances, be considered as given, not lent, to the husband.

Savings of separate income.

any person by her order and as her trustee, or if paid into her own hands, remains under her separate control; and any stock or other property, including real estate (r) or personal chattels (Newlands v. Paynter (1839), 4 My. & Cr. 408), purchased with the savings of her separate income, is also her separate property. But if the income is paid to the husband with the wife's acquiescence, a gift of such income from her to him will be presumed;(s) where the trust money is lent to the husband with the wife's consent, and he retains it for some time without paying interest, there will be a similar presumption as regards such interest.(t)

Payment of income to husband with wife's consent.

A trust of income for separate use attaches during each coverture, and is suspended during discoverture.

When property is given in trust to pay the income to a woman who is unmarried at the date of the gift for her separate use, either with or without a restraint on anticipation, the separate trust attaches upon her subsequent marriage. A similar trust in favour of a married woman who becomes a widow and then marries again without having dealt with the property, revives on her second marriage,(u) unless confined by the express terms of the instrument to the first coverture: Moore v. Morris (1857), 4 Drew. 33. In these cases the income which is received by the woman while discovert, or by any person on her behalf, from the trustees of the fund, becomes her absolute property, and if unspent at the time of her subsequent marriage would, under the law as it stood before the Act of 1882, have passed to the husband in his marital right: Spicer v. Dawson (1857), 26 L. J. Ch. 704. But if any part of such income, though received by the trustees, has not been paid by them to the woman or to any person on her behalf at the time of the marriage, the separate trust attaches to the money retained in the hands of the trustees: Ashton v. McDougall (1842), 5 Beav. 56; 11 L. J. Ch. 344.

So also a trust of corpus for separate use comes into operation on marriage.

A trust for separate use annexed to the capital of property, whether real or personal, given to an unmarried woman, who has afterwards married, will have come into operation on the marriage, provided that she did no act while discovert to destroy the separate trust. Thus, in a case where a leasehold house and the furniture in it were given by Will, without the intervention of trustees, to a single woman for her separate use, and she subsequently married, and after the marriage she and her husband took possession of the house and furniture, it was held that they retained their separate character, and were not liable for the husband's debt: Newlands v. Paynter (1843), 4 My. & Cr. 408.

Woman married since 1882 entitled to all her property for her separate use.

Under the M. W. P. Act, 1882, s. 2, every woman married after 1882 is entitled to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of by Will or otherwise, all real and personal property belonging to her at the time of the marriage or acquired by or devolving on her afterwards; and under s. 5 every woman married before 1883 is entitled to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of by Will or otherwise, all real and personal property, her title to which, whether vested or contingent, and whether in possession, reversion or remainder, accrues after 1882. Property which was reversionary in 1882, but has fallen into possession since, is not within this section.(v) But a mere spes successionis, e.g., the possibility of becoming entitled under a trust for the persons who shall be the next of kin of A. on the failure of preceding trusts, is not a reversionary interest for this purpose.(w)

Woman married before 1883 entitled for her separate use to property accruing in title after 1882.

Woman married since 9th August, 1870, entitled for her separate use to certain kinds of property.

Under the Act of 1870 a woman who has married between the 9th August, 1870, and the 31st December, 1882 (inclusive), is entitled to hold as her separate property and to dispose of:

Married woman entitled to wages and earnings in separate employment since 8th August, 1870.

A married woman, whatever may be the date of her marriage, is entitled, for her separate use to any wages, earnings, money, and property, acquired or gained by her since the 8th August, 1870, in any employment, trade or occupation, in which she is engaged or which she carries on separately from her husband or by the exercise of any literary, artistic, or scientific skill and all investments of such wages, earnings, money, or property: Act of 1870, s. 2; Act of 1882, ss. 2, 5.

The Acts of 1870 and 1882 contain special provisions as to certain kinds of personal estate, such as stock in the funds, shares in companies, &c., standing in the name of a married woman.(y)

Husband's rights in property of wife undisposed of not affected.

If the husband survives the wife, his rights in any real or personal estate made her separate property by the Act of 1882 or otherwise, so far as such property is not disposed of by her in her lifetime or by her Will, were, if she died before 1926, the same as under the old law. Thus, he became entitled to curtesy in her freehold lands of inheritance, when there had been issue inheritable of the marriage,(z) and he became absolutely entitled to her personal estate in his own right as regards chattels real or chattels personal in possession,(a) and as regards things in action on taking out administration.(b) But if the wife dies intestate after 1925, then the rights to her estate are governed by Ad. of E. Act, 1925, Pt. IV. Though she may have died before 1926, yet if any of her property remains vested in personal representatives, the powers to convey and assent in writing and to make appropriations conferred: ib., ss. 36, 39 and 41, apply thereto as if she had died after 1925.

Husband and wife may be joint tenants since Act.

If land is conveyed since the Act of 1882 to husband and wife jointly, they are joint tenants, and the interest of the wife is her separate property.(c)

A woman married since 1882 can convey, by an unacknowledged deed and without her husband's concurrence, the legal estate in land of which she is a mortgagee: Re Brooke and Fremlin [1898], 1 Ch. 647; 67 L. J. Ch. 272.

Act applies where wife is mortgagee.

No difficulties arise in regard to the acquisition and disposition of trust estates by a married woman: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 170, which replaces, with amendments, M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 1. It applies to a woman married after 1882, and to a woman married before 1883 who became a trustee or personal representative on or after 1st January of that year. It confirms dealings made after 1882.(d)

Acquisition and disposition of trust estates.

SECT. IV.—The liability of a married woman in respect of contracts entered into and wrongs committed by her during the coverture, and before the marriage, respectively, and how far her husband is liable for the same.

Before the passing of the M. W. P. Act, 1882, a married woman could not enter into any contract on which she was liable to be personally sued, but if she had separate property she might, in equity, and as an incident of such property, contract debts and engagements to be paid and satisfied out of it, and the court would enforce payment accordingly.(e) It was not necessary that the contract should refer in terms to the separate property; it was sufficient if an intention to charge it could be collected from the nature of the contract or from the circumstances.

Before Act of 1882 a married woman might in equity contract debts to be paid out of her separate property.

Under the Act of 1882, as amended by the Act of 1893, a married woman is capable of entering into and rendering herself liable in respect of and to the extent of her separate property on any contract, and of suing or being sued either in contract or tort, in all respects as if she were a feme sole, and her husband need not be joined with her as plaintiff or defendant, and this is so whether she has or has not any separate property at the date of the contract. Any damages or costs recovered against her are payable out of her separate property, and not otherwise: s. 1 (2); see also M. W. P. Act, 1893, s. 1. The Act of 1882 applies to contracts between husband and wife, and a husband may sue his wife for money which after the marriage he has lent her on a contract, either express or implied, to repay it out of her separate estate : Butler v. B. (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 374 ; 55 L. J. Q. B. 55.

Effect of restraint on anticipation.

The contracts of a married woman cannot be enforced against income which she is restrained from anticipating, nor can she be made liable thereout for the consequences of fraud committed by her;(f) the law in this respect is not altered by the M. W. P. Acts : Act of 1882, s. 19 ; Act of 1893, s. 1. But a restraint on anticipation is at an end when the income to which it is attached has become due, hence a judgment against a married woman may be enforced against any income which has become due at the date of the judgment, but not against income accrued since,(g) nor against arrears of income due at the date of the judgment, if the restraint was in force when the contract was made : Wood v. Lewis [1914], 3 K. B. 73.

Married woman may become bankrupt.

A married woman carrying on a trade, whether or not separately from her husband, is, by the Bkcy. Act, 1914, s. 125, made liable to the bankruptcy laws as if she were a feme sole : see 2 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed.

A trade belonging to a married woman, but carried on by her husband on her behalf, was, under the Act of 1882, 1 (5) (now repealed), a separate trade : Re Simon [1909], 1 K. B. 201 ; 78 L. J. K. B. 392 ; though not where she carried on business in partnership with him : Re Helsby [1894], 63 L. J. Q. B. 261.

Appointment by Will of a married woman makes property liable to her debts.

By s. 4 of the Act of 1882 the execution of a general power by the Will of a married woman makes the appointed property liable to her debts and liabilities in the same manner as her separate estate if she had separate estate at the date of the appointment.(h)

Position of husband where wife executrix before Act.

entitled to dispose of the personal estate vested in his wife as executrix, or to give receipts for or release debts due to the testator's estate: Thrustout v. Coppin (1772), 2 W. Bl. 801; and he was liable for assets received or devastavits committed by him or his wife during the coverture: Smith v. S. (1856), 21 Beav. 385. Since the Act of 1882, a wife may accept the office of trustee, executrix, or administratrix, and she will be liable in respect and to the extent of her separate property for all breaches of trust and devastavits, and her husband, unless he intermeddles, will be free from liability.(i)

Married woman can now be trustee and executrix and liable as such.

Section 23 of the Act of 1882 provides that the legal personal representative of any married woman shall, in respect of her separate estate, have the same rights and liabilities as she would have if living. A husband who had become entitled jure mariti to his wife's leasehold land without taking out administration was her personal representative within the meaning of this section.(j)

Rights and liabilities of personal representative of wife as respects separate property. Jure mariti.

Whether a wife has or has not separate property, her husband is not liable for debts contracted by her during the marriage, unless he has given her authority to pledge his credit. Whether she has such an authority is a question of fact or reasonable presumption to be determined in each case according to the circumstances. While they live together it will be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that he has authorised her to give orders to tradesmen for such things as fall within the domestic department ordinarily entrusted to the wife's management, e.g., the supply of provisions for the house, clothing for the members of the family, and similar articles.(k) The presumption may be rebutted by evidence that he has supplied her with sufficient money to buy the necessary articles, and has expressly ordered her not to get them on credit, subject, however, to the qualification, that if he has, up to the time of giving such order, acted in such a manner as to lead tradesmen to suppose that the authority exists, he would be bound to inform them of its withdrawal.(l)

Husband not liable for wife's debts, unless he has given her authority.

Authority is a question of fact or reasonable presumption, according to circumstances.

No presumption if living separate, except as a matter of necessity.

If the husband and wife are living separately, the wife has no authority to pledge her husband's credit: Swan & Edgar v. Mathieson (1910), 103 L. T. 832; except as a matter of necessity, as where she has been deserted or forced to leave her home, and has no sufficient means of her own. If they separate by mutual consent, there is no implied authority, so long as he makes her an adequate allowance, and duly pays it.(m)

Right of person who has advanced money to wife for necessaries.

A person advancing money to a married woman who has been deserted by her husband, where the money has been laid out in necessaries for her, is entitled to stand in the place of the persons who actually supplied those necessaries, and to recover the money from the husband.(n)

Husband's liability for wife's wrongful acts.

It has been held that s. 1 (2) of the Act of 1882 did not abolish the liability of the husband for his wife's wrongful acts during the coverture, and that the plaintiff might still sue the husband and wife together, or the wife alone, as he thought fit.(o)

Statutory liabilities of wife and husband for wife's ante-nuptial debts.

Under the Act of 1882 a wife is liable in respect and to the extent of her separate property for all debts contracted, and all contracts entered into or wrongs committed by her before her marriage, and she may be sued for any such debt or in respect of any such contract or wrong, and all sums recovered in the action will be payable out of her separate property, and as between her and her husband her separate property is primarily liable. The husband is also liable for the debts of his wife contracted, and for all contracts entered into and wrongs committed by her before marriage, to the extent of any property acquired by him from or through her but not further or otherwise. The husband and wife may be sued jointly, in which case they cannot set up separate defences: Beaumont v. Kaye [1904], 1 K. B. 292; 73 L. J. K. B. 213; but unless it is found in the action that the husband is liable, he will be entitled to his costs of defence: M. W. P. Act, 1882, ss. 13–15.

Common law liability of wife for ante-nuptial debts.

The Act does not take away the common law liability of the wife in respect of her ante-nuptial contracts. She is still liable to a judgment against her personally under any such contract, and to be committed to prison under s. 9 of the Debtors Act, 1869, for disobeying it, if she has the means to pay.(p) On the other hand, a judgment against the wife in respect of a post-nuptial liability can only be enforced against her separate estate, and there is no power to commit her for non-compliance with it.(q) But a wife who is a personal representative can be attached for non-compliance with an order directing her to pay into court money shown to be in her possession in that character: Re Turnbull [1900], 1 Ch. 180; 69 L. J. Ch. 187.

Restraint on anticipation void against ante-nuptial debts.

A restraint on anticipation contained in a marriage settlement of the wife's own property has no validity against debts contracted by her before marriage: Act of 1882, s. 19.

SECT. V.—The effect of judicial separation,(r) as to the wife's property, and her capacity to contract.(s)

Judicial separation or protection order.

The Jud. Act, 1925, ss. 194, 195, replacing the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1857, ss. 25, 26, places a wife, judicially separated from her husband or who has obtained a protection order, in the position of a feme sole as regards property afterwards acquired by her and as regards her capacity to contract.

Power for court to order settlement of guilty wife's property.

The Jud. Act, s. 191, enables the court, in case of a divorce or judicial separation for adultery of the wife, to order a settlement of the wife's property for the benefit of the innocent party and the children of the marriage or either of them.(t)

And to alter existing settlements.

The Jud. Act, s. 192, enables the court, after a final decree of nullity or dissolution of marriage, to inquire into the existence of ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlements made on the parties, and to make such orders with reference to the application of the whole or a portion of the property settled either for the benefit of the children of the marriage or of the respective parents, as to the court shall seem fit; (u) for this purpose it may override a restraint on anticipation: Morgan v. M. [1923], P. 1; 92 L. J. P. 8; the court may exercise these powers where there are no children of the marriage. (v)

(p) Robinson v. Lynes [1894], 2 Q. B. 577; 63 L. J. Q. B. 759. B. 28; Rothschild v. Fisher [1920], 2 K. B. 243; 89 L. J. K. B. 521.

(r) As regards separation by agreement, see notes to Separation Deeds, infra.

(s) See generally on this subject, Lush, 4th ed.

Restraint.

(t) But the Court cannot under this section order a settlement by a divorced wife, who has remarried, of property to which she is entitled under the trusts of her father's Will for her separate use without power of anticipation: Loraine v. L. [1912], P. 222; 82 L. J. P. 29; and see Mitchell v. M. [1891], P. 208.

Restraint.

Power to alter separation deed.

A separation deed is a settlement for the purpose of this Act, and the court may, after a dissolution of the marriage, relieve a husband from a covenant in a separation deed. (w) But this power cannot be exercised after a judicial separation: Gandy v. G. (1888), 7 P. D. 168; 57 L. J. P. 41.

Court may annul limitation to children of subsequent marriage.

The court may, under this power, annul a limitation contained in a marriage settlement of real estate in favour of the children of a subsequent marriage. (x)

Court cannot accelerate a power of appointment in favour of second husband, &c.

Where the wife has under her marriage settlement a power, "in case she survives her husband," to appoint part of the trust fund in favour of a second husband and the issue of a second marriage, the court has no power to accelerate the power on the dissolution of the marriage: Pollard v. P. [1894], P. 172; 63 L. J. P. 104. But the court has power to vary a marriage settlement so as to deprive infant children of the marriage of part of their interests secured to them by such settlement: Whitton v. W. [1901], P. 348; 71 L. J. P. 10; and to make an order affecting settled property, even after a child of the dissolved marriage has attained a vested interest: Blood v. B. [1902], P. 190; 71 L. J. P. 97.

Where the wife, who was the guilty party, had a power to appoint by Will a life interest to her husband, the court, under s. 5 of the Act of 1859, now the Jud. Act, 1925, s. 192, ordered that the income should after her death be paid to him for life: Hartopp v. H. [1899], P. 65; 68 L. J. P. 33.

Court has power, in the event of a decree for restitution of conjugal rights not

The Jud. Act, 1925, ss. 187, 190, 191, provides that in the event of a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights not being complied with, the court may, where the wife is the applicant, order the husband to make periodical payments to her, and if the husband is the applicant, and the wife is entitled to any property, either in possession or reversion or in receipt of any profits of trade or earnings, the court may order a settlement to be made for the benefit of the husband and the children or any of them, or may order part of the profits of trade or earnings to be paid periodically by the wife to the husband or to him or any other person for the benefit of the children.

being complied with, to order a settlement.

Under the Administration of Justice Act, 1920, matrimonial causes may now be tried at Assizes.

Justices may in certain cases make order having effect of judicial separation.

The Summary Jurisdiction (Separation and Maintenance) Acts, 1895 to 1925, enable a court of summary jurisdiction, in cases of aggravated assault or persistent cruelty or desertion or neglect and in certain other cases, to make an order that the wife is no longer bound to cohabit with her husband, which order is to have the effect of a decree of judicial separation on the ground of cruelty, and the order may contain provisions as to the legal custody of the children, and for the payment by the husband of a weekly sum for maintenance: see Lush, 4th ed.

CHAPTER III.

The Law and Practice Relating to Settlements.

Distinction between personalty and realty settlements.

A clear distinction must be drawn between two classes of settlements :—

Personalty settlements.

(1) Personalty Settlements, in which the settled property, of whatever description, is made to devolve as personal estate. See new Ad. of E. Act, 1925, ss. 33 and 46, in regard to intestacies. In this case land and all interests therein are, by the intervention of a trust for sale, converted into personal property and the proceeds of sale are settled.

By this method the same results can now be obtained as were formerly only available in the case of realty or strict settlements, for personalty can, under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130, be entailed in the same way as freehold land.

No vesting instruments on change of ownership where a trust for sale is used.

Where a trust for sale is employed the persons in whom the legal estate in the land must be vested during the continuation of the settlement are the trustees for sale. No vesting deeds or vesting assents are required on a change of ownership. Only when new or additional trustees are appointed or trustees are discharged will there be any conveyance of the legal estate. Such a conveyance takes the form of a vesting declaration (express or implied) contained or implied in the deeds appointing or discharging trustees. The beneficial or equitable interests in the property (i.e., the proceeds of sale and the rents until sale) are kept off the title to the land, for a purchaser is not concerned therewith (L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (1)), whether or not the trusts are declared by the instrument (if any) creating the trust for sale.

Equitable interests kept off the title.

Separate instruments.

In nearly all cases there will be two instruments, one conveying the land on trust for sale (e.g., a conveyance on a marriage or an assent by personal representatives to trustees on trust for sale), the other declaring the trusts of the proceeds of sale and the rents until sale (e.g., the personalty settlement or the Will).

Trustees for sale the persons to make title.

In this case the persons to make title are the trustees for sale (though they can delegate some of their powers to the tenant for life of the proceeds : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 29); hence, where the dealings with the settled property are likely to be frequent (e.g., in large estates) this method will not usually be adopted. The trustees for sale are given the powers of a tenant for life: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28; where land, formerly settled land, becomes subject to the statutory trusts, the trustees for sale will have the additional powers formerly conferred by the realty settlement: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. (amending s. 28, supra).

Realty or strict settlements.

(2) Realty or Strict Settlements, in which the settled property, of whatever description, is made to devolve as land. The land is conveyed or vested in the tenant for life or statutory owners on trusts creating equitable interests for life or in tail successively with an ultimate equitable remainder in fee simple, or for an absolute interest. Or money may be directed to be laid out in the purchase of land to be conveyed to the tenant for life or statutory owners on the requisite trusts.

In realty settlements the persons to make title (save when the land is vested in personal representatives) are the tenants for life or statutory owners, all capital arising from transactions being paid to S. L. Act trustees.

On every change of ownership by reason of a death or otherwise there will either be a vesting deed or a vesting assent in favour of the beneficiary who becomes entitled.

The form to be adopted.

Every settlement should take one of these forms. Attempts at blending the two forms must generally result in ambiguity and possibly in disaster. Hence, when land is to be settled, the practitioner must first make up his mind which course to adopt. The first matter for consideration is whether, after the death of the husband and wife, it is intended that the property should be divided among the issue of the marriage; if so, there should be a trust for sale.

On the other hand, if the property is to be kept together, the younger children being merely given charges thereon, then there should be a strict or realty settlement. Again, as a general guide, land held as an investment, e.g., shop property, building estates, and so forth, should, unless forming part of a family estate, be settled by means of a trust for sale, while strict settlements should be resorted to in the case of large family estates.

Trust for sale does not involve a sale.

The fact that land is conveyed upon trust for sale does not necessarily mean that it will be sold; power is given to postpone the sale for an indefinite period without involving the trustees in any liability: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 25. When all the interests in the proceeds of sale have become absolutely vested, the trustees for sale can effect a partition if this is desired: ib., s. 28 (3) (4).

SECT. I.—Personalty Settlements executed on Marriage.

(i) Where no Land is to be Settled.

Usual form of a personalty settlement.

The usual form of a settlement of pure personal estate upon marriage is as follows :—

Parties and recitals.

(1) Parties.

(2) Recital of the intended marriage.

(3) Recitals dealing with the property intended to be settled, e.g., the transfer of investments to the trustees, the title to reversionary interests, &c.

Assignment of reversionary interests, &c.

(4) The operative part should commence with the assignment of reversionary interests, covenants to settle principal sums and the trusts till marriage of investments previously transferred.

Trusts until marriage.

(5) The first trusts to be declared are for the benefit of the respective settlors until the marriage.

Investment.

(6) Then follows a trust for the investment or variation of the investments of the settled property, and the definition of the funds.

Life interests.

(7) The destination of the income during the lives of the husband and wife must next be dealt with. Usually the husband takes the first life interest in the property settled by him or on his behalf, and the wife takes the first life interest in the property settled by her or on her behalf.

Protected life interests.

The husband's interest is, where property is settled by, e.g., his father, often protected against his bankruptcy by means of a gift over, followed by a discretionary trust; this can be effected by declaring that during his life the income is to be held on " protective trusts " for his benefit: T. Act, 1925, s. 33; but where he himself settles property, this course is not effectual, and sometimes, particularly where he is engaged in a precarious business, the first life interest is given to the wife or an immediate discretionary trust is declared.

" Separate use " unnecessary.

The wife's interest is usually given without power of anticipation. Having regard to the M. W. P. Acts, 1882 and 1907, it is unnecessary to expressly limit the interest for her separate use.

After the death of husband or wife the survivor is usually given a life or lesser interest in the property settled by or on behalf of the deceased spouse, or in part thereof. These interests usually follow the form of the life interests previously limited to the survivor in respect of his or her own property.

Trusts for issue after death of husband and wife.

(8) After the death of both husband and wife the ordinary trusts of a marriage settlement are for the children, or remoter issue of the marriage, as the husband and wife or the survivor shall appoint; and, in default of appointment, for the children equally, the shares of sons to vest at twenty-one, and the shares of daughters to vest at twenty-one or marriage, with a provision that any appointed share shall be brought into hotchpot.

Reason for extending power of appointment to issue.

The advantage of extending the power to remoter issue is, that if a son to whom no share has been appointed dies, leaving issue, the donees of the power are enabled to provide for such issue without attracting double duty; other cases may happen in which it may be desirable that provision should be made for grandchildren.

Maintenance clause unnecessary.

An express provision for the maintenance of the issue while infants is unnecessary, having regard to T. Act, 1925, s. 31.

Advancement clause unnecessary.

An advancement clause in a personalty settlement is unnecessary; this is supplied by T. Act, 1925, s. 32.

Ultimate trusts in default of issue, as to husband and wife's property respectively.

(9) If there are no issue of the marriage who attain vested interests, it is usually provided that the trust property, if settled by the husband, shall revert to him, and if settled by the wife, shall go to her appointees by Will, or by deed executed while she is discovert, and in default of appointment, to the wife absolutely if she survives the husband, but if not, to the persons who would have taken under the Ad. of E. Act, 1925 (with or without any special variation), if she had died possessed thereof intestate. Formerly it was usual, after referring to the Statutes of Distribution (now repealed) to add "without ever having been married"; these words prevented the husband from taking the fund as administrator of his wife; (a) they are now unnecessary if the husband is given a life interest by the settlement, he only takes an absolute interest under s. 46 (1) (v) when all the near relations have failed to take.

"Statutory next of kin."

It will be convenient to use the expression "statutory next of kin," as that is defined by s. 50 (1) to mean the persons who would take beneficially under the foregoing provisions of Pt. IV of the Ad. of E. Act, 1925.

Property settled by reference to previous trusts.

(10) The next clauses of the settlement deal with property settled by reference to the trusts of the property already settled, e.g., a policy of assurance, a covenant by a parent to pay an

Ch. 528; and see the effect of these words on the interest of children of a prior marriage where the wife dies intestate: Boyce v. Wasbrough [1922], 1 A. C. 425; 91 L. J. Covenant to settle after-acquired property.(b) annual sum, or a covenant by the wife to settle her after-acquired property. With regard to covenants to settle after-acquired property it should be borne in mind—

(a) That the covenant is not a "usual clause," and should only be inserted under express instructions: Re Maddy [1901], 2 Ch. 820; 71 L. J. Ch. 18. Where the covenant is employed a power should be reserved to the wife to make a settlement on a future marriage;

(b) That the covenant should not be so drawn as to cover property in which the wife has an interest at the time of the marriage. Such property, if intended to be settled, should be expressly assigned to the trustees at the commencement of the operative part.

Power for wife to appoint to future husband and issue of future marriage.

(11) When the property settled on the part of the wife constitutes the bulk of her fortune or is of considerable amount, it is desirable that a power should be reserved for her to appoint a portion of the wife's fund in favour of a second husband and the issue of a second marriage. This power is nearly always inserted in infants' settlements made by the court. In the absence of such a power, the wife may be left a widow by her first husband with only one child, and if she marries again the whole of her settled fortune will go to the child of the first marriage to the exclusion of the family, however large, of the second marriage. And the same observation applies as regards property settled by the husband.

Powers of trustees.

(12) The subsequent clauses of the settlement should confer such powers upon the trustees as the circumstances and the nature of the settled property require. In view of the powers conferred by the T. Act, 1925, and the L. P. Act, 1925, these should seldom run to any great length.

Power to appoint new trustees.

(13) The last clause usually confers power on the husband and wife and the survivor of them to appoint new trustees of the settlement.

Schedules.

(14) Schedules are usually added containing particulars of the settled property. It is convenient to show, by headings to the schedules, what particulars they respectively contain, e.g., "Particulars of investments settled by the husband"; "Particulars of investments subject to the trusts of the Settlement of ——"

(b) See also as to after-acquired property, note to the covenant to settle, infra.

(ii) Where Land is to be Settled as Personalty.

Conveyance of land on trust for sale and settlement of proceeds as personalty.

The correct method of settling land where the beneficial interests are to be settled as personal estate is by conveying it to trustees upon trust for sale and then by a separate deed of even date settling the proceeds, with a provision, that, until sale, the rents and profits shall be paid and applied in the same manner as the income of the proceeds would be applicable if a sale had been made.

Mode of making settlements on trust for sale.

Where land is to be settled on trust for sale it is proper, except where the title to the land is registered under the L. R. Act, 1925 (in this case the register keeps the beneficial interests off the title and where only registered land is dealt with the trust for sale may be inserted in the settlement itself), for the conveyance on trust for sale to be by a deed separate from the settlement declaring the trusts of the proceeds of sale, for in this way the beneficial interests in the net proceeds will not be disclosed when the trustees sell or exercise the powers conferred on them by the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28. This section confers on the trustees all the powers which are, by the S. L. Act, given to a tenant for life under a realty settlement as well as those given to S. L. Act trustees. The result is that express powers of leasing or of effecting other dealings will seldom be required. If there is a sale, under the trust for sale, and a re-investment in the purchase of land, it must be conveyed to the trustees on trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28. Under s. 29 the trustees can delegate their powers of leasing, and accepting surrenders to the person entitled to the income under the personalty settlement.

Purchase of land.

Application of S. L. Act to trusts for sale.

Save that trustees for sale have the same powers as a tenant for life, the S. L. Act, 1925 (as amended), has no bearing on land held on trust for sale. As soon as land becomes subject to a trust for sale it ceases to be "settled land": S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (7) (inserted by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.), and a strict "settlement" ceases as soon as the land is held on trust for sale: ib., s. 3 (as similarly amended). For instance, it becomes subject to a trust for sale as soon as a limitation in undivided shares takes effect in possession: ib., s. 36 (as amended), the land should then be vested in the former S. L. Act trustees, who will have the statutory powers and any additional powers conferred by the realty settlement.

Power to appoint trustees.

The conveyance on trust for sale must contain the like power, if any, to appoint new trustees as is contained in the settlement of the proceeds of sale, and this power must be exercised by a separate deed from that appointing trustees of the money settlement: T. Act, 1925, s. 35; the trustees must be the same for both instruments: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 24.

Provisions to be inserted in the money settlement.

The money settlement should contain a recital of the conveyance upon trust for sale, and a declaration of the trusts of the proceeds of sale, and the rents and profits until sale. It is usual, also, where land is conveyed on trust for sale by a deed of even date, to give the trustees a power to purchase land with any of the money subject to the trust. In this case s. 32 of the L. P. Act, 1925 (implied trust for sale), will apply, and the land, when purchased, will be conveyed on trust for sale with power to postpone the sale, whether or not the money was liable under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28, to be invested in land to be held on trust for sale.

Conveyance of land purchased under a power contained in a money settlement.

Where land is purchased under a power in a personalty settlement it should be conveyed on trust for sale in a similar way, or where there is already a conveyance on trust for sale it may be conveyed by reference to the trusts in that deed.

No applications to the court for leave to exercise powers.

A person entitled to the income under a personalty settlement can no longer apply to the court for leave to exercise the statutory powers as was the case under S. L. Act, 1884, s. 7. This scheme has become unnecessary because the statutory powers are made exercisable by the trustees for sale. If, however, they refuse to sell or to exercise their statutory powers or to delegate their powers of leasing and accepting surrenders of leases, then any person interested may apply to the court for an order directing the trustees either to sell, or to exercise a power or to delegate: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 30.

Remedies of the beneficiaries against trustees for sale.

Consents to dealings by trustees for sale.

Under this section if any requisite consent to a transaction cannot be obtained, the court may make an order directing the transaction to be carried out.

So far as a purchaser is concerned, he will never have to join more than two persons in a conveyance, mortgage, lease, &c., to consent to the transaction being carried out by the trustees for sale: ib., s. 26. This, with the restriction on the number of trustees (T. Act, 1925, s. 34), will secure that in future an excessive number of persons will not be required to make title.

Order made before 1926 under S. L. Act, 1884, s. 7.

Where before 1926 an order has been made authorising a person entitled to the income under a personalty settlement to exercise the statutory powers, this operates as if the powers had been delegated to him by the trustees for sale: ib., s. 29 (4). It extends to all the powers given him by the order, not merely the power of leasing and accepting surrenders: Re Lady Francis Cecil's Sett. (1926), W. N. 138.

Meaning of "trust for sale."

A "trust for sale" in relation to land means an immediate binding trust for sale, whether or not exercisable at the request or with the consent of any person, and with or without a power at discretion to postpone the sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xxix); S. L. Act, 1925, s. 117 (1) (xxx). The word "binding" does not mean that when the trust is executed the conveyance must of necessity "over-reach" every equitable interest (e.g., a jointure as was held in the special case of Re Leigh's S. E. (1926), W. N. 191; Article in 70 Sol. J. 749, 769). It is sufficient if it creates an immediate notional conversion into money; it must be effective, a person must not have power as in Re Goodall [1909], 1 Ch. 440, to declare that the land shall not be sold during the subsistence of the trust, nor must it be construed as in Re Hotchkys (1886), 32 Ch. D. 408, as a mere power of sale.(c)

(iii) Where a Mortgage Debt is to be Settled.

Settlement of mortgage debt.

As in the case of the settlement of land as personal estate so in the settlement of a mortgage debt, the beneficial interests should be kept off the title to the land forming the security. Whether or not this is effectually done a purchaser will not be concerned with the trusts: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 113.

On marriage.

(1) Where the mortgage debt is settled in contemplation of marriage this object is effected by two documents:—

First, a transfer to trustees, in which the mortgage debt is, in consideration of the marriage (which consideration should be expressed), assigned upon the trusts declared by a deed of even date (the money settlement) and the mortgage term (if any) is conveyed subject to the existing right of redemption: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 114. The intended marriage is recited and made

Effect of Amending Act on trusts for sale.

(c) A contrary view, as regards S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20 (1) (viii), appears to have been taken in Re Leigh's S. E. (1926), W. N. 191, a special case which was decided before the L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, was passed. That Act, in amending S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 3, makes it clear that the S. L. Act provisions relating to "settlements" and consequently to "settled land" are not to apply when the land becomes subject to trust for sale, so as to prevent trustees for sale, if they are unable to over-ride it, which will seldom, if ever, be the case, from selling subject to a family charge. The word "binding" was inserted in S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20 (1) (viii), to confirm the special decision in Goodall's Case, and to avoid any further extension of the principle there laid down. Semble, the words "until sale of the land" in para. (viii) have now been repealed by necessary implication. All trusts for sale are now "binding" within Leigh's Case: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2) (as amended), a subsequent approval of the trustees is sufficient, where any approval is required.

the consideration for the transfer. The transfer constitutes a separate trust deed from the money settlement and should contain a separate power of appointing new trustees corresponding with the power in the money settlement. When this power is exercised the new trustees are appointed and the mortgage transferred by the same instrument.

Secondly, a money settlement, in which the trusts of the mortgage money are declared.

Mortgage in favour of trustees.

Similar arrangements are made where a mortgage is created de novo in consideration of the marriage in favour of the trustees; in this case wide powers are frequently reserved to the owner of the right of redemption.

Investment on mortgage after the date of the settlement.

(2) Where a mortgage debt is, after the settlement has been on foot for some time, taken as an investment by trustees of a money or a realty settlement they advance the money out of the trust fund or out of the capital money. No reference should be made to the marriage or the settlement, and no power of appointing new trustees should be inserted in the transfer. On the face of it, the transfer or mortgage is made to the trustees as individuals on a joint account or simply as individuals relying on L. P. Act, 1925, s. 111. When new trustees of the settlement are appointed the mortgage is transferred to them in the ordinary form, but a recital is inserted to the effect that the transferees are entitled to the debt in equity on a joint account. This recital keeps the trusts off the title.(d)

SECT. II.—Realty or Strict Settlements.

Realty or strict settlements.

Division into two classes.

Realty settlements may be divided into two main classes. The first, where the settlor is seised in fee simple in possession and no previous settlement is in existence (the occasion for such a settlement is generally a marriage); the second, where the land is subject to the limitations of an existing settlement and the tenant for life and tenant in tail disentail and relimit the estate. The second class is called a resettlement. In view of the stamp imposed by Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74, and the consequential costs of valuing the land, resettlements of land are very generally postponed till the tenant in tail marries, or can be made by Will.

Stamp on voluntary settlements.

Scheme for evading heavy stamp duties on a voluntary settlement.

It is possible where there is sufficient capital money and investments in hand to evade the heavy £1 ad valorem stamp

---

(d) Dart, 7th ed., 17. The 10*s*. stamp on the transfer, which must be adjudicated, does not bring the trusts on the title: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 112. The section is retrospective.

duty payable in respect of land by adopting the following scheme :—

(1) By the disentailing assurance limit the freeholds upon such trusts as the father and son shall by deed jointly appoint and, in default, upon such trusts as the survivor shall, for the purpose only of making the same devolve with the capital money and investments after mentioned, by deed or Will appoint and in default upon the trusts of the old settlement. Limit the capital money and investments upon such trusts as the father and son shall by deed jointly appoint and, in default, upon the trusts subsisting under the old settlement.

(2) If not already the case, appoint the persons who are to act as S. L. Act trustees of the resettlement to be trustees of the old settlement and see that all the capital money and investments are transferred to and placed in their names before the new resettlement is executed.

(3) By the resettlement appoint that the capital money and investments shall be held by the trustees (in whose names they have been placed as trustees of the old settlement) upon trust to lay out the same in the purchase of land to be conveyed and settled on the new trusts required.

(4) Prepare a separate draft resettlement of the land limiting the same upon the trusts of the resettlement of the capital money. This draft will contain a recital of an intended marriage of the son, the wife's name of course being left in blank.(e) Where the first life interest is to be taken by the son a vesting instrument is also required.

(5) Father and son to execute an agreement under hand only, so as not to be capable of taking effect as an appointment under the powers reserved by the disentailing assurance, the trustees also being made parties, to execute their powers of appointment and resettle the land to devolve on the trusts of the resettlement of the capital money in the following events—

(a) If the son marries in the lifetime of the father then under the joint power in accordance with the draft resettlement which will be referred to;

(b) If the son survives and marries after the death of the father then under his power by deed as survivor;

(e) The son's marriage would be the consideration for the resettlement of the land by father and son within s. 74, because the assets settled belong to the son, the father merely taking back his life estate and powers to create family charges.

(c) If the son survives and does not marry, then under his Will by virtue of the power;

(d) If the father survives, the son not having married, then by the father under his Will;

(e) Also to exercise the powers if and when any further capital money arises under the old settlement in respect of such capital money.

The agreement should also contain such other provisions as the circumstances require, including an agreement by father and son not to do anything which would operate to prevent their exercising their powers in the manner agreed, but without prejudice to the father's powers under the S. L. Act.

(6) Wills to be executed by both father and son making the requisite appointments in the event of the resettlement not being carried out by deed.

Vesting instruments.

Whenever a realty settlement is executed, it must be seen that a vesting instrument is in force which shows that the legal estate is vested in the tenant for life, who are the S. L. Act trustees, refers to any powers, additional to those conferred by the S. L. Act, 1925, for dealing with the settled land in favour of purchasers, mortgagees and lessees, and states the name of the person who has power to appoint new trustees of the settlement.

Appointment of jointure and portions term.

Again, on a marriage, settlements are made by appointing a jointure and an equitable portions term under powers contained in an existing settlement or resettlement.

(i) Where the Settlor is seised in Fee Simple and no previous Settlement is in existence.

Where settlor seised in fee simple and no existing settlement.

An example of this class is a settlement executed on the marriage of the settlor. The following is a simple form:—

(1) Parties.

(2) Recitals of the intended marriage, the vesting deed of even date in favour of the settlor, and agreement for settlement.

(3) Limitations. These are usually—

(a) Rentcharge to wife during joint lives of husband and wife by way of pin-money;

(b) Life interest to husband;

(c) Jointure to wife;

(d) Portions term for raising portions for younger children and their issue;

(e) Remainders in tail male to first and other sons successively according to seniority;

(f) Ultimate remainder to husband in fee simple.

(4) Provisions extending the powers conferred by the S. L. Act.

(5) Appointment of trustees for the purposes of the S. L. Act.

(6) Power for tenant for life to appoint new trustees.

In the above case, a vesting deed must be executed, declaring that the land, of which the settlor is seised in fee simple, is held by him on the trusts of the settlement of even date and complying with the provisions of S. L. Act, 1925, s. 4.

(ii) Resettlements.

Resettlements.

In resettling an estate the primary object of the practitioner has in the past been to carry out the intention of the parties in such a way that the tenant for life for the time being in possession would be able to exercise all the powers conferred by the S. L. Act and to make a good title to the land without the concurrence of other persons and without the appointment of trustees for the purposes of the S. L. Act of any compound settlement.

Trustees of the compound settlement must be employed.

All that is now wanted for this purpose is to employ the S. L. Act trustees of any compound settlement that may subsist or will come into force when the resettlement is made. These trustees must be made use of: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1), proviso. If it is not desired that they should act, then the persons who are to act should be appointed to be the trustees of the prior instruments before the resettlement is executed. There can now be very few cases where there are not subsisting trustees of a compound settlement.

Who become S. L. Act trustees.

(1) In ib., s. 30, a list is given of the persons who become trustees.

(2) Under ib., s. 31, the trustees (if any) of a prior instrument become the S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement consisting of the prior and the subsequent instruments. If there are no trustees of the prior instrument, then under the amendment of that section in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., the trustees of the instrument under which there is a tenant for life or statutory owner become the S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement till (if at all) other trustees are appointed in their place.

(3) Trustees or their successors remain S. L. Act trustees of a settlement so long as it subsists: ib., s. 33. And a settlement

" subsists " so long as any limitation charge or power of charging remains on foot as well as during a minority : ib., s. 3; but a " settlement " determines when the land becomes subject to a trust for sale : L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Release or relimitation of family charges.

Where family charges (e.g., jointures and portions) are subsisting under an existing settlement, it may still be very convenient to relimit them by the new settlement by way of substitution so far as may be of the old family charges. Now that trustees of the compound settlement must always be employed, it cannot be said that this is any longer essential; still, if and when releases are executed, the substituted charges take effect and the old settlement comes to an end; this tends to simplify matters by reducing the number of documents which together create the settlement.

Disentailing assurance.

It will be still found desirable where a disentailing assurance is executed with a view to a resettlement to limit the land upon such trusts as the tenant for life and tenant in tail jointly appoint, and in default of appointment upon the trusts of the existing settlement so as to restore them. This enables the joint power to be exercised in the new settlement. Moreover, such a disentailing assurance, by not creating any new interest, does not attract the heavy ad valorem duties imposed by s. 74 of the Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910.

Stamp duties.

Restoration of life interests, &c.

Restoration, or more properly the continuation (without destruction) of life or other interests, whether by a disentailing assurance or a resettlement, is expressly authorised for all purposes by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 22; such restoration in a resettlement does not prevent the tenant for life from exercising any additional powers under the resettlement which he could have exercised if he had taken his life interest under the resettlement: ib. This section is made retrospective by ib., 4th Sch., para. 8.

As trustees with a power of sale exercisable with the consent of a person entitled to rents and profits by virtue of the instrument creating the power remain S. L. Act trustees whatever happens during the subsistence of the settlement: ib., s. 33; it is no longer necessary to keep alive the life interest in order to retain S. L. Act trustees. Nor is it necessary to keep alive the old life interest in order to retain the statutory powers of a tenant for life under the old settlement: ib., s. 104. There may, however, be other powers annexed to the old life interest which it is expedient to retain, hence on this account the practice of restoring life interests is likely to be retained; at any rate it makes it clear that the tenant for life can exercise any additional powers under the resettlement.

Death duties.

It was formerly the practice to restore the old life interest to prevent a question arising whether estate duty was not payable on the death of the tenant for life which would not otherwise become payable till the death of the tenant in tail under the old settlement (e.g., where in the case of personalty, probate or account duty, or in the case of any property, estate duty had been previously paid during the subsistence of the settlement: see Austen-Cartmell, 5th ed., 3), but in view of the decision in Parr v. A.-G. [1926], A. C. 239; 95 L. J. K. B. 417, this may no longer be a valid reason for restoring a life interest. It is submitted that the decision in Parr v. A.-G., that the life interest had not been destroyed, was clearly right. But it is difficult to see how, contrary to the former practice, estate duty became payable as if a new life interest had been created.

SECT. III.—The powers and liabilities of tenants for life (f) of settled land as regards waste, leases, sales, exchanges, partitions, and improvements and the provisions of the Settled Land Acts in reference to these and other matters.

Waste.

Tenant for life with or without impeachment of waste.

It is usual in a settlement to add the words "without impeachment of waste" after the limitation of a life estate. It will be convenient, therefore, in this place to explain the powers and liabilities of a tenant for life as regards waste—(1) when he is impeachable for waste; and (2) when he is not.

Liability of tenant for life as regards timber.

A tenant for life impeachable for waste (g) cannot cut timber of his own authority except for the ordinary reparation of buildings and fences. Any timber improperly cut down by him, or blown down by the wind, belongs to the owner of the first vested estate in fee or in tail, and, accordingly, the whole of the proceeds will be invested and the income only paid to the

---

(f) The expression "tenant for life" includes the limited owners who, under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20, have the powers of a tenant for life: ib., s. 117 (1) (xxviii), but does not include the "statutory owners" who have the powers (ib., ss. 23, 26), when there is no tenant for life.

(g) A devise to A. for life "with full and absolute power over all my property" does not render A. dispunishable for waste: Pardoe v. P. (1900), 82 L. T. 547.

tenant for life.(h) Nor can he cut young trees which, if allowed to grow, would become timber, unless such cutting is necessary for the growth of other timber in the same wood or plantation: Honywood v. H. (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 306; 43 L. J. Ch. 652.

Ripe timber.

But where there is on the settled land timber ripe and fit for cutting he may, under the S. L. Act, 1925, s. 66, cut and sell such timber with the consent of the trustees or under an order of the court, and in that case three-fourths of the net proceeds are to be set aside as capital money, and the other one-fourth goes as rents and profits.

What is timber.

Oak, ash and elm are timber if twenty years old, and if not too old to have any useable wood in them. By local custom other trees may also be timber, as beech in Buckinghamshire.

Exception in case of a timber estate.

The rule preventing a tenant for life from cutting timber is subject to an exception in the case of a timber estate, i.e., an estate which is cultivated for the produce of saleable timber, and where the timber is cut periodically in due course, the larger trees being removed to promote the growth of younger ones. Where such a usage exists on a particular estate, it is not waste for the tenant for life to comply with it, and the produce of the timber cut by him in due course belongs to him.(i)

As to ornamental trees not being timber.

It is waste to destroy ornamental trees, though not timber, or trees planted for the shelter of houses or banks, or fruit trees in a garden or orchard, or stools of underwood; but, with these exceptions, a tenant for life may cut down trees which are neither timber nor likely to become timber, and the proceeds will belong to him.(i)

Equitable waste.

Previously to the Jud. Act, 1873, a tenant for life "without impeachment of waste" had at law an unlimited power to commit waste, but a court of equity would not permit him to make an unconscionable use of the legal power, and would restrain him from such acts as the following, which were therefore termed equitable waste, viz.: the pulling down of the mansion house or farm houses: Aston v. A. (1749), 1 Ves. Sen. 264; cutting timber planted or left standing for ornament or shelter of the mansion house; (j) destroying saplings or young trees not fit to be cut for purposes of timber: Chamberlayne v. Dummer (1782), 1 Bro. C. C. 166; cutting underwood of insufficient growth: Brydges v. Stephens (1821), 6 Madd. 279; or grubbing up a wood so as to destroy it altogether: Aston v. A., supra. Under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 135 (reproducing Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (3)), a tenant for life without impeachment of waste has no legal power to commit equitable waste.

(h) Bewick v. Whitfield (1734), 3 P. Wms. 267. This is so, though there may be an intermediate interest limited to a person for life without impeachment of waste. As to capital not directly arising under the S. L. Act powers: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 81.

Practice of court as to the cutting of ornamental timber when injurious to other trees.

The court will, on the application of a tenant for life without impeachment of waste, order ornamental trees to be cut, if they injure or impede the growth of other trees which are of essential importance for ornament or shelter, and in that case the proceeds of the sale belong to him. If he, of his own authority, cuts ornamental trees which the court would have ordered to be cut, or if any ornamental timber is blown down, the proceeds belong to him: Baker v. Sebright (1879), 13 Ch. D. 179; 49 L. J. Ch. 65.

Powers of a tenant in tail as regards waste.

A tenant in tail in possession has all the powers of a tenant in fee simple as regards waste; this is the case even where the tenant in tail is prohibited by a special Act from barring the entail.(k) A tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct, and a tenant in fee with an executory devise over in the event of his dying without leaving issue, have respectively the same privileges as a tenant for life without impeachment of waste.(l) A tenant for life is not liable for permissive waste: Re Cartwright (1889), 41 Ch. D. 532; 58 L. J. Ch. 590.

Permissive waste.

SECT. IV.—Settled Land Act, 1925.(m)

Management during minorities or a contingency.

Under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 102, either trustees specially appointed for the purpose, or if none, the S. L. Act trustees are, during a minority, given the powers which would be incidental to the estate of tenant for life of full age. These powers correspond to those formerly given by Conv. Act, 1881, s. 42. It is no longer necessary to appoint trustees specially for this purpose, the mere appointment of S. L. Act trustees will be sufficient. This section also applies where a person is contingently entitled to land.

Destination of accumulations.

rents and profits and as to the destination of accumulations are now placed in T. Act, 1925, s. 31 ; it will not, as a rule, be necessary to provide, by way of variation of that section, for the destination of the statutory accumulations.

Statutory powers during a minority.

The powers of a tenant for life during a minority will be exercisable by the statutory owners (generally the S. L. Act trustees) or by the personal representatives in whom the legal estate may be vested under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 23 (during a contingency) or under ib., s. 26, in other cases.

Powers given by S. L. Act to a tenant for life.

Under the S. L. Act every tenant for life under a settlement may sell the settled land or any easement, right or privilege of any kind over or in relation to the same, may extinguish manorial incidents, may make exchanges and grant leases—in the case of a building lease for nine hundred and ninety-nine years, of a mining lease for one hundred years, of a forestry lease for nine hundred and ninety-nine years, and of any other lease for fifty years—and may raise money for equality of exchange or for discharge of incumbrances or for paying for improvements, for extinguishing manorial incidents, for redeeming or commuting certain claims, by mortgage, subject as to all the powers to the conditions prescribed by the Act.

Restriction as to mansion house partly removed.

Formerly the principal mansion house, if any, on any settled land, and the pleasure grounds and park and lands usually occupied therewith, could not be disposed of by the tenant for life without the consent of the trustees or an order of the court, unless the settlement otherwise provided. But as regards settlements coming into operation after 1925, the tenant for life will be able to dispose of it without any such consent or order unless the settlement otherwise provides : ib., s. 65.

New powers.

Transactions generally.

Improvements.

Many new powers, in addition to those above mentioned, have been conferred by the Act, but the most important to note is that (s. 64) which gives powers for the tenant for life or statutory owner to effect any reasonable transaction, not otherwise authorised, with the leave of the court ; this section does not, however, extend the power to effect improvements on the settled land. The new code for this purpose is now contained in Pt. V of the Act. There are three classes of authorised improvements, namely :—

(1) Those the costs of which are not liable to be replaced by instalments ;

(2) Those which the trustees or the court may require to be so replaced ; and

(3) Those which must be replaced by instalments.

It is no longer necessary to have a formal scheme of intended improvements.

Capital money.

Part III of the Act contains the code relating to the investment or other application of capital money, and it must be noted that the money, unless paid into court, must be paid either to a trust corporation or to not less than two trustees: ss. 94, 95. No contracting out is authorised. Where different estates are settled on similar limitations express provision is made by s. 91 as to application of capital money arising from any one of the estates.

Tenant for life may, with leave of court, sell settled heirlooms.

A tenant for life may, with the leave of the court, under s. 67, sell personal chattels settled as heirlooms and purchase others.

Who are tenants for life or statutory owners.

In determining who are tenants for life or statutory owners, ss. 19 to 29 must be considered, the main new points to note are:—

(1) That if the land is "settled land" there will always be some person to make title, for if there is no tenant for life, or the legal estate is not vested in personal representatives, then under s. 23 the S. L. Act trustees (there being no other persons specially nominated for the purpose) will be able to exercise the powers.

The question as to the person to exercise the powers must be considered every time that a vesting deed, a vesting assent, or a vesting order by the court is made.

(2) That the legal estate in the settled land cannot be vested in an infant.

(3) That even if a tenant for life parts with his beneficial interest and an order is made under s. 24 he will still retain the legal estate as trustee of the land, the S. L. Act trustees will execute the powers as his statutory attorneys.

(4) Similarly a lunatic will retain his legal estate, his committee or receiver will convey in his name: s. 28; this has always been the practice in regard to settled land.

(5) Even in the case of charitable, ecclesiastical and public trusts special provision (s. 29) is made for the exercise of the powers, though this matter is strictly outside the general scope of the Act. This section shows that the land is not held on trust for sale, unless an express trust for sale is created.

Independently of the S. L. Act, trustees for sale (i.e., trustees holding on trust for sale, not trustees with a mere power of sale) can exercise the statutory powers: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28; so also can personal representatives: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 39. When land becomes subject to a trust for sale (e.g., when it comes to be held in undivided shares: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36; or an absolute power subject to a family charge: ib., s. 20, vests his legal estate in trustees for sale: ib., ss. 1 and 3, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1925, Sch.), that takes the land out of the scope of the S. L. Act, and it becomes subject to the provisions in L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 2 (as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1925, Sch.), 3, 23 to 36, which are specially applicable to trusts for sale.

Effect of trust for sale.

Who are S. L. Act trustees.

The question who are S. L. Act trustees has been dealt with, supra; the answer can be found in S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 30 to 34. It will be material every time that a vesting deed, vesting assent or vesting order is made, when, if there is a compound settlement, the S. L. Act trustees thereof must be nominated as the persons to act: ib., s. 1 (1) proviso.

Other points arising on the S. L. Act, 1925 (as amended) have been noted against the forms and precedents bearing thereon.

SECT. V.—Settlements of registered land.(n)

Strict settlements.

The Land Registration Act, 1925, ss. 86 to 90 and 92, and L. R. R., 1925, rr. 56 to 59, 99 to 106, 133, 144, 168, 171, 229; Forms in Sch., Nos. 9 to 11, 21 to 24, 57, 75, contain the main provisions as to the registration of settled land (not being land held on trust for sale), as to how registered land is to be made subject to a settlement, and as to the restrictions to be entered on the register to protect rights under the settlements.

Estate owner to be registered.

Speaking generally, the only estates capable of registration are legal estates: L. R. Act, 1925, s. 2; the tenant for life or statutory owner will be the trustee of the legal estate in the settled land, and will accordingly be registered as proprietor, save where the legal estate is vested in personal representatives. The register keeps the minor or equitable interests off the title, hence, provided that the legal estate is transferred to or vested in the tenant for life or statutory owner, the need for vesting deeds or assents is not quite on the same footing as in the case of unregistered land; but, where necessary, powers for this purpose are prescribed: Forms Nos. 21 (transfer in lieu of a vesting instrument), 22 (transfer to statutory owners), 23 (transfer creating a settlement where the tenant for life settlor is the proprietor), 24 (transfer where the land is acquired with capital money), 57 (vesting assent by personal representatives).

---

Settlements on trust for sale.

Where the settlement is by way of trust for sale the trustees for sale will be the only persons to be registered: L. R. Act, 1925, s. 94; L. R. R., 1925, r. 134; Form in Sch. No. 10. As the register has the effect of keeping the trusts off the title, the trust for sale may be declared by the same deed by which the trusts of the proceeds are declared. Where the trustees for sale are not already the registered proprietors, the requisite transfer or assent must be made in their favour to enable them to be registered.

On settlement of registered land, first tenant for life must be registered as proprietor.

A strict settlement of registered land will, with the addition of the recital of the registration or of the registered transfer of even date, be in the same form as if the land were unregistered. If the settlor is to be the first tenant for life or statutory owner, he will remain the registered proprietor and no instrument of transfer is necessary, but application must be made for entry of the requisite restriction. If not, he should transfer the land in the prescribed manner to the first tenant for life or statutory owner.

Restriction to be registered. Extended powers.

The restriction will prevent any registered disposition not in accordance with the powers vested in a tenant for life or statutory owner by the S. L. Act, 1925, as extended (if at all) by the settlement; references in a restriction to the S. L. Act powers will include powers taking effect as if conferred by the S. L. Act: L. R. R., 1925, r. 58 (2). Powers relating to dealings with registered land in favour of a purchaser, mortgagee, &c., on whomsoever conferred, are made exercisable as if conferred on the tenant for life or statutory owner: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 108–9.

Restriction to be modified on change of trustees.

On an appointment of new trustees of the settlement, application should be made to alter the terms of the registered restriction by substituting the name of the new trustee for the retiring or deceased one: L. R. R., 1925, Sch., Form No. 77.

SECT. VI.—Settlements by infants.(o)

Infant may make settlement on marriage with leave of court.

The Infant Settlements Act, 1855, authorises any male infant over twenty years of age, and any female infant over seventeen, with the leave of the court, to make a valid settlement, or contract for a settlement, of "all or any part of his or her property or property over which he or she has a power of appointment, whether real or personal, and whether in possession, reversion, or expectancy." But this enactment does not apply to powers in regard to which it is expressly declared that they shall not be exercised by an infant, and any appointment or disentailing assurance executed by an infant tenant in tail is void if the infant dies under twenty-one. A married infant can give valid receipts for income and for accumulations made during the previous minority: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 21. The provision as to vesting of accumulations takes effect subject to any settlement made under the Act of 1855: T. Act, 1925, s. 31 (2) (i).

(o) See generally on this subject, Vaizey on Settlements, p. 30, et seq.

How far void.

Legal estate not to be vested in an infant.

There is an express saving of the Act of 1855 in S. L. Act, 1925, s. 27 (3), provided that a legal estate in land is not vested in an infant.

Cases on the construction of the Infant Settlements Act.

A settlement may be made under the Act of 1855 after the marriage has taken place: Re Sampson and Wall (1884), 25 Ch. D. 482; 53 L. J. Ch. 457; and if a female marries under seventeen, the settlement may be made on her attaining that age: Re Phillips (1887), 34 Ch. D. 467; 56 L. J. Ch. 337. The settlement may be extended to the wife's after-acquired property, as being property "in expectancy" within the meaning of the Act.(p) An appointment made under the Act by a female infant, not being a tenant in tail, to the trustees of the settlement upon trusts which fail for want of objects, creates a resulting trust for the appointor, so that on her death under full age the appointed fund under the old law went to her husband as her administrator: Re Scott [1891], 1 Ch. 298; 60 L. J. Ch. 461; and on her death after 1925 would go to her new statutory next of kin under the Ad. of E. Act, 1925.

Jurisdiction of court as to settlement of ward's property on her marriage without leave.

It has been long settled that if a man marries a ward of court without the leave of the court, he is liable to be committed to prison until he executes a proper settlement of the lady's property, and that in a case of intentional contempt of court the settlement will be so framed as to exclude him from all interest in that property. But the court has no jurisdiction to compel a ward to make a settlement of his or her own property.(q)

Act the court will not direct an inquiry as to the propriety of the contemplated marriage: Re Dalton (1856), 6 D. M. & G. 201; 25 L. J. Ch. 751, unless the infant is a ward of court.

Settlement by infant not under Act voidable.

A settlement made by an infant without the leave of the court under the Act is not void, but voidable,(r) i.e., it is binding unless the infant elects to avoid it (s) within a reasonable time after coming of age.(t)

Deed confirming a voidable settlement.

If the wife on coming of age elected to affirm it, and did so by deed, the deed never had to be acknowledged, though she was married before 1883.(u)

Whether and to what extent settlement by husband bound property of infant wife.

Where the intended wife was an infant entitled to personal estate (including chattels real) which, but for the M. W. P. Act, 1882, would under the old law have passed to the husband on the marriage, an effectual settlement could formerly be made of it by the husband without the aid of the Infant Settlements Act, 1855; but the husband now could only bind the chattels personal, his first charge for £1,000, his life interest and possible ultimate interest under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46. And if the infant's interest was a reversionary interest in personalty a settlement made by the husband alone would have been effectual in the event of its falling into possession during the coverture, or of the husband surviving the wife. But the settlement would not have been binding on the wife if the husband died before the property fell into possession.(v)

Effect of M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 2.

Now, under the M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 2, a settlement or agreement for a settlement made after 1907 by the husband or intended husband, whether before or after the marriage, respecting the property of any woman he may marry or have married, is not to be valid unless it is executed by her if she is of full age, or confirmed by her after she attains full age. If she dies an infant any covenant or disposition by her husband contained in the settlement or agreement is to bind or pass any interest

SECT. VII.—Settlements on behalf of Lunatics and Defectives.

Under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 171, the Judge in Lunacy may direct a settlement to be made of a lunatic's property, or any part thereof or interest therein, provided that the lunatic is not an infant. This section is fully discussed in 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 428–32. The expressions "lunatic" and "defective" are defined in L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xiii). One of the main objects of the section is to prevent any injustice arising by reason of the change of the law of devolution of beneficial interests on a death affected by the Ad. of E. Act, 1925.

SECT. VIII.—Voluntary dispositions, how far valid as against (1) subsequent purchasers, (2) creditors, and (3) the settlor himself and his representatives.

Avoidance of conveyances of land made with intent to defraud subsequent purchasers.

(1) By L. P. Act, 1925, s. 173 (reproducing 27 Eliz. c. 4, as amended by Vol. Conv. Act, 1893), voluntary conveyances of land made with the intent to defraud a subsequent purchaser are made voidable at the instance of that purchaser. But no voluntary conveyance is deemed to have been made with intent to defraud by reason that a subsequent conveyance for value was made after 28th June, 1893: This meets Doe v. Manning (1807), 9 East. 59.

Under present law, the intention to defraud must be proved.

Under the present law, a voluntary conveyance of land is good against a subsequent purchaser for value, though he may have no notice of it, unless it can be shown that it was really made with a fraudulent intent.(x) If such intent is proved, but not otherwise, the conveyance will be liable to be set aside. In view of the bankruptcy law, resort is seldom had to this section to set aside a voluntary conveyance. The law is now, for practical purposes, the same for real and personal property.

Dispositions of land or chattels made with intent to defraud creditors voidable.

(2) By L. P. Act, 1925, s. 172 (reproducing, with slight amendments in regard to "good consideration," 13 Eliz. c. 5), all conveyances of property made with intent to defraud creditors are liable to be set aside at the instance of any person thereby prejudiced. A conveyance for valuable consideration and in good faith, or upon good consideration and in good faith to a person not having at the time of the conveyance notice of the intent to defraud creditors, is good.

---

(w) As to the effect of this section, see note to Form No. 10 (Settlements Personal), p. 117, infra.

(x) Re Kelleher [1911], 2 Ir. R. 1; 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 433–4.

Construction.

In order to come within the section, a deed must be made with intent to defraud creditors. If such an intent is clear the deed will be liable to be set aside, even if made for valuable consideration.(y) A voluntary deed will be presumed to be made with intent to defraud creditors, if that will be its necessary effect having regard to the amount of property included in it, and the amount of the settlor's liabilities at the time.(z)

Settlement of leaseholds.

A settlement of leasehold property to which a liability is attached is not a settlement for value, so as to be good on that account only : Ridler v. R. (1882), 22 Ch. D. 74 ; 52 L. J. Ch. 343.

Antecedent debt.

An antecedent debt does not constitute valuable consideration unless there is also a request to forbear to sue : Glegg v. Bromley [1912], 3 K. B. 474.

Subsequent creditors may come in.

If a deed is set aside as being void against creditors, the property comprised in it becomes assets for the payment of debts generally, so that subsequent creditors are entitled to participate in it : Richardson v. Smallwood (1822), Jac. 552.

Voluntary settlement may be set aside, if settlor about to engage in hazardous business.

A voluntary settlement may be set aside, though the settlor's assets, irrespective of what is included therein, may be sufficient to pay his debts at the date of the deed, if the settlor contemplated a state of things which might not improbably result in bankruptcy or insolvency, as if he were engaged or engaging in a hazardous or untried business, or incurring heavy liabilities : Ex p. Russell (1882), 19 Ch. D. 588 ; 51 L. J. Ch. 521 ; and a voluntary deed may be set aside at the instance of a subsequent creditor, though there may be no creditor whose debt was in existence at the date of the settlement.(a)

Clause determining life interest on bankruptcy

A voluntary settlement by a person not indebted at the time, and not in trade, but who many years afterwards embarked in does not invalidate voluntary settlement.

trade and became bankrupt, is not liable to be set aside merely because it contains a clause determining the settlor's life interest on bankruptcy : Re Holland [1902], 2 Ch. 360 ; 71 L. J. Ch. 518.

Consideration may be proved by extrinsic evidence.

A settlement which is in form voluntary may be proved by extrinsic evidence to have been made for a valuable consideration : Pott v. Todhunter (1845), 2 Coll. 76 ; Re Holland, supra ; and an instrument voluntary in its inception may by ex post facto matter cease to be voluntary in the hands of those who have given value on the faith of it, or if it has formed part of the inducement to a marriage.(b)

Saving clause, to whom it applies.

The saving in favour of purchasers for value without notice extends to the purchaser of any interest under the deed impeached, whether that interest be legal or equitable, and prevents the deed from being void against him.(c)

Marriage a valuable consideration.

Marriage is a valuable consideration, hence a settlement made previously to and in consideration of marriage in favour of the husband and wife and their issue is a settlement for valuable consideration, so as to exclude the above-mentioned section.(d) It must be made in good faith to come within the saving in s. 172.

Limitations in settlement in favour of collateral relations, primâ facie voluntary.

But a settlement made after marriage, unless in pursuance of a prior agreement : Re Holland [1902], 2 Ch. 360 ; 71 L. J. Ch. 518, or unless there is some other consideration, is voluntary. If an ante-nuptial settlement contains limitations in favour of collateral relations or strangers, such limitations are primâ facie voluntary ; so is a provision made by either party for a child by a former marriage, or an illegitimate child.(e) Again, a covenant in a marriage settlement will not be enforced in favour of volunteers.(f) Purported solemnisation of marriage within the prohibited degrees is not a marriage constituting a valuable consideration.(g)

Where limitations to collaterals are mixed up with those to children, the whole settlement will be upheld.

If a settlement, whether of the husband's or the wife's lands, contains limitations in favour of strangers to the marriage consideration (including in this expression children of a former or of a subsequent marriage), which are so mixed up with limitations in favour of persons within such consideration that effect cannot be given to the provisions in favour of those within the consideration without giving effect also to those in favour of the strangers, the whole settlement will be upheld.(h)

A slight consideration sufficient to support a post-nuptial settlement.

A post-nuptial settlement made before 1883 by husband and wife of the wife's property for her separate use for life, with remainder to the husband for life, with remainder to the children, has been held to be a settlement for valuable consideration, such consideration being the modification by the husband of his life interest in possession, and by the wife of her inheritance: Re Foster and Lister (1877), 6 Ch. D. 87; 46 L. J. Ch. 480.

But as regards property belonging to the wife for her separate use, or coming to her under the M. W. P. Acts, such a settlement would be by the wife alone, and therefore voluntary: Shurmur v. Sedgwick (1883), 24 Ch. D. 597; 53 L. J. Ch. 87.

Provisions of Bkcy. Act, 1914, as to voluntary settlements.

The rule by which voluntary settlements are void against creditors is extended by the Bkcy. Act, 1914, s. 42, which provides as follows:—

(1) Any settlement of property, not being a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage, or made in favour of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for valuable consideration,(i) or a settlement made on or for the wife or children of the settlor of property which has accrued to the settlor after marriage in right of his wife, shall, if the settlor becomes bankrupt within two years after the date of the settlement, be void against the trustee in the bankruptcy, and shall, if the settlor becomes bankrupt at any subsequent time within ten years after the date of the settlement, be void against the trustee in the bankruptcy, unless the parties claiming under the settlement can prove that the settlor was, at the time of making the settlement, able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement, and that the interest of the settlor in such property passed (Shrager v. March [1908], A. C. 402; 77 L. J. P. C. 105), to the trustee of such settlement on the execution thereof.

(2) Any covenant or contract made by any person (hereinafter called the settlor) in consideration of his or her marriage, either for the future payment of money for the benefit of the settlor's wife or husband or children, or for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or husband or children, of

(i) The release of a claim is sufficient to constitute a person "a purchaser for valuable consideration" within this section: Re Pope [1908], 2 K. B. 169; 77 L. J. K. B. 767; and see also on this section, Sturmey's Trustee v. S. (1913), 107 L. T. 718; Re Macdonald [1920], 1 K. B. 205; 88 L. J. K. B. 1226; Re Collins (1915), 112 L. property, wherein the settlor had not at the date of the marriage any estate or interest, whether vested or contingent, in possession or remainder, and not being money or property in right of the settlor's wife or husband, shall, if the settlor is adjudged bankrupt and the covenant or contract has not been executed at the date of the commencement of his bankruptcy, be void against the trustee in bankruptcy, except in so far as it enables the persons entitled under the covenant or contract to claim for dividend in the settlor's bankruptcy, under or in respect of the covenant or contract, but any such claim to dividend shall be postponed until all claims of the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied.

(3) Any payment of money (not being payment of premiums on a policy of life assurance), or any transfer of property made by the settlor in pursuance of such a covenant or contract, shall be void against the trustee in the settlor's bankruptcy, unless the persons to whom the payment or transfer was made prove either—

(a) that the payment or transfer was made more than two years before the date of the commencement of the bankruptcy; or

(b) that at the date of the payment or transfer the settlor was able to pay all his debts without the aid of the money so paid or the property so transferred; or

(c) that the payment or transfer was made in pursuance of a covenant or contract to pay or transfer money or property expected to come to the settlor from or on the death of a particular person named in the covenant or contract and was made within three months after the money or property came into the possession or under the control of the settlor;

but, in the event of any such payment or transfer being declared void, the persons to whom it was made shall be entitled to claim for dividend under or in respect of the covenant or contract in like manner as if it had not been executed at the date of the bankruptcy.

(4) "Settlement" shall, for the purposes of this section, include any conveyance or transfer of property.

Enactment does not apply to covenant to pay money.

This section, so far as it re-enacts s. 91 of the repealed Act of 1869, applies to settlements executed before as well as after the Act of 1883,(j) and in so far as it re-enacts s. 47 of the repealed Act of 1883 applies to settlements executed before 1915 as well as after 1914, but the new provisions only apply to settlements executed on and after the 1st January, 1915: s. 169. The section does not apply to a covenant for payment of a sum of money not specifically ear-marked.(k)

Donee under voluntary settlement can make a title within the ten years.

Notwithstanding the section, the donee under a voluntary settlement, selling within ten years after its date, can make a good title to a purchaser.(l)

The effect of an order setting aside a settlement under this section is to accelerate subsequent incumbrances.(m)

Voluntary covenants and settlements are binding on the settlor if complete, but not otherwise.

A voluntary disposition of property is valid against the settlor, but the disposition must be complete, i.e., the settlor must have done everything which according to the nature of the property is necessary to be done on his part. Thus, if the legal owner of Consols, standing in his own name: Beech v. Keep (1854), 18 Beav. 285; 23 L. J. Ch. 539; or of bank shares transferable only by entry in the bank books: Milroy v. Lord (1862), 4 D. F. & J. 264; 31 L. J. Ch. 798; purports to assign such Consols or shares by deed, or if a person entitled to leasehold property purports to assign it by a writing not under seal: Richards v. Delbridge (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 11; 43 L. J. Ch. 459; or if the owner of shares in a colliery signs an entry in the partnership books, to the effect that he agrees to transfer such shares, which entry is not sufficient to pass them according to the partnership articles: Heartley v. Nicholson (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 233; 44 L. J. Ch. 277; or if the owner of railway stock hands over the certificate of such stock, saying, "These are yours," or using words to that effect: Moore v. M. (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 474; 43 L. J. Ch. 617; in each of these cases the intended gift, if in favour of a volunteer, is inoperative.

On the other hand, a voluntary assignment by deed or writing of a legal or equitable thing in action,(n) or of a reversionary interest in stock standing in the name of a trustee,(o) or of money owing on a bill of sale: Re Patrick [1891], 1 Ch. 82; 60 L. J. Ch. 111; will be sustained, on the ground that the assignor has done all that he can, having regard to the nature of the property, to divest himself of his interest; nor is it necessary that notice of the assignment should have been given to the debtor or the trustee, the giving of such notice being an act within the province of the assignee rather than the assignor.

Voluntary agreement cannot be enforced, but voluntary declaration of trust good.

A voluntary agreement, whether by deed or writing, to make a disposition of property in favour of another cannot be enforced, and the voluntary assignment of a mere spes successionis can only operate as an agreement.(p) A voluntary declaration of trust, being a complete transaction, is valid.(q) A declaration of trust of an interest in land must be in writing: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 53; but of any other property may be either in writing or by parol: Ex p. Pye (1811), 18 Ves. 140, 150. In some cases it has been sought to sustain, as valid declarations of trust, instruments purporting to be assignments, but which are incomplete as such. It is now well settled that the court will not treat an incomplete gift as if it were a declaration of trust.(r) Thus, an imperfect assignment of furniture by a husband to his wife by letters has been held void: Re Breton's Estate (1881), 17 Ch. D. 416; 50 L. J. Ch. 369. The true test is whether anything remains to be done by the donor to render the gift binding upon him: Re Smith (1901), 84 L. T. 835.

Effect of recital of ante-nuptial agreement.

A recital in a post-nuptial settlement that it was made in pursuance of an ante-nuptial agreement does not, independently of extraneous evidence, bind creditors seeking to impeach it as fraudulent under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 172, but is sufficient to satisfy: s. 53; ib., as against the settlor himself, and to prevent him or any person claiming under him, including his trustee in bankruptcy, from resisting specific performance of a covenant contained in the deed on the ground that it is voluntary: Re Holland [1902], 2 Ch. 360; 71 L. J. Ch. 518.

What must be shown in order to support a voluntary deed as against settlor.

In order to support a voluntary deed against the settlor, the parties claiming under it must be able to show that he understood what he was doing. This is particularly the case if the settlor was young or otherwise inexperienced in business at the time when he made the settlement, or if the deed contains unusual provisions,(s) but the court does not consider the propriety or impropriety of the provisions except as bearing on the question whether the settlor knew what he was doing: Dutton v. Thompson (1883), 23 Ch. D. 278; 52 L. J. Ch. 661.

Where there is a fiduciary relationship between parties.

Where there is a fiduciary relation between the parties—e.g., that of parent and child, guardian and ward, solicitor and client, trustee and beneficiary—a gift cannot be supported, unless it is clearly shown that it was not influenced thereby.(t) For this purpose the donor must have separate and independent advice, and the solicitor advising him must satisfy himself not only that the donor fully understands what he is doing, but also that the gift is a proper one for him to make under the circumstances; if he is not so satisfied, his duty is to advise his client not to go on with the transaction, and to refuse to act further for him if he persists. For instance, in a re-settlement the ultimate limitation must be in favour of the tenant in tail, not in favour of the tenant for life unless the latter has in fact purchased the ultimate interest. It is also necessary that the separate adviser should be aware of all the circumstances, and be in a position to give all the necessary information.(u) The rule does not necessarily apply as between husband and wife: Howes v. Bishop [1909], 2 K. B. 390.

(q) Pulvertoft v. P. (1811), 18 Ves. 84, 99, and cf. Re Innes [1910], 1 Ch. 188; 79 L. J. Ch. 174; but the court must be satisfied that a present irrevocable declaration of trust has been made and the absence of communication of such declaration raises a strong inference against an intention to make the declaration irrevocable: Re Cozens [1913], 2 Ch. 478; 82 L. J. Ch. 421.

(r) Milroy v. Lord (1862), 4 D. F. & J. 264; 31 L. J. Ch. 798; Mallott v. Wilson [1903], 2 Ch. 494, 500; 72 L. J. Ch. 664.

(s) Cooke v. Lamotte (1851), 15 Beav. 234; 21 L. J. Ch. 371; Prideaux v. Lonsdale (1863), 1 D. J. & S. 433; 32 L. J. Ch. 317, 321; Phillips v. Mullings (1871), L. R. 7 Ch. 244; 41 L. J. Ch. 211.

Limitation in favour of tenant in tail.

In the case of a gift by a client to his solicitor, the presumption of influence is not rebutted by the mere fact of the donor employing a separate solicitor to advise him in that particular matter, so long as the relation of solicitor and client subsists between donee and donor for other purposes outside the gift, or at all events unless it can be clearly inferred that the influence arising from the relation no longer exists: Wright v. Carter [1903], 1 Ch. 27; 72 L. J. Ch. 138.

Gifts from client to solicitor.

A purchaser for value, unless he has notice to the contrary, may assume that a solicitor who acts for the donor has done his duty.(v)

It has been sometimes supposed to be the duty of the solicitor who prepares a voluntary deed to advise the insertion of a power of revocation in all cases, and that the want of such a power, unless by the express direction of the settlor, invalidates the deed. But there is no such general rule.(w) It depends on the circumstances whether such a power should be recommended or not;

Whether a power of revocation should be inserted.

in many cases it would be proper, while in others it would defeat the very object for which the deed is executed. It is only necessary to satisfy the court that the settlement, whether it contains a power of revocation or not, is the free determined act of the party making it, and if a person of full age and sound mind executes a voluntary settlement, he cannot have the deed set aside without giving some substantial reason why the transaction should not stand.

Partial rectification giving a general power.

Where a young man made a voluntary settlement in favour of himself, his wife, and children, with an ultimate trust in default of issue for his next of kin, the court upheld the settlement on the whole, but directed that it should be rectified by giving to the settlor a general power of appointment in default of issue.(x)

Voluntary assignment to trustees for benefit of creditors revocable.

A voluntary assignment of property to trustees in trust for the benefit of creditors who do not execute and are not privy to the deed operates merely as a power or mandate to the trustees, which may be revoked by the debtor at any time.(y)

Secus when communicated to creditors.

But if the disposition is communicated to creditors, the trust becomes irrevocable as against them, while as against other creditors, to whom it has not been communicated, it remains revocable.(z)

Doctrine does not apply to provision for mortgagees coming into effect after settlor's death.

The doctrine does not apply to a provision for creditors which comes into operation after the settlor's death. Thus where, by a voluntary deed, lands are limited in strict settlement, including a limitation to trustees of a term to commence at the settlor's death, in trust to accumulate the rents in order to raise a fund for payment of mortgages charged on the estate, the mortgagees become beneficiaries unless the instrument otherwise provides; hence the trust cannot be put an end to by a person claiming under the settlor.(a)

Provisions of the Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, as to voluntary dispositions.

Under Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 59 (as amended), if the settlor dies within three years after the execution of a voluntary settlement, death duties attach to the property. Under s. 74 a voluntary settlement must be stamped with ad valorem conveyance duty. In the case of land the consideration is the value of the land, and may necessitate a valuation. Hence, the practice of executing voluntary settlements, at any rate of land (e.g., resettlements by father and son otherwise than on a marriage), are not so general as was formerly the case.

Settlements, &c., to avoid death duties or income tax, &c.

Many settlements or dispositions have, in recent years, been made to avoid death duties, income tax or super tax. Indeed, limited companies are, in many cases, incorporated with a view to saving death duties and super tax. These are transactions of a special nature, depending so much on the circumstances of each case, that it does not appear to be expedient to furnish forms or precedents purporting to deal with such matters.

SECT. IX.—Stamps on Settlements.

The Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910.

Section 74 (1) of the Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, provides as follows:—

Dispositions inter vivos.

> Any conveyance or transfer operating as a voluntary disposition inter vivos shall be chargeable with the like stamp duty as if it were a conveyance or transfer on sale, with the substitution in each case of the value of the property conveyed or transferred for the amount or value of the consideration for the sale.

No particular method of valuation is prescribed, but when the value of the land is ascertained ad valorem stamp duty at the rate of £1 per cent. is, with certain exceptions, chargeable.(b)

Settlements.

Sub-section 4 of the same section provides:—

> Where any instrument is chargeable with duty both as a conveyance or transfer under this section and as a settlement under the heading "Settlement" in the First Schedule to the principal Act (the Stamp Act, 1891) the instrument shall be charged with duty as a conveyance or transfer under this section, but not as a settlement under the principal Act.

Exceptions.

This duty is not payable on conveyances or transfers in the following cases:—

(i) Where the consideration is marriage.(c)

(ii) Where made in favour of any body which is precluded from dividing any profit among its members and the property conveyed is to be held as an open space, or for the purposes of its preservation for the benefit of the nation: ib., sub-s. (1).

(iii) Where made for a nominal consideration for securing the repayment of a loan: ib., sub-s. (6).

(iv) Where made on the appointment or discharge of trustees, whether the trust is express or implied: ib., sub-s. (6).

(b) Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 73. See infra for summary of stamp duties on voluntary settlements according to the nature of the property settled.

(c) Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74 (5); where a resettlement is made by father and son on the marriage of the latter, such marriage is the consideration within this section, for the asset settled is the estate of the son.

(v) Where no beneficial interest passes, e.g., where an outstanding legal estate is conveyed by a trustee or a settlement is executed pursuant to directions in a Will: ib., sub-s. (6).

(vi) Where a trustee conveys property to a beneficiary, e.g., on the winding up of a trust: ib., sub-s. (6).

(vii) Disentailing assurances which do not limit any new estate other than an estate in fee simple in the person who disentails, e.g., where the tenant for life and tenant in tail disentail and limit the property upon such trusts as they jointly appoint, and subject thereto upon the existing trusts: ib., sub-s. (6).

Mention of grounds of exemption in the instrument.

The exemptions numbered (iii)–(vii) are allowed whether the instrument states the grounds of exemption or not.

Where a disposition is made on marriage it should always be stated that the intended marriage is the consideration, so as to obtain the benefit of exemption (i). Also in cases coming within exemption (ii) it will be desirable to state the nature and the purposes of the grant.

" Settlements."

Where the disposition comes within the definition of " settlement " in the First Schedule to the Stamp Act, 1891, it is nevertheless to be stamped as a conveyance or transfer (sub-s. 4). Thus voluntary settlements of land are chargeable with ad valorem duty on the value of the property settled.

Inadequacy of consideration, effect on subsequent purchaser.

Under s. 74 (5) the Commissioners can raise the objection that a conveyance is made for an inadequate consideration and is stampable as a settlement, but once the conveyance is stamped the provisions of the sub-section are at an end so far as any subsequent purchaser is concerned: Re Weir and Pitt (1911), 55 Sol. J. 536.

Summary of stamps on voluntary conveyances and transfers.

The general effect of ss. 73 and 74 of the Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, with reference to the stamps on voluntary conveyances or transfers may, it is conceived, be shortly stated as follows :—

Land.

As regards land, the ad valorem stamp will be £1 per £100 on the value of the property conveyed. This may involve the cost of a valuation.

Rights of redemption.

As regards a right of redemption, the amount of the mortgage debt must be deducted from the value of the property conveyed.

Life policies.

As regards life policies, the value will be the surrender value at the time of the assignment; this will generally be small. The stamp will be £1 per £100 on the value plus the covenant stamp (2*s*. 6*d*. per £5) for an annuity equal to the yearly premiums payable on the policies if there is a covenant to keep them up. Thus, as a rule, it will be worth while to make a voluntary settlement of policies.

Covenant to pay premiums.

Reversionary interests. As regards reversionary interests, the value of the reversion at the date of the assignment will be taken. The stamp will be £1 per £100 on such value. Frequently the stamp will be less than the 5*s*. per £100 marriage settlement stamp based on the value which would be attributable to the reversion if it had fallen into possession. Semble, an appointment of a reversion to be held on trust operates as an assignment, hence comes within s. 74.

Bearer securities. As regards bearer securities semble, ss. 73 and 74 do not apply, for there is no transfer in regard to which the stamp duty can be paid. It follows that the stamp on a settlement thereof will be 5*s*. per £100 as in the case of a marriage settlement. Instruments have been adjudicated on this footing, but in some cases it is open for the Commissioners to claim that a declaration of trust amounts to an equitable conveyance.

Cases where there are no transfers. Again, the same principle would appear to apply where the investments already stand in the names of the trustees of the new settlement (e.g., on a resettlement of capital money and investments where the trustees of the prior settlement continue to act). Here, unless the dealing amounts to an equitable conveyance, the stamp will be 5*s*. per £100, notwithstanding that the equitable interests are dealt with, for the case cannot be distinguished from that of bearer securities.

Stocks and marketable securities. As regards stocks and marketable securities as defined in the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 122,(d) the stamp was not doubled by s. 73, but it has now been doubled by the Fin. Act, 1920, s. 36.

These stamps will be carried on the transfers of the stock and not on the voluntary settlement.

Vesting deeds. Where a vesting deed is used, the ad valorem stamp is placed on the trust instrument, not on the vesting deed: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 4 (3) (e); a purchaser is not concerned with the stamp on the trust instrument: ib., s. 110 (2).

Mortgage debts. The Act of 1910, though possibly wide enough in terms, does not appear to alter the law in regard to the stamps payable on the transfer (6*d*. per £100 on the amount transferred) or voluntary settlement (5*s*. per £100) of a mortgage debt; see per contra, Alpe, 17th ed., 196, 199; at any rate, so far as the transfer is concerned, 6*d*. per £100 of the debt transferred appears to be the proper stamp. Section 74 only imposes a stamp on the transfer of property, not on a settlement as such. Very explicit language would be required to impose a higher ad valorem stamp on a voluntary transfer than would have been payable had the consideration been the full value of the mortgage debt, seeing that primâ facie the stamp is based on the sum transferred, not on the consideration paid. It would be intolerable if a purchaser could not rely on the usual ad valorem stamp as being correct; it would mean that the stamp on nearly every transfer of mortgage would have to be adjudicated. The transfer would not show whether the case was within s. 74, or not.

(d) See also Speyer Bros. v. I. R. Commrs. [1908], A. C. 92; 77 L. J. K. B. 302.

What voluntary settlements still desirable.

It follows from the above that it may still be well worth while to make voluntary settlements of rights of redemption (where the mortgage debt does not leave a large margin), life policies, reversionary interests, bearer securities, cash, investments (where no transfer is required and the transaction does not amount to an equitable conveyance) and semble mortgage debts. By reason of the favourable position (except as regards the initial stamp) of bearer securities, the practice of authorising investment in them has become more common in Wills and settlements; this is recognised in T. Act, 1925, s. 7. Before making a voluntary settlement of investments it may sometimes be worth while to sell out and invest in bearer securities.

Why bearer securities are authorised.

Declarations for defining existing trusts.

Where money or bearer securities have been delivered to trustees on the faith of undertakings, previously given, that if this is done they will hold them on certain specified trusts, a deed of declaration of trust subsequently executed for furnishing evidence of the actual trusts on which the property is held, only attracts a 10*s*. stamp.

Voluntary settlements of land.

Voluntary settlements of land have become so expensive, having regard to the £1 ad valorem duty and the possible cost of valuation, that in the case of resettlements by a father and son, instead of barring the estate tail and resettling upon the son attaining full age, the practice is becoming general of postponing the resettlement until the son's marriage, or until it can be disposed of by Will, except as to such parts of the property to be settled as will not carry the £1 ad valorem stamp.

Adjudication.

Sub-section (2) of s. 74 provides for the adjudication of the stamp. The stamp should always be adjudicated.

Stamping after execution.

Sub-section (3) enables voluntary dispositions to be stamped after execution without penalty within the periods mentioned in the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 15 (2).

Stamps where the instrument is exempted from the new duty.

Where a settlement is exempt from the ad valorem conveyance duty, e.g., a marriage settlement, the provisions of the Stamp Act, 1891, still apply.

Stamps on settlements.

By the Stamp Act, 1891, the following stamp duties are made payable under the head of "Settlement" in the schedule—

Any instrument [whether voluntary, or], upon any good or valuable consideration, other than a bona fide pecuniary consideration, whereby any definite and certain principal sum of money (whether charged or chargeable on lands or other hereditaments or heritable subjects, or not, or to be laid out in the purchase of lands or other hereditaments or heritable subjects or not), or any definite and certain amount of stock, or any security, is settled, or agreed to be settled in any manner whatsoever:

Instrument of appointment relating to any property in favour of persons specially named or described as the objects of a power of appointment, where duty has been duly paid in respect of the same property upon the settlement creating the power or the grant of representation of any Will or testamentary instrument creating the power.(e)

Bond or covenant for annuity.

Settlements frequently contain covenants for payment of an annuity. Under the same Act a Bond, Covenant, or other Instrument (f) for payment of an annuity is charged as follows:—

(1) Being the only or principal or primary security (g) for any annuity (except upon the original creation thereof by way of sale or security, and except a superannuation annuity), or of any sum or sums of money at stated periods, not being interest for any principal sum secured by a duly stamped instrument, nor rent reserved by a lease or tack.

The Act also contains the following provisions relating to stamps on settlements :—

Settlement of policy or security.

Section 104.—(1) Where any money which may become due or payable upon any policy of life insurance, or upon any security not being a marketable security, is settled or agreed to be settled, the instrument whereby the settlement is made or agreed to be made, is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of that money.

(2) Provided as follows :—

Proviso as policies.

(a) Where, in the case of a policy, no provision is made for keeping up the policy, the ad valorem duty is to be charged only on the value of the policy at the date of the instrument.(i)

(b) If in any such case the instrument contains a statement of the said value, and is stamped in accordance with the statement, it is, so far as regards the policy, to be deemed duly stamped, unless or until it is shown that the statement is untrue, and that the instrument is in fact insufficiently stamped.

Settlements when not to be charged as securities.

Where reversionary interest settled, exemption as regards annual sum payable in meantime.

Section 105. An instrument chargeable with ad valorem duty as a settlement in respect of any money, stock, or security is not to be charged with any further duty by reason of containing provision for the payment or transfer of the money, stock, or security, or by reason of containing, where the money, stock, or security is in reversion or is not paid or transferred upon the execution of the instrument, provision for the payment, by the person entitled in possession to the interest or dividends of the money, stock, or security, during the continuance of such possession, of any annuity or yearly sum not exceeding interest at the rate of £4 per cent. per annum upon the amount or value of the money, stock, or security.

Where several instruments, one only to be charged with ad valorem duty.

Section 106.—(1) Where several instruments are executed for effecting the settlement of the same property, and the ad valorem duty chargeable in respect of the settlement of the property exceeds ten shillings, one only of the instruments is to be charged with the ad valorem duty.

(2) Where a settlement is made in pursuance of a previous agreement upon which ad valorem settlement duty exceeding ten shillings has been paid in respect of any property, the settlement is not to be charged with ad valorem settlement duty in respect of the same property.

(3) In each of the aforesaid cases the instruments not chargeable with ad valorem duty are to be charged with the duty of ten shillings.

Penalty for not stamping a settlement within the prescribed period.

If a settlement is not stamped within thirty days after it is first executed, or if executed abroad, within thirty days after it is first received in the United Kingdom, the settlor (in the case of conveyances or transfers operating as voluntary dispositions, the grantor or transferor, see Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74 (3)) is liable to forfeit £10 : Act of 1891, s. 15 (2) (c).

" Definite and certain."

The expression " definite and certain " applies not to the interest of the settlor, but to the amount of the money, and the ad valorem settlement duty is payable though the settlor's interest is only contingent.(j)

SECT. X.—Income Tax.

The law relating to income tax is outside the scope of this work, and practitioners should consult one of the works solely relating to this subject, such as Konstam on Income Tax. But where a point on income tax arises, a foot-note has been made against the form or precedent.

Income tax law consolidated by the Income Tax Act, 1918.

The law relating to income tax has been consolidated by the Income Tax Act, 1918, as amended by the Finance Acts, 1919 to 1926.

Rules as to assessment of tax.

The rules as to assessment of property for the purposes of taxation are given in Schedules A to E, and are supplemented by general rules applicable to all schedules.

Tax charged on income at source.

In most cases income tax is charged at the source of income; thus, the tax on dividends is generally paid before the dividends, and the tax on income derived from land is first charged on the tenant whether or not he is the beneficial owner of the income.

Income derived from land assessed in Sch. A and B.

Income derived from the ownership of land is assessed for income tax under Sch. A; that derived from the occupation of land under Sch. B.

Where the owner and occupier are the same person both schedules apply.

Sch. A, landlords' property tax.

Income tax under Sch. A, commonly known as landlords' property tax, is first paid by the tenant or occupier: Sch. A, VII, r. 1, but an incoming tenant is only liable for so much of the tax as he can recover from his landlord, i.e., in respect of that part of the year of assessment in which he occupied the premises, similarly an outgoing tenant is charged an apportioned share of the tax: ib., VII, rr. 2, 3.

When landlord pays tax in first instance.

In the following cases the landlord pays the tax in the first instance—

(a) Where the annual value of the property is under ten pounds;

(b) Where a house is used by a number of independent tenants;

(c) Where a house is let for less than a year;

(d) Where a house is occupied by an accredited representative of a foreign state: Sch. A, VII, rr. 8, 10.

Deduction from rent in respect of landlords' property tax.

A tenant may deduct from his rent an amount equal to the amount he has paid in respect of landlords' property tax, but he cannot do this until he has actually paid the tax: Sch. A, VIII, r. 1: Barnes v. Kyffin (1916), W. N. 166; and Konstam, 3rd ed., 60.

It is immaterial whether the rent is payable to the landlord or to a mortgagee.

Where the rent exceeds the assessment for tax, the amount to be deducted will be calculated on the basis of the assessment and not on the rent.(k)

Deduction must be made from the first payment of rent after the tax has been paid : Hill v. Kirshenstein [1920], 3 K. B. 556 ; 89 L. J. K. B. 1128.

Deduction from annuities and mortgage interest in respect of income tax.

A similar rule as to deduction applies where the tax has been charged in respect of an annuity or interest upon a mortgage. In the case of an annuity, if the land upon which it is charged does not, in fact, produce any income, so that the payment is made from other sources, the tax deducted will be that paid on the source from which the annuity was paid and not that on the land charged : L. C. C. v. A.-G. [1901], A. C. 26 ; 70 L. J. K. B. 77.

Commissioners' receipt need not be shown.

Where an amount paid in income tax is deducted from rent or mortgage interest or an annuity, the income tax receipt need not be shown as proof that income tax has actually been paid.(l)

Agreements not to deduct tax are void.

Any agreement not to deduct tax is void (Gen. r. 23),(m) but this does not apply to an agreement to pay a fixed rate of interest after deduction of income tax : Brooke v. Price [1917], A. C. 115 ; 86 L. J. Ch. 329.

This rule does not affect Wills : Konstam, 3rd ed., 63.

Exemptions from liability for income tax.

Exemption from income tax is allowed in certain cases of which examples are given below.

General liability of corporations.

Limited companies and other corporations are liable to pay the tax at the full rate, whatever the amount of their income, and upon the whole of their income, subject to the following exceptions :—

(a) Certain exemptions are allowed to charitable bodies (not including schools) and to trustees for charitable purposes ;(n)

Number of trustees.

(c) If any land is held on trust for sale by a deed of even date, or any land is authorised to be acquired, there must be at least two trustees unless a trust corporation is acting: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2); L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sched. There must not be more than four trustees: T. Act, 1925, s. 34; the same persons must act as trustees of any conveyance on trust for sale as are acting as trustees of the settlement declaring the trusts of the proceeds of sale: ib., s. 35. For the meaning of "trust corporation": L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xxviii); L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 3.

Trust corporation.

The definition "the trustees" is now sufficient for all purposes: T. Act, 1925, ss. 18 (devolution of powers or trusts), 36 (7) (powers of new or additional trustees), 43 (the like when appointed by the court). It is no longer necessary or expedient to provide that the expression includes the survivors or survivor of them or the personal representatives of the survivor or other the trustees or trustee for the time of the instrument.

Construction of documents.

In all deeds and other instruments coming into operation after 1925, "month" means calendar month; "person" includes a corporation; the singular includes the plural and vice versa, and the masculine includes the Dates; figures in place of words.

In recitals of documents stating the date or referring to a year, figures, not words, should be employed. It is usual, though not essential, that words should be used when giving the date at the beginning of a deed or Will.

Notices of dealings with reversionary interests, &c.

It must be seen that notice in writing is given of all dealings with life, reversionary or other equitable interests in accordance with L. P. Act, 1925, s. 137; as to trust corporations acting as registrars of such notices: ib., s. 138.

If marriage not solemnised.

Order under Infant Settlements Act.

BY an Order of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice made in Chambers,(i) on the —— day of ——, in the action —— v. ——, and in the matter of The Infant Settlements Act, 1855,(j) Upon the application of the Wife, by, &c., her next friend, and of the said —— (the guardians), the Judge being of opinion that [the proposed marriage of the said infant —— with the Husband was a fit and proper marriage for the said infant, and that] the Settlement proposed to be effected [by a Conveyance of even date herewith

---

(i) See R. S. C., 1883, O. 55, r. 2 (10).

Infant Settlements Act, 1855.

(j) Under the Act, any appointment or disentailing assurance by an infant tenant in tail becomes void if he dies under age: s. 2; but an appointment by an infant, who is not a tenant in tail, remains effectual notwithstanding death: Re Scott [1891], 1 Ch. 298; 60 L. J. Ch. 461. The Act is expressly saved by the S. L. Act, 1925, s. 27 (3), provided that a legal estate in land is not vested in an infant.

Application of the Act to post-nuptial settlement.

The Act applies only to male infants who have attained twenty, and females who have attained seventeen: s. 4; but a binding settlement can be made after marriage: Re Sampson and Wall (1884), 25 Ch. D. 482; 53 L. J. Ch. 457; followed in Re A. B. (1914), W. N. 140; Re Phillips (1889), 34 Ch. D. 467; 56 L. J. Ch. 337; Re Leigh (1889), 40 Ch. D. 290; 58 L. J. Ch. 306 (in the last two cases the infant was under the specified age at the time of marriage); and though the point was left open in Seaton v. S. (1887), 13 A. C. 61; 57 L. J. Ch. 661, such settlements are still authorised by the court.

No jurisdiction to compel settlement.

The court has no jurisdiction to compel an infant to make a settlement, whether a ward of court (Re Leigh, supra), or not: Re Potter (1869), L. R. 7 Eq. 484.

Agreement to settle after-acquired property.

Property coming to the infant under the Will of a person who dies after the settlement is "in expectancy" within the meaning of the Act and bound by a covenant to settle after-acquired property: Re Johnson [1891], 3 Ch. 48; 60 L. J. Ch. 499; but cf. Allcard v. Walker [1896], 2 Ch. 369; 65 L. J. Ch. 660.

Provision for future marriage.

The settlement should provide for the children of a female ward by a future husband: Rudge v. Winnall (1848), 11 Beav. 98; 17 L. J. Ch. 215; Re Hoare (1862), 4 Giff. 254.

Husband will not be excluded from taking under wife's testamentary appointment.

The court has refused to authorise a provision prohibiting the wife from exercising a testamentary power vested in her, in default of issue of the marriage, in favour of her husband, though he married a ward in defiance of an order of the court: Re Sampson and Wall (1884), 25 Ch. D. 482; 53 L. J. Ch. 457.

Costs of settlement.

The costs of all parties of the settlement (including the husband) may be and] by this deed was a proper Settlement to be made in contemplation of [such] the intended marriage of the said infant with the Husband and that the Deed[s] therein referred to, being [the said Conveyance of even date herewith and] this Deed, was a [were] proper Deed[s] for giving effect to such Settlement, the said Judge did, pursuant to the aforesaid Act, authorise and approve of such Settlement, and did order that the said infant should be at liberty, in contemplation of her marriage with the Husband, to execute the said Deed[s] accordingly [and that upon the due execution of the said Conveyance of even date herewith, and of this Deed by the said —— and ——, they should be at liberty to intermarry].(k).

Settlement approved by the Judge.

THIS deed has been approved by the said Judge, as appears by the signature of the Master in the margin hereof:

No. 10A.

Order for the settlement of a lunatic's property.(l)

(1) By an Order dated the —— day of ——, and made under the Act 53 Vict., c. 5, and Amending Acts, In the Matter of the Settlor, the Receiver was appointed to exercise the powers of a committee of the estate of the Settlor:

paid out of capital on the marriage of a female ward: De Stacpoole v. De S. (1889), 37 Ch. D. 139; 57 L. J. Ch. 463.

Settlements by infants apart from the Act.

Apart from the Act, an agreement by the husband, which before the M. W. P. Act, 1882, bound the property of his infant wife as affecting the marital right, continued to have that effect by virtue of s. 19 of the latter Act: Stevens v. Trevor-Garrick [1893], 2 Ch. 307; 62 L. J. Ch. 660; Buckland v. B. [1900], 2 Ch. 534; 69 L. J. Ch. 648; until the M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 2, otherwise provided.

Infants' contracts.

An agreement for a settlement by an infant is voidable, not void: Duncan v. Dixon (1890), 44 Ch. D. 211; 59 L. J. Ch. 437; and, unless repudiated within a reasonable time after coming of age, becomes binding: Burnaby v. Equitable, &c., Socy. (1885), 28 Ch. D. 416; 54 L. J. Ch. 466; Edwards v. Carter [1893], A. C. 360; 63 L. J. Ch. 100; Carnell v. Harrison [1916], 1 Ch. 328; 85 L. J. Ch. 321; and may be effectually ratified while still under coverture: Re Hodson [1894], 2 Ch. 421; 63 L. J. Ch. 609. The infant may be put to election to confirm the settlement or take nothing under it unless she is restrained from anticipation: Willoughby v. Middleton (1862), 2 J. & H. 344; 31 L. J. Ch. 683; Smith v. Lucas (1881), 18 Ch. D. 531; Re Vardon (1886), 31 Ch. D. 275; 55 L. J. Ch. 259; Hamilton v. H. [1892], 1 Ch. 396; 51 L. J. Ch. 220; Re Hargrove [1915], 1 Ch. 398; 84 L. J. Ch. 484; Bolster v. B. [1916], 1 I. R. 57; cf. Haynes v. Foster [1901], 1 Ch. 361; 70 L. J. Ch. 302, which, however, was not followed in Re Hargrove, supra.

Election.

Liberty to marry necessary only in case of ward.

(k) The enquiry as to the fitness of the marriage and liberty to marry are only necessary where the infant is a ward of court: Re Dalton (1856), 6 D. M. and G. 201; 25 L. J. Ch. 751. Where the application is only under the Act for the purpose of making a settlement binding on the infant, the infant does not become a ward of court: Seton, 7th ed., 1006, Form No. 5; 1015; and the words "the proposed marriage of the said infant," &c., and "and that upon due execution," &c., should be omitted.

(l) The recitals must be made to accord with the orders or minutes of the proposed orders

(2) By another Order made by the Judge in the Matter aforesaid and in the Matter of the Law of Property Act, 1925, section one hundred and seventy-one, on the application of the Receiver [or other person authorised under sub-s. (4)] the Judge being of opinion that, having regard to [set out the circumstances which render a settlement expedient, see sub-s. (1)] the settlement proposed to be effected [by a Conveyance of even date herewith and] by this Deed was a proper settlement to be made of [part of] the Settlor's property, and that the Deed[s] therein referred to [or draft thereof] being [the said Conveyance of even date herewith and] this Deed [or a draft[s] thereof] was a [were] proper Deed[s] for giving effect to such settlement the Judge did, pursuant to the said section, direct that the said Settlement should be made and did order that the Receiver [or any trustee in whom the property may be vested, see sub-s. (2)] should, in the name and on behalf of the Settlor, execute the said Settlement [and all transfers requisite for vesting the property and investments mentioned in the Settlement in the trustees named therein]:

Approval by the Judge.

SECTION II.

ASSIGNMENT OF PROPERTY AND DECLARATION OF TRUSTS UNTIL MARRIAGE.

No. 12.

Commencement of operative part.

NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement and in consideration of the said intended marriage, THIS DEED WITNESSETH and it is hereby declared as follows:—

No. 13.

Declaration of trusts of investments until marriage for Husband.

THE Husband,(m) with the privity of the Wife, hereby directs, and the Trustees hereby agree with the other parties hereto, that the Trustees shall and will stand possessed of the investments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, and so transferred into their joint names as aforesaid UPON TRUST for the Husband (m) until the said intended marriage, and after the solemnisation thereof Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions hereinafter declared concerning the same :

No. 14.

Assignment of personal property.

THE Wife,(n) As Settlor,(o) with the approbation of the Husband [or with the privity of the "Wife," as the case may be] hereby assigns unto the Trustees:

No. 15.

Description of reversionary share under recited settlement.

[FIRST,] ALL THAT the one-—— share to which the Wife (p) is now or will on the solemnisation of the said intended marriage become under the Settlement of 19— entitled in expectancy as aforesaid in the investments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto or in other the investments for the time being held upon the trusts of that Settlement :

No. 16.

Description of reversionary share under recited Will.

[SECONDLY,] ALL THAT the one-—— share to which the Wife (q) is now under the recited Will of ——, deceased, entitled in expectancy as aforesaid in the proceeds of the sale of the real estate and chattels real, and in the investments respectively mentioned in the first and second parts of the —— Schedule hereto or other the property for the time being held upon the trusts of that Will:

No. 17.

Description where defeasible shares are to be included.

AND ALL OTHER (if any) the shares or interests to which the Wife (or other person) may be or become [whether under or in default of appointment] entitled in the investments or in the real estate and chattels real, or in the proceeds of the sale of the real estate or chattels real from time to time held on the trusts of the Settlement of 19— [or the recited Will] :(r)

(n) Or whoever is entitled to the interests settled.

Qualification of covenants implied by "As Settlor."

(o) In 2 K. & E., 9th ed., 521, 597, it was suggested that a proviso to the effect that the implied covenants by the settlor should not render him or any persons deriving title under him liable to discharge or get in any incumbrance or estate not created by him or them should be inserted to qualify the covenants implied by conveying or assigning "As Settlor."

This can seldom be required. In a marriage settlement where both the spouses bring in property it is hardly desirable. In a voluntary settlement it may sometimes be expedient to omit the words "As Settlor." In any case any known incumbrance or liability ought to be referred to in the habendum.

(p) Or other person entitled.

(q) Or other person entitled. It is assumed that the land (if any) is held on trust for sale. It was formerly desirable to authorise the trustees to accept a conveyance of land in satisfaction of a share in the proceeds, but the head trustees for sale have a power to partition the land when the original shares have become absolutely vested, notwithstanding that a share may be subject to a derivative trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (3); thus the derivative trustees, being bound by the partition, do not require any such power.

(r) This would include a share to which the settlor was entitled in default

No. 17A.

The like of accruing shares under a Will containing a trust for sale.

ALL THAT, &c. (as in Form No. 16).

AND ALL OTHER (if any) the share or shares, as well original as accruing or to accrue, in the said real estate, chattels real and investments or the proceeds of sale thereof, or any other real or personal estate for the time being subject to the trusts of the recited Will, or the proceeds of sale thereof to which the Wife (or other person) is now or may at any time hereafter by any means become entitled under the trusts or powers of the recited Will.

No. 18.

Assignment of a portion under a realty settlement.

THE Husband [Wife], As Settlor, with the privity of the Wife [with the approbation of the Husband], hereby assigns unto the Trustees:

ALL THAT the sum of £—— raisable on the death of the said —— under the trusts of the said term of —— years, and to which the Husband (or other person) is now indefeasibly entitled as aforesaid under the trusts of the Settlement of 19—, and the recited Deed of Appointment thereunder:

of appointment, and a subsequently appointed share: Sweetapple v. Horlock (1879), 11 Ch. D. 745.

Where principal sum is appointed.

Any of the foregoing parcels can be adapted to the case where a principal sum is appointed in place of a share; compare Form No. 18, infra.

Power to accept specific property in place of share.

(s) Where reversionary shares are settled, sub-clause (4) of Form No. 23, p. 124, may be used to authorise the trustees to accept specific property in satisfaction of the shares assigned. The words "premises hereinbefore assigned" will be substituted for the words "foregoing covenant" in that Form. But under T. Act, 1925, s. 22 (1), trustees have power, when reversionary interests fall into possession or become payable, to agree the value thereof, to accept authorised investments in or towards satisfaction thereof and to allow deductions for duties and costs.

Registered land.

SECTION III.

TRUSTS AFTER MARRIAGE AND POWERS OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

No. 25.

Trusts after marriage of investments only; to invest and vary.

THE Trustees shall, after the solemnisation of the said intended marriage, stand possessed of the investments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto UPON TRUST that the Trustees shall either permit the same to remain as invested (f) or shall, with the consent (g) of the Husband and Wife during their joint lives or of the survivor of them during his or her life, and after the death of both at the discretion of the Trustees, sell, call in or convert into money all or any of the investments, and shall with the like consent or at the like discretion invest the money arising thereby in the names (h) or under the control of the Trustees in any of the investments hereinafter authorised, with power from time to time with the like consent or at the like discretion (i) to change such investments for others of a like nature.

No. 26.

The like of proceeds of sale of real estate only.

THE Trustees shall, with the consent of the Husband and Wife during their joint lives, or of the survivor of them during his or her life, and after the death of both at the discretion of the Trustees, invest the net money to arise from any sale made under the trust for sale contained in the recited Conveyance of even date herewith, or any other capital money arising under that conveyance, in the names or under the control of the Trustees (continue as in last Form).

Trust to retain or sell.

(f) Re Anson [1907], 2 Ch. 424; 76 L. J. Ch. 641; also T. Act, 1925, s. 10 (3), (4); a trust to retain or sell is, when created after 1925, construed as a trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 25 (4).

Consent not to be in writing.

(g) Consent should not be required to be in writing. Investments are often made on letters of request to bankers, the letter may not be preserved, and sometimes is signed only by the husband. In cases where the parties are going to reside abroad a provision can be inserted authorising the trustees to act on telegraphic directions.

(h) A trust to retain or invest "in the name" of a trustee does not rule out bearer securities: T. Act, 1925, s. 7.

As regards personal estate the words have not been necessary since 1883: Re Lumley [1896], 2 Ch. 690; 65 L. J. Ch. 837; though possibly on the ground that the M. W. P. A trust determinable on bankruptcy, when declared as to property settled by the husband, is void as against his trustee in bankruptcy (see note to Wilson v. Greenwood (1818), 1 Swanst. 481; Mackintosh v. Pogose [1895], 1 Ch. 505; 64 L. J. Ch. 274; Merry v. Pownall [1898], 1 Ch. 306; 67 L. J. Ch. 162: Re Burroughs Fowler [1916], 2 Ch. 251; 85 L. J. Ch. 550), except to the extent of the fortune which on his marriage he received from his wife: Lester v. Garland (1832), 5 Sim. 205; cf. Mackintosh v. Pogose, supra; but a trust determinable on alienation is valid as against a mortgagee: Brooke v. Pearson (1859), 27 Beav. 181; Knight v. Browne (1861), 7 Jur. N. S. 894; 30 L. J. Ch. 649, in the former of which reports it is stated that the property in Knight v. Browne in fact belonged to the husband; and see Re Perkins (1912), 56 Sol. J. 412. It is also valid in the event of an involuntary alienation by process of law in favour of a judgment creditor of the husband: Re Detmold (1889), 40 Ch. D. 585; 58 L. J. Ch. 495. Semble, property over which the husband has a joint power of appointment only is not property settled by him: Re Ashby [1892], 1 Q. B. 872. A simple discretionary trust in favour of the husband and others is valid: Holmes v. Penney (1856), 3 K. & J. 90; 26 L. J. Ch. 179; and see Re Tetley (1896), 66 L. J. Q. B. 111; see also Form 34, supra. In some cases, e.g., in a trader's settlement, the first life interest is given direct to the wife. If this form (No. 34B) is used a receiving order, whether or not it is followed by an adjudication, will work a forfeiture as regards any property coming into the hands of the trustees before the order has been annulled: Re Laye [1913], 1 Ch. 298; 82 L. Trusts of Wife's fund, income to her, and annual sum to Husband after her death.

[As to the Wife's Trust Fund] Upon trust to pay the annual income [thereof] of the Trust Fund to the Wife during her life, without power of anticipation during any coverture, and after her death, out of the said income to pay the annual sum of £ —— to the Husband during the residue of his life,(x) the same to be deemed to accrue due from day to day, but to be paid by equal half-yearly payments, the first payment to be made at the end of six months from the death of the Wife if the Husband shall be then living (continue next Form).

No. 37.

Trusts for issue as Husband and Wife or the survivor appoint.

In default for children.

IN TRUST for all or such one or more exclusively of the others or other of the issue of the said intended marriage, whether children or remoter issue, (z) at such time and, if more than one, in such shares and with such gifts over, and such provisions for maintenance, advancement (a) and otherwise at the discretion of any persons and generally in such manner for the benefit of such issue or some or one of them as the Husband and Wife shall by deed, revocable or irrevocable, from time to time or at any time jointly, (b) appoint:

And in default of and subject to any such appointment, then as the survivor of them shall by deed, revocable or irrevocable,

(y) Form No. 45, p. 140, is for use in conjunction with this and the last preceding Form. As an alternative method the power of appointment in favour of the husband as survivor in the next Form is sometimes omitted, but this is not generally desirable.

Not necessary to restrict power of appointment among issue in marriage settlements.

Election.

(z) This power is good, though the class is not limited in terms within the limits allowed by the rules against perpetuity: Routledge v. Dorril (1794), 2 Ves. Jun. 356; Attenborough v. A. (1855), 1 K. & J. 296; Slark v. Dakyns (1874), L. R. 10 Ch. 35; 44 L. J. Ch. 205; Re Abbott [1893], 1 Ch. 54; 62 L. J. Ch. 46; Re Bowles [1905], 1 Ch. 371; 74 L. J. Ch. 338; Re Davies and Kent [1910], 2 Ch. 35; but in any appointment made under it regard must be had to those limits as from the date of the settlement. If an appointment fails for infringing the rule the persons taking in default will not be put to election: Re Beale [1905], 1 Ch. 256; 74 L. J. Ch. 67; Re Wright [1906], 2 Ch. 288; 75 L. J. Ch. 500; Re Nash [1910], 1 Ch. 1; 79 L. J. Ch. 1; cf. Re Paul [1921], 2 Ch. 1; 90 L. J. Ch. 446. As to validating appointments too remote: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 163.

(a) If necessary it seems that the whole of an appointed share might, if so provided, be advanced.

Effect of omission to insert joint and surviving powers of appointment among issue in marriage settlements.

(b) The omission of a joint power and power for the survivor of the husband and wife to appoint both funds among the issue of the marriage in the usual way is generally detrimental to the interests of the family unless they possess ample property outside the settlement.

(1) One object of these powers is to enable the appointors or survivor to appoint to the issue of a deceased child. If the survivor cannot appoint, then, if a son marries and dies under twenty-one leaving issue, such issue cannot be provided for out of that fund. If the son attains twenty-one before death, the only way thereafter to provide for his issue is to let a share devolve as in default of appointment. This means paying double duty. Clearly the longer the powers of appointment can be kept on foot the better it is for the family.

(2) If the power is severed, then either appointor can, without the consent or by Will or codicil appoint, but so that under any appointment a child (c) shall not, otherwise than by way of advancement, take a vested interest except upon attaining the age of twenty-one years or upon marriage :

And in default of and until and subject to any such appointment IN TRUST for all or any the children or child of the said intended marriage [other than and except such son as hereinafter mentioned and excepted],(d) who attain the age of twenty-one years, or being female marry under that age, and if more than one in equal shares :

Hotchpot clause.(e)

PROVIDED that any child who or whose issue by appointment takes any part of the [Husband's Trust Fund or the Wife's] Trust Fund shall not, in the absence of any direction to the contrary, take any share in the unappointed part without bringing the part appointed to him or her or to his or her issue into hotchpot and accounting for the same accordingly.(f) (Add next Form, if required.) of the other, appoint the whole of his or her fund to one child or grandchild to the exclusion of the other issue. This may lead to favouritism, which is guarded against as long as possible by the joint power.

Settlements by the Court.

(3) If the power is severed, then on the death of either husband or wife the issue take vested interests in the fund of the deceased, and the survivor is left with no control over that fund. Hence the children, to the extent of this fund, become independent of the surviving parent. Where, under an executory trust, the husband and wife are to take beneficial interests, the Court will direct a joint power of appointment to be inserted in the settlement: Re Gowan (1880), 17 Ch. D. 778 ; 50 L. J. Ch. 248 ; but not where the intention is clear that the children are to take equally : Re Parrott (1886), 33 Ch. D. 274 ; see also Theobald, 7th ed., 728, et seq.

(c) This provision cannot be extended to other issue on the ground of remoteness. It is right that there should be power to appoint a vested interest to a son who marries under the age of twenty-one.

(d) The words in brackets are to be used only if the next Form (No. 38) is used. The Forms assume that under the Will or settlement daughters take as tenants in common in tail, if they take at all. In this case a trust for sale would be interposed immediately before the limitation.

(e) In calculating the value of a share brought into hotchpot, the sum to be accounted for will be the value of the share at the time of distribution: Re Kelly [1910], 1 Ch. 78 ; 79 L. J. Ch. 60 ; but cf. Re Crocker [1916], 1 Ch. 25. As to actuarial calculations, see Re West [1921], 1 Ch. 533 ; 90 L. J. Ch. 342.

Hotchpot.

(f) Where trusts are declared by reference, the two funds do not (unless so expressed) form one fund for the purpose of the hotchpot clause: Re Marquis of Bristol [1897], 1 Ch. 946 ; 66 L. J. Ch. 446 ; Re Cavendish [1912], 1 Ch. 794 ; 81 L. J. Ch. 400 ; Re Wood [1913], 2 Ch. 574 ; 83 L. J. Ch. 59 ; Re Fraser [1913], 2 Ch. 224 ; 82 L. J. Ch. 406 ; and see Hutchinson v. Tottenham [1898], 1 Ir. R. 403. As to the working out of the effect of a hotchpot clause, see Re Willoughby [1911], 2 Ch. 581 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 562. Life and reversionary interests are liable to be brought into hotchpot: Eales v. Drake [1875], 1 Ch. D. 217 ; Re Heathcote (1891), W. N. 10.

No. 38.

Clause excluding son entitled to settled estates.

(1) The excepted son hereinbefore referred to who is excluded from taking in default of appointment is an eldest or only son or any other son (g) of the said intended marriage who, before attaining the age of twenty-one years, becomes, or would if of full age be, entitled to the possession or to the receipt of the rents and profits of the properties in the County of —— devised by [or comprised in] or which may be or become subject to the limitations of the Will of ——, dated, &c. [or the Settlement dated, &c., and made between, &c.] (and of which properties the Husband is now tenant for life in possession) or who before attaining that age becomes under the said Will [or Settlement] entitled to a freehold interest (h) in remainder immediately expectant on the interest for life of the Husband :

(2) If there shall not be any child of the said intended marriage other than and except as aforesaid who attains a vested interest in default of appointment, then the capital of the Trust Fund [Husband and Wife's Trust Funds] shall be held In trust for such eldest son or other excepted son of the said intended marriage as hereinbefore mentioned, if and when he attains the age of twenty-one years, and to be then vested and not before; And if there shall be more than one such excepted son then In trust for the last survivor of such eldest and other excepted sons absolutely if and when he attains the age of twenty-one years, and to be then vested and not before.

Advancement clause (express power).

The Trustees may at any time or times, but with the consent in writing of the Husband (i) and Wife or of the survivor of them, if living, raise any part or parts, not exceeding together one-half of the presumptive or vested share of any child or other issue of the said intended marriage, under the trusts aforesaid, and may pay or apply the same for his or her advancement or benefit (j) as the Trustees think fit.

(g) See Re Wrottesley [1911], 1 Ch. 708; 80 L. J. Ch. 457; Re Cavendish (1912), 56 Sol. J. 344.

(h) See Re Alexander [1910], 2 Ch. 225; 79 L. J. Ch. 656.

Consent of bankrupt husband.

(i) This express power of advancement will seldom be used in personalty settlements for T. Act, 1925, s. 32, supplies the requisite power. Where the husband is bankrupt, the consent also of the trustee in bankruptcy acting under a direction in bankruptcy is necessary: Re Cooper (1884), 27 Ch. D. 565; see also Re Bedingfeld and Herring [1893], 2 Ch. 332; 62 L. J. Ch. 430, a case of a power of sale with consent.

"Benefit."

(j) The word "benefit" is more extensive than "advancement" (see Re Watney (1911), 56 Sol. J. 109), or "preferment," and authorises the payments of debts incurred by the object of the power: Lowther v. Bentinck (1874), L. R. 19 Eq. 166; 44 L. J. Ch. 197; but cf. Molyneux v. Fletcher

(k) T. Act, 1925, s. 32, applies to personalty settlements unless the power is expressly excluded: ib., s. 69. This form is inserted as a reminder in case the parties desire to modify the statutory power. As to maintenance: ib., s. 31.

(l) This is not a usual provision in a settlement made under the Infant Settlements Act, 1855. If the statutory power of advancement is allowed to take effect it can seldom be required.

Variation where one fund only is settled.

(m) Sub-clauses (1) and (2) are applicable where funds are settled by or on behalf of the husband and wife respectively; but where only one fund is settled it should be called the trust fund, and whichever of the Forms is applicable should be used.

Statutory accumulations.

As to the statutory accumulations, see T. Act, 1925, s. 31 (2).

Where husband takes an annuity.

(n) See last note. If the husband only takes an annuity the form will be "shall after such failure of children as aforesaid and subject to providing a fund to answer the said annuity of the Husband be held, &c." It is correct to refer to the failure of "children" and not to the Husband and such failure of children as aforesaid, be held In trust for such persons and purposes as the Wife shall, while not under coverture, by deed, revocable or irrevocable, or shall, whether covert or sole, by Will or codicil appoint; (o) And in default of and until and subject to any such appointment, Upon the trusts following (that is to say)—

(i) If the Wife shall survive the Husband, then In trust for her absolutely without power to anticipate her expectant interest; (p)

(ii) But if she shall die in the lifetime of the Husband, then In trust for the persons who, under the Administration of Estates Act, 1925, would have become entitled thereto as her statutory next of kin at her death if she had died possessed thereof intestate [domiciled in England] [and without ever having been married] [and without leaving a parent or grandparent her surviving], (q) such persons to take in the shares, if more than one, and in the events prescribed by the said Act.

"issue"; there is no "trust" for issue; the interests taken by issue under an appointment are covered by the words "Subject to the trusts and powers hereinbefore contained."

Powers of wife in default of children.

(o) This Form is still in common use, though it is not now necessary to give the wife a testamentary power of appointment if she survives; see M. W. P. Act, 1893, s. 3; Re Wylie [1895], 2 Ch. 116; 64 L. J. Ch. 613; Re James [1910], 1 Ch. 157; 79 L. J. Ch. 45. A power of appointment by deed while not under coverture is required, otherwise on dissolution of the marriage it might be necessary to apply to the Divorce Court with reference to the settled property under Jud. Act, 1925, see ss. 191, 192; Wynne v. W. (1898), 78 L. T. 796; and cf. Walpole v. W. [1901], P. 196; 70 L. J. P. 49.

Restraint.

(p) A restraint on anticipation can be attached to a reversionary interest, and is effectual to prevent alienation until the interest falls into possession: Re Bown (1883), 27 Ch. D. at pp. 421, 423; 53 L. J. Ch. 881; Re Tippett (1887), 37 Ch. D. 444; Re Bankes [1902], 2 Ch. 333; 71 L. J. Ch. 708; see also Re Game [1907], 1 Ch. 276; 76 L. J. Ch. 168. Such a restraint is now necessary: M. W. P. Act, 1882, ss. 2, 19.

(q) For decisions on the old form, see Re Smith [1903], 1 Ch. 373; 72 L. J. Ch. 184; Re Brydone [1903], 2 Ch. 84; 72 L. J. Ch. 528; Re Nightingale [1909], 1 Ch. 385; 78 L. J. Ch. 196; Re Morgan [1920], 1 Ch. 196; 89 L. J. Ch. 97. The expression "statutory next of kin" is to be construed as referring to the persons who would take beneficially under ss. 46 and 47 of the Ad. of E. Act, 1925, see s. 50 (1); this excludes the special provisions as to infants and lunatics in s. 51.

Under s. 46 (1), in default of issue, and subject to the husband's life interest, the parents take, then the brothers and sisters and their issue (the whole blood being preferred), then the grandparents, then the uncles and aunts and their issue, the whole blood being preferred. If the wife has brothers or sisters it may be desired to rule out the parents and grandparents. The husband only takes an absolute interest in priority to the Crown.

Ch. 369, though if the husband is to be allowed to take, all reference to "without having been married" should be omitted.

Foreign domicile of husband.

If the husband has or intends to acquire a foreign domicile, after the word "intestate" the words "domiciled in England," are required. Clauses should also be added to the settlement providing for its being construed according to English law, statutory or otherwise, against any person being appointed a trustee who is not resident in the United Kingdom, and giving the wife a general power of appointment over any property or savings of hers excluded from the settlement. To insert a trust in favour of the next of kin under the old law would be fatuous, they took whether or not they married or attained twenty-one, thus in many cases involving payment of two sets of death duties. If the range given by Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46, before the Crown takes, is not wide enough, this can be extended; but this would seldom happen.

Next of kin under the old law.

(r) This object may be achieved in a modified manner by giving the wife power to revoke part of the settlement with the consent of the trustees: see Form No. 71, p. .

(s) This power should be confined to the intended husband, and provision for a future husband, when required, should be made by a power to resettle on a future marriage: see Forms Nos. 46 and 47, pp. 140, 142; see also Re Hancock [1896], 2 Ch. 173; 65 L. And may appoint that the part or parts to which such revocation extends shall, after her death, be held Upon such trusts and subject to such powers and provisions and generally in such manner for the benefit of any husband (y) who may survive her, or any child, children or other issue, or any one or more exclusively of the children or other issue of such subsequent marriage (including powers of advancement in favour of any issue, similar to the statutory power applicable for the benefit of issue of the now intended marriage) as the Wife may think proper, but so that, subject to the trusts, powers and provisions so appointed, the part or parts of the [Wife's] Trust Fund to which any such revocation and appointment relates, or so much thereof respectively as shall not have become vested or been applied under any of such trusts, powers or provisions, shall devolve under this deed in the same manner as if no revocation or appointment had been made under this present power:

(3) PROVIDED ALSO, that an only child or any two or more children and any issue of a child or children collectively of the Wife by subsequent marriages, shall not, under an exercise of the said power, become entitled to a larger share of the [Wife's] Trust Fund than such only child or such children collectively would have taken in case the [Wife's] Trust Fund had been equally divided between all the children of the Wife by every marriage who attain the age of twenty-one years, or being female marry under that age:

Power for Husband or Wife to make settlement on future marriage.(a)

(1) IF the Husband or Wife (as the case may be) shall marry again, then, without prejudice to any appointment which may have already been made under the powers hereinbefore contained, he, so far as regards the Husband's Trust Fund, and she, so far as regards the Wife's Trust Fund, may, either in contemplation of or after any subsequent marriage, make such revocation and appointment with respect to those funds respectively as hereinafter mentioned (that is to say), may from time to time by deed, revocable or irrevocable, or by Will or codicil, revoke the trusts, powers and provisions hereinbefore declared concerning any part of the Husband's Trust Fund or the Wife's Trust Fund (as the case may be) not exceeding together the following shares or share thereof (that is to say)—

(i) If there shall be but one child and no more of the now intended marriage who attains the age of twenty-one years, or being female marries under that age, not exceeding two-third shares thereof;

(ii) And if there shall be two or more such children, not exceeding one-half thereof;

And may appoint that the part or parts to which such revocation extends shall, after his or her death (as the case may happen)

be held Upon such trusts and subject to such powers and provisions, and generally in such manner for the benefit of any wife who may survive him or any husband who may survive her (as the case may be) or any child, children or other issue, or any one or more exclusively of the children or other issue, of such subsequent marriage (including powers of advancement in favour of any issue, similar to the statutory power applicable for the benefit of the issue of the now intended marriage) as the Husband or the Wife (as the case may be) may think proper, but so that, subject to the trusts, powers and provisions so appointed, the part or parts of the fund to which any such revocation and appointment relates, or so much thereof respectively as shall not have become vested or been applied under any of such trusts, powers or provisions, shall devolve under this deed in the same manner as if no revocation or appointment had been made under this present power:

(2) PROVIDED that under an exercise of the power aforesaid any wife who may survive the Husband or any husband who may survive the Wife (as the case may be) shall not take more than a life interest, and that any child of the person making the appointment shall not (except by way of advancement) become entitled to any share of the fund to which the appointment relates, unless such child attains the age of twenty-one years, or being female marries under that age:

(3) PROVIDED ALSO, that an only child or any two or more children and any issue of a child or children collectively of the person making the appointment by subsequent marriages shall not, under an exercise of the said power, become entitled to a larger share of the fund to which the appointment relates than such only child or such children collectively would have taken in case that fund had been equally divided between all the children of the person making the appointment by every marriage who attain the age of twenty-one years, or being female marry under that age:

(4) PROVIDED FURTHER, that the power last aforesaid may be exercised so often as the person having the power shall marry, so that the total amount ultimately appointed under all revocations and appointments made pursuant thereto shall not exceed, according to the event, the shares or share hereinbefore specified.

SECTION IV.

COVENANTS TO SETTLE AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY, &c.

No. 48.

Agreement to settle after-acquired property of Wife.(b)

(1) THE Wife hereby covenants with the Trustees, that if she shall at any time after the now intended marriage and during the same coverture become entitled in any manner and

---

(b) Where the words "to which the husband in her right" were added, as the husband's title did not arise until marriage, the covenant covered chattels of the wife which, under the old law, were vested in the husband on marriage: Williams v. Mercier (1884), 10 A. C. 1; 54 L. J. Q. B. 148.

Covenant to settle after-acquired property.

With respect to the construction of provisions of this nature the following points have been decided or provided for by statute:—

Construction of covenant to settle property to which wife becomes entitled during coverture.

(1) A covenant to settle property to which the wife shall become entitled during the coverture includes property to which she is contingently entitled at the date of the marriage, and which falls into possession during coverture: Re Williams [1911], 1 Ch. 441; 80 L. J. Ch. 249; but does not include property to which she is entitled for a vested interest in possession at the time of the marriage: Otter v. Melvill (1848), 2 De G. & Sm. 257; 17 L. J. Ch. 345; Wilton v. Colvin (1856), 3 Drew. 617; 25 L. J. Ch. 850; Churchill v. Shepherd (1863), 33 Beav. 107; and see Norton on Deeds, 593, 594. Nor property in which she has an interest in reversion, whether vested or contingent, which does not fall into possession until after the coverture has determined: Re Pedder (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 585; 40 L. J. Ch. 77; Re Michell's Trusts (1878), 9 Ch. D. 5; 48 L. J. Ch. 50. Nor property to which she becomes entitled while a judicial separation is in force: Davenport v. Marshall [1902], 1 Ch. 82; 71 L. J. Ch. 29; Re Bankes [1902], 2 Ch. 333; 71 L. J. Ch. 708. But it does include property to which she becomes entitled between the date of a decree nisi and a decree absolute: Sinclair v. Fell [1913], 1 Ch. 155; 82 L. J. Ch. 105.

Reversionary interests.

(2) A covenant in this form generally includes property which, being reversionary at the time of the marriage, falls into possession during the coverture: Norton, 597-8; but see Re Bland's Settlement [1905], 1 Ch. 4; 74 L. J. Ch. 28; Re Capel (1914), W. N. 378; it does include property to which the wife becomes entitled in reversion during the coverture, and which falls into possession after it has determined, if the husband survives: Hughes v. Young (1863), 9 Jur. N. S. 376; 32 L. J. Ch. 137; or if the wife survives and has joined in the covenant: Butcher v. B. (1851), 14 Beav. 222; Re D'Estampes (1884), 32 W. R. 978; 53 L. J. Ch. 1117; see also Lloyd v. Prichard [1908], 1 Ch. 265; 77 L. J. Ch. 183, where the words of the covenant were very wide; also 133 L. T. Newsp. 227. The covenant cannot be enforced by volunteers: Re D'Angibau (1880), 15 Ch. D. 228; 49 L. J. Ch. 756; A.-G. v. Jacobs Smith [1895], 2 Q. B. 341; 64 L. J. Q. B. 605; Re Plumptre [1910], 1 Ch. 609; 79 L. J. Ch. 340 (which case also decided that gifts by a husband during coverture are caught by the covenant): Re Pryce [1917], 1 Ch. 234; 86 L. J. Ch. 383; Norton on Deeds, 606; Bky. Act, 1914, s. 42; Re Bulteel [1917], 1 Ch. 251; 86 L. J. Ch. 294. But can be enforced in favour of persons within the marriage consideration, notwithstanding that the trustees' legal remedy on the covenant is barred by lapse of time: Pullan v. Koe [1913], 1 Ch. 9; 82 L. J. Ch. 37. As to the enforcement of a contract in a voluntary settlement: Re Cavendish Browne (1916), W. N. 341; cf. Carter v. Hungerford [1917], 1 Ch. 260; 86 L. J. Ch. 162; also Re Bulteel [1917], 1 Ch. 251; 86 L. J. Ch. 294; Re Dent [1923], 1 Ch. 113.

Not enforceable by volunteers.

(3) A covenant to settle property to which the wife is entitled at the date of the settlement, or of the marriage, includes property in which she has a reversionary interest at the time of the marriage (whether vested or contingent) but which does not fall into possession until the coverture has determined: Re Mackenzie's Settlement (1867), L. R. 2 Ch. 345; 36 L. J. Ch. 320; Agar v. George (1876), 2 Ch. D. 706; but it does not include an undefined spes successionis: Re Mudge [1914], 1 Ch. 115; 83 L. J. Ch. 243.

Covenant extending to wife's property at time of marriage includes reversion falling into possession after coverture.

(4) A provision for settling after-acquired property of the wife binds property given for her separate use, if it is in the form of a covenant by her: Coventry v. C. (1863), 32 Beav. 612; Re Allnutt (1883), 22 Ch. D. 275; 52 L. J. Ch. 299; or of a general agreement between the parties, or even, under the old law, of a covenant by the husband, unless in the two latter cases the acts to be done for vesting the property in the trustees had to be done by the husband alone: Dawes v. Tredwell (1881), 18 Ch. D. 354; Re Smith (1900), W. N. 75.

As to property given to wife for separate use.

(5) Section 2 of the M. W. P. Act, 1907, provides that:—

M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 2.

Settlements of a married woman's separate property.

"(1) Notwithstanding section nineteen of the M. P. W. Act, 1882, a settlement or agreement for a settlement made after the commencement of this Act by the husband or intended husband, whether before or after marriage, respecting the property of any woman he may marry or have married, shall not be valid unless it is executed by her if she is of full age, or confirmed by her after she attains full age.

"(2) But if she dies an infant any covenant or disposition by her husband contained in the settlement or agreement shall bind or pass any interest in any property of hers to which he may become entitled on her death and which he could have bound or disposed of if this Act had not been passed.

"(3) Nothing in this section shall render invalid any settlement or agreement for a settlement made or to be made under the provisions of the Infant Settlements Act, 1855."

This section meets the decisions in Stevens v. Trevor-Garrick [1893], 2 Ch. 307; 62 L. J. Ch. 660, and Buckland v. B. [1900], 2 Ch. 534; 69 L. J. Ch. 648.

It is conceived that under sub-s. (2) the husband can bind such interests as he becomes entitled to under the Ad. of E. Act, 1925, on the death of his infant wife after 1925; also that he can bind any equitable estate by the curtesy taken in respect of an entailed interest of the wife: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130.

Query how far valid settlement can be made if wife dies an infant, leaving husband surviving.

(6) A covenant by the wife for settling after-acquired property does not extend to property of which she is tenant in tail: Re Dunsany's Settlement [1906], 1 Ch. 578; 75 L. J. Ch. 356; but a tenant in tail can convey a base fee determinable by entry of the issue who would have been tenant in tail in possession if the base fee had not been created: Doe v. Woodroffe (1849), 2 H. L. C. 811; 18 L. J. Ex. 498; and see 50 Sol. J. 570, 591; 55 Sol. J. 378–9, as to suggested alterations in the form of covenant. She can, if in possession, devise the property under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 176.

Estate tail.

(7) A covenant by the wife for settling after-acquired property does not operate as an exercise of a general power of appointment or as a covenant to exercise such a power: Re Gerard (1888), W. N. 35; but may be so worded as to cover property subject to a power: Re Anstis (1886), 31 Ch. D. 596; but see Tremayne v. Rashleigh [1908], 1 Ch. 681; 77 L. J. Ch. 365. If the wife is herself entitled in default of appointment, her interest will be bound, and she cannot defeat the covenant by an appointment: Re O'Connell [1903], 2 Ch. 574; 72 L. J. Ch. 709. Such a covenant does not include a life interest or an annuity, in the absence of any indication in the deed of a contrary intention: Re Dowding [1904], 1 Ch. 441; 73 L. J. Ch. 194; cf. Re Butler [1916], 1 Ir. R. 66.

Power of appointment, life interests, and annuities.

Does not apply where wife is restrained or where the property is in a country where covenant cannot be enforced.

(8) Such a covenant does not bind property which the wife is restrained from disposing of: Re Currey (1886), 32 Ch. D. 361; 55 L. J. Ch. 906; and see Re Bankes [1902], 2 Ch. 333; 71 L. J. Ch. 708; or property in a country where the covenant could not be enforced: Re Pearse [1909], 1 Ch. 304; 78 L. J. Ch. 73.

Whether wife put to election, if an infant.

(9) Formerly if the wife, being an infant, entered into a covenant to settle her after-acquired property, she had to elect, on coming of age, whether she would perform such covenant, or compensate the persons disappointed by her refusal out of any interest given to her by the same instrument in her husband's property: Codrington v. C. (1875), L. R. 7 H. L. 854; 45 L. J. Ch. 660; and see Edwards v. Carter [1893], A. C. 360; 63 L. J. Ch. 100; Viditz v. O'Hagan [1900], 2 Ch. 87; 69 L. J. Ch. 507; Re Bankes, supra; unless by the terms of the instrument she was restrained from anticipating: Smith v. Lucas (1881), 18 Ch. D. 531; Re Vardon (1885), 31 Ch. D. 275; 55 L. J. Ch. 259; cf. Haynes v. Foster [1901], 1 Ch. 361; 70 L. J. Ch. 302. Not followed in Re Hargrove [1915], 1 Ch. 398; 84 L. J. Ch. 484; Bolster v. B. [1916], 1 I. R. 57. It is conceived that in view of the M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 2, an infant wife ought now to be expressly put to her election, by a forfeiture clause or otherwise, to confirm the settlement on attaining full age, though that section would not, of necessity, free her from the obligation to elect: see Carnell v. Harrison [1916], 1 Ch. 328; 85 L. J. Ch. 321.

Does not include property acquired after coverture or between a divorce decree nisi and absolute.

(10) Such a covenant is restricted to property acquired during coverture, though the words "during the coverture" are omitted, if the wife survives: Re Coghlan [1894], 3 Ch. 76; 63 L. J. Ch. 671; but not if the husband survives: Fisher v. Shirley (1889), 43 Ch. D. 290; 59 L. J. Ch. 29. It does include property acquired after a decree nisi; before it has been made absolute: Sinclair v. Fell [1913], 1 Ch. 155; 82 L. J. Ch. 105.

(10A) A bonus received under the Irish Land Purchase Acts is included in such a covenant: Re Livingstone (1917), W. N. 90.

Declaration that covenant shall not apply inoperative.

(11) Where a person gives to a married woman who has entered into such a covenant an interest in property of such a nature as to come within its terms, any declaration of the donor's intention that the property shall not be affected by the covenant is inoperative: Scholfield v. Spooner (1884), 26 Ch. D. 94; 53 L. J. Ch. 777; Re Wharton (1910), 102 L. T. 531; Re Thorne [1917], 1 Ch. 360; 86 L. J. Ch. 261. Hence the necessity for the words in brackets in the text.

Life interest, savings.

(12) A life interest subject to forfeiture on alienation is not within the covenant: Re Crawshay [1891], 3 Ch. 176; 60 L. J. Ch. 583; nor accumulations or savings of the wife's income: Re Clutterbuck [1905], 1 Ch. 200; 73 L. J. Ch. 698; Mackenzie v. Allardes [1905], A. C. 285.

Legacy duty deducted.

(13) A legacy of £500, reduced to £450 after payment of legacy duty, is not within a covenant to settle sums of £500 or upwards: Re Pares [1901], 1 Ch. 708; 70 L. J. Ch. 426.

Endowment policy.

(14) An endowment policy on the husband's life for £500 is not, where the wife receives the money after his death, within a covenant to settle sums exceeding £200 if the policy was not worth £200 at the time when it was effected: Re Harcourt (1911), 56 Sol. J. 72.

Covenant by husband to settle his after-acquired property.

(15) A covenant by a husband to settle his after-acquired property is unusual. Where a husband covenanted to settle property to which he should become entitled "by devise, payment, purchase, or otherwise," the covenant was held to include a policy effected by him on his life as being acquired by purchase. Whether the covenant could be enforced as a general covenant to assign all the husband's property was treated as doubtful, but the covenant was held divisible: Re Turcan (1888), 40 Ch. D. 5; 58 L. J. Ch. 101; and see Re Reis [1904], 2 K. B. 769, at pp. 782, 783; 73 L. J. K. B. 929; aff.

(i) Gifts of any description from the Husband to the Wife ;(d)

(ii) Any estate or interest acquired by the Wife by virtue of any disentailing assurance which may hereafter be made by her ;

(iii) Jewels, trinkets, ornaments, furniture, plate, china, glass, pictures, prints, books and other chattels passing by delivery, and not being securities for money (e) ;

(iv) Property which, if bound by this covenant, would be forfeited or lost ;

The covenant by wife is not "usual."

(16) An agreement to settle after-acquired property of the wife is not a "usual" clause to be inserted without instructions : Re Maddy [1901], 2 Ch. 820 ; 71 L. J. Ch. 18.

Stamp.

It is desirable to exclude property to which the wife is entitled at the date of marriage because of the difficulty in ascertaining the proper stamp and also of deciding what property has or has not been caught by such a covenant : cf. Re Simpson, infra ; Re Mudge, infra. The covenant to settle after-acquired property carries a 10*s.* stamp.

(c) A spes successionis is not an "estate or interest" : Re Simpson [1904], 1 Ch. 1 ; 73 L. J. Ch. 53 ; Re Mudge [1914], 1 Ch. 115 ; 83 L. J. Ch. 243.

(e) As to the effect of such a clause with regard to a share of personalty passing under an intestacy : Vanneck v. Benham [1917], 1 Ch. 60 ; 86 L. J. Ch. 7.

investments transferred under this covenant, and to dispose of the annual income thereof in like manner as the annual income of the [Wife's] Trust Fund, and so that a reversionary interest be not sold before it falls into possession unless the Trustees see special reason for sale :(g)

Trusts declared by reference.

(2) The Trustees shall stand possessed of the money to arise from such sale, calling in, or conversion, and of any part of the said property received in money Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions hereinbefore declared concerning money forming part of the [Wife's] Trust Fund, or as near thereto as circumstances will permit, and so as to form one fund (h) for all purposes, including the hotchpot provision, with the [Wife's] Trust Fund.

As to life interests and annuities.

(3) Provided that any annuity or the income of any other real or personal property limited to or held in trust for the Wife for her life only or for any term of years determinable by notice or otherwise on or after her death, is not to be sold without her consent in writing, and if not sold and until sale thereof (if any) is to be paid to her without power of anticipation during any coverture.

Exoneration of Trustees.

(4) Provided also, that the Trustees shall not be made accountable in respect of any real or personal property becoming subject to the covenant lastly hereinbefore contained unless and until the same shall have been actually conveyed, assigned, paid or transferred to them, nor shall they be chargeable with breach of trust or made liable in any way for not taking any proceedings to get in the same real or personal property or any part thereof unless and until required in writing so to do by some person, or the guardian of some person, beneficially interested hereunder, and unless also due provision be made to the satisfaction of the Trustees for payment of the costs of any proceedings required to be taken.

policy on his life.(i)

(ii) If any such policy shall become void will at his own cost effect on his life a new substituted policy or policies, with such office and in such names as the Trustees shall direct, and for an amount equal to the sum which would have been payable under the void policy if it had not become void and the Husband had died at the time when it became void [or in the case of an endowment policy "and maturing in the like events and at the same time as the void policy would have matured had it not become void"], and

(iii) Will deliver, and if necessary will also assign, every such substituted policy, and deliver the receipt for every such payment to the Trustees, and

(iv) Will not do or suffer any act or thing by means whereof the Trustees may be prevented from receiving any money assured by any policy, whether original or substituted, subject to the trusts hereof:

Power for Trustees to keep up or restore policy or effect new policy.

(2) THE Trustees may at any time, in their absolute discretion, apply any income of the Trust Fund[s hereinbefore settled], or if income be insufficient then any capital, in making any payments proper for keeping on foot or restoring any subsisting policy, or for effecting, keeping on foot, or restoring any substituted policy,(k) [but so that as between the Husband's Trust Fund and the Wife's Trust Fund the said payments shall be made primarily out of the Husband's Trust Fund, and payments (if any) made out of the Wife's Trust Fund shall be repaid to it as soon as may be out of the Husband's Trust Fund (l)]: And

Where policy settled and no covenant to keep it on foot.

(i) Where a policy is settled and the settlor does not covenant to keep it on foot, but pays the premiums voluntarily and then becomes bankrupt and dies, his trustee in bankruptcy is not entitled to a proportion of the policy money as a "settlement" within the meaning of the Bkcy. Act, 1883, s. 47 (see now Bkcy. Act, 1914, s. 42): Re Harrison [1900], 2 Q. B. 710; 69 L. J. Q. B. 942.

(j) See Dormay v. Borrodaile (1847), 10 Beav. 335; 16 L. J. Ch. 337, as to the effect of these negative words.

(k) These words alone do not enable trustees to effect a new policy in substitution for one which has actually lapsed: Re Jewell [1919], 2 Ch. 161; 88 L. J. Ch. 357.

Variation where one

(l) Omit these words in brackets if there is only one trust fund settled;

every policy so effected, and the money payable thereunder, shall be held and applied upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions hereinbefore declared concerning the policy hereby assigned, and the money payable thereunder:

Limitation of liabilities of Trustees.

(3) It shall not be obligatory on the Trustees to enforce any covenant hereinbefore contained in reference to any policy, whether original or substituted, or to apply any income or capital in making payments for keeping on foot or restoring any policy, unless when required so to do in any specific case by writing signed by some person, or the guardian of some person, beneficially interested: And unless also due provision be made to the satisfaction of the Trustees for payment of the costs of any proceedings required to be taken, and any omission or neglect by the Trustees in any of the matters aforesaid (except when required and upon due provision made as aforesaid) shall not constitute a breach of trust, and the Trustees shall not be responsible on account of any policy becoming void through any means except their own omission or neglect when so required, and upon due provision made as aforesaid:

Power to surrender or sell policy or substitute another policy.

(4) Any bonus or any part of any bonus at any time declared in respect of the [any] policy hereby assigned or any substituted policy, and capable of being so applied, may, instead of being added to the money assured by the policy, be applied at the option of the Husband in the reduction or extinction, either immediately or as from any future date, of the future premiums on such policy; And if the Trustees consider that circumstances render it expedient they may, without being liable to account for the exercise of their discretion, surrender or sell the said policy or any substituted policy or may exchange such policy for a policy on which the premiums are fully paid up, but so that all money received on a surrender or sale shall, during the life of the Husband, be held upon trust for accumulation (m) by fund only settled.

or if the single fund belongs to the wife, substitute the following words:—
[but so that all money received by the Trustees under any such policy shall be primarily charged, in priority to the trusts, powers and provisions hereinbefore declared or referred to concerning the same, with the repayment to the Trust Fund of all such payments thereout as aforesaid].

Accumulations.

(m) The husband being the settlor, this trust is not contrary to L. P. Act, 1925, s. 164: Bassil v. Lister (1851), 9 Hare, 177; 20 L. J. Ch. 641; nor is a trust in a Will for the payment of premiums on a sinking fund policy taken out in respect of leaseholds: Re Gardiner [1901], 1 Ch. 697; 70 L. J. Ch. 407, investing the same and all resulting income in any investments hereby authorised, and after his death the said money and accumulations and investments shall be held upon the trusts hereinbefore declared or referred to concerning the money which, but for such surrender or sale, would have been receivable under such policy on his death and the investments thereof, so as to replace so far as may be such last-mentioned money.

No. 50.

Covenant by Wife's father to pay annual sum.(n)

(1) THE Father (Wife's father) hereby covenants with the Trustees, and also as a separate covenant with the Wife, that if the said intended marriage shall be solemnised within six months from the date hereof the Father [or his representatives] will, during so much of his life [or the life of his present wife if surviving him] as the Wife or any of the issue of the now intended marriage shall be living, pay to the Trustees the annual sum of £——, free from all deductions except income tax, such annual sum to commence from the day of the solemnisation of the said intended marriage, and to be deemed to accrue due from day to day, but to be paid by equal half-yearly payments, the first payment to be made at the expiration of six months from the solemnisation of the said intended marriage :

Application of annual sum.

(2) THE Trustees shall pay and apply the said annual sum of £—— to the persons and in the manner to whom and in which the annual income of the [Wife's] Trust Fund shall be payable or applicable [or would be payable or applicable in case the same had been received] :

Trustees not bound to sue.

(3) PROVIDED that it shall not be obligatory upon the Trustees to enforce the foregoing covenant or any part thereof unless when required so to do in any specific case by writing signed by some person or the guardian of some person beneficially interested, and unless also due provision be made to the satisfaction of the Trustees for payment of the costs of any proceedings required to be taken, and any omission or neglect by the Trustees in any of the matters aforesaid (except when required and upon due provision made as aforesaid) shall not constitute a breach of trust.

and cf. Re Hurlbatt [1910], 2 Ch. 553 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 29 ; 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 416–23. A sale may result in more being obtained from the policy than the office's surrender value.

Surrender of life interest.

(n) Where a reversionary interest is settled it is better, when practicable ; to surrender wholly or partially the life interest than to covenant to pay an annuity equal to the income which would be received if the interest had fallen into possession.

SECTION V.

POWERS OF TRUSTEES.

No. 51.

Investment clauses.

Range of authorised investments including land.

(1) MONEY liable to be invested under the trusts hereof may be invested—

(i) In or on any investments for the time being authorised as investments for trust money ; or

(ii) On real or leasehold securities (o) in England, Wales or Northern Ireland [or in any British Dominion, Colony, State or Dependency], but not in the Irish Free State (whether by way of registered charge or otherwise [or subject to incumbrances or not]) ; or

(iii) In or on the stock or securities (p) of any British Dominion, Colony, State or Dependency (other than the Irish Free State), or any province thereof,(q) or of any foreign Government or State (except Russia), or of any municipal corporation, power, gas, electric light, harbour or local authority in England, Wales, or Northern Ireland, or in any British Dominion, Colony, State or Dependency, other than the Irish Free State ; or

(iv) In or on the bonds, mortgages, debentures or debenture stock or guaranteed or preference [or ordinary] stock (r) or shares (p) of any [railway, tramway, canal, water, dock, harbour, electric light or power, gas, or other like] company,(s) public or

---

"Securities."

(o) The word "securities," where the context so admits, includes stocks and shares : Re Rayner [1904], 1 Ch. 177 ; 73 L. J. Ch. 111 ; Re Gent and Eason [1905], 1 Ch. 386 ; 74 L. J. Ch. 333, and see T. Act, 1925, s. 68 (13).

Freehold ground rents.

As to freehold ground rents, see Re Mordan [1905], 1 Ch. 515 ; 74 L. J. Ch. 319 ; Tapp v. London, &c., Docks Co. (1905), 74 L. J. Ch. 523 ; Re Gent and Eason, supra ; they must be conveyed on trust for sale if they are purchased : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32 ; but this part of the clause only relates to loans on the security of land. As to powers of investment generally : T. Act, 1925, ss. 1 to 11. It is frequently convenient to place the investment clauses in a schedule.

Where right of redemption becomes barred.

Where trust money is invested on mortgage, and the right of redemption becomes barred, the land is held by the trustees on trust for sale : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 31.

Bearer securities.

(p) Add if desired, "not payable to bearer." On account of savings in reference to stamp duties, and for other reasons, bearer securities are now recommended, see T. Act, 1925, s. 7.

Colonial stock.

(q) A power to invest in stock of any British Colony or Dependency does not authorise investment in an individual province of a dependency : Re Maryon-Wilson [1912], 1 Ch. 55 ; 81 L. J. Ch. 73.

Shares.

(r) Power to invest on stock does not authorise an investment in shares : Re Willis [1911], 2 Ch. 563 ; 81 L. J. Ch. 8. And see notes to investment clauses in Wills, infra.

Power to invest in a public company.

(s) The expression "public company" in an investment clause includes a company registered under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 : Re Sharp [1890], 45 Ch. D. 286 ; 60 L. J. Ch. 38 ; and as a rule, means a company registered in the United Kingdom : Re Castlehow [1903], 1 Ch. 352 ; 72 L. J.

private, incorporated in the United Kingdom or any British Dominion, Colony, State or Dependency under the Companies Acts or under any special Act of the Imperial Parliament, or of any general or special Act of the Legislature of any British Dominion, Colony, State or Dependency, or by Royal Charter, and whether trading or otherwise carrying on business in Great Britain, India or any British Dominion, Colony, State or Dependency [or elsewhere] which shall have paid dividends [at the rate of at least £—— per cent. per annum] on its ordinary stock or shares for at least three years prior to the date of investment; or

(v) On the security (t) of any life or contingent interest in any real or personal property, together with an assurance on the life or other event; (u) [or

---

Ch. 211; see also Re White [1913], 1 Ch. 231; 82 L. J. Ch. 149; and where power is given to invest in "the stocks, &c., of any corporation or company, municipal, commercial or otherwise," the power applies both to companies formed or registered in the United Kingdom, but carrying on business abroad, and to companies formed or registered abroad: Re Stanley [1906], 1 Ch. 131; 75 L. J. Ch. 56. A limited company registered and having its head office in England is "a company in the United Kingdom" though its property is situated and its operations are carried on abroad: Re Hilton [1909], 2 Ch. 548; 79 L. J. Ch. 7. A company incorporated by Act of Parliament means a company incorporated by special Act: Re Smith [1896], 2 Ch. 590; 65 L. J. Ch. 761; or by royal charter: Elve v. Boyton [1891], 1 Ch. 501; 60 L. J. Ch. 383. See also 26 L. Q. R. 259, as to what is a company.

Personal security.

(t) Trustees with power to lend on personal security, with the consent of a tenant for life, may lend to him, if satisfied that there is a reasonable prospect of repayment: Re Laing's Settlement [1899], 1 Ch. 593; 68 L. J. Ch. 230; but, apart from express powers, loans on personal security are breaches of trust: Pocock v. Reddington (1801), 5 Ves. 794; Wilkes v. Steward (1801), G. Coop. 6.

Power to vary.

(u) The power to vary investments is contained in Forms Nos. 25–28; see also T. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1).

The following Forms may be substituted for sub-clause (1) if desired, or that sub-clause may be cut down:—

Moderate range.

MONEY liable to be invested hereunder may be invested in any investments from time to time authorised by law as investments for trust money, or on mortgage of leasehold properties in England or Wales, held for a term having at least sixty years to run at the time of the investment (with power for the Trustees to dispense with the investigation of the Lessor's title, and to effect and maintain sinking fund policies), or on mortgage of a life interest in real or personal property, together with a policy of assurance on the life on which such interest shall be held; or

Trustee investments only.

MONEY liable to be invested hereunder may be invested in [Power to purchase land.]

(vi) In the purchase and paying the cost of the purchase of any buildings, lands, perpetual rentcharges and other real estate or chattels real in or arising in England, Wales [or Northern Ireland], being either freehold (subject or not to manorial incidents or to a compensation rentcharge) or leasehold for any term of years, whereof not less than sixty years is unexpired at the time of purchase (with power to effect and maintain sinking fund policies), or in making improvements on the property so purchased, and the same shall be conveyed to the Trustees on trust for sale with power to postpone the sale, and any powers (in addition to the statutory powers) hereby conferred in relation to land and the power to appoint new Trustees hereinafter contained shall be inserted in any such conveyance (v)]:

Allotment letters, mortgage debts, &c.

(2) ANY securities accepted or acquired under sub-sections (3) and (4) of section ten of the Trustee Act, 1925, may be treated (w) as authorised investments. And the Trustees may exercise the powers conferred by section fifteen of that Act at their absolute discretion and in particular may release any part of a security on being satisfied that the security remaining or to be provided will be sufficient to secure any mortgage debt subject to the trust and may agree to vary the rate of interest payable in respect of any such debt.(x)

Bonuses to be income.

(3) ALL bonuses and other periodical payments in the nature of income accruing from or payable in respect of any of the trust any investments from time to time authorised by law for investment of trust money.

And see T. Act, 1925, ss. 1 to 11.

Where a schedule is employed the clause will run:—

Scheduled investment clause.

MONEY liable to be invested under the trusts hereof may be invested in the manner appearing in the schedule hereto and the powers mentioned in that schedule may be exercised by the Trustees.

Rents and profits.

Power to purchase land.

(v) The trusts of the net rents and profits are governed by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32 (1). Any land acquired with the proceeds of sale of other land formerly held on trust for sale may be laid out in the purchase of land: ib., s. 28. As to the power for the court to control the trustees' discretion, see Re D'Epinoix [1914], 1 Ch. 890; 83 L. J. Ch. 656.

(w) Apart from T. Act, 1925, s. 10 (4) proviso, so much of the proceeds as represented a bonus paid in shares belonged to the tenant for life and the balance was capital: Re Northage (1891), 60 L. J. Ch. 488; Re Hume Nisbet (1911), 55 Sol. J. 536; and see Theobald, 7th ed., 553; 2 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed.

Bankers and agents.

(x) Power to deposit at a bank and to pay calls is given by T. Act, 1925, s. 11. Full power to employ and pay agents, including bankers and attorneys, abroad in regard to property outside the United Kingdom, is given by ib., s. 23.

premises shall, for the purposes hereof, be deemed annual income, and be applicable accordingly :(y)

Power to make contributory loans.

(4) THE Trustees may [with such consent or at such discretion as aforesaid] lend money on any security hereinbefore authorised in conjunction with money lent by any other persons by way of contributory loan, and may accept the security in the names of the Trustees or in the name of one of them, together with other names or another name [or may permit the same to be taken exclusively in the names of other persons, as may be deemed expedient(z)] :

No. 52.

---

Nature of bonus.

(y) As to the cases in which, as between tenant for life and remainderman in the absence of such a provision as in the text, a bonus is income or capital, see Bouch v. Sproule (1887), 12 A. C. 385 ; 56 L. J. Ch. 1037 ; Re Alsbury (1890), 45 Ch. D. 237 ; 60 L. J. Ch. 29 ; Re Armitage [1893], 3 Ch. 337 ; 63 L. J. Ch. 110 ; Re Malam [1894], 3 Ch. 578 ; 63 L. J. Ch. 797 ; Re Taylor [1905], 1 Ch. 734 ; 74 L. J. Ch. 419 ; Re Piercy [1907], 1 Ch. 289 ; 76 L. J. Ch. 116 ; see also Re Palmer (1912), 56 Sol. J. 363 ; Re Evans [1913], 1 Ch. 23 ; 82 L. J. Ch. 12 ; Re Sale [1913], 2 Ch. 697 ; 83 L. J. Ch. 180 ; Re Thomas [1916], 2 Ch. 331 ; 85 L. J. Ch. 519 ; Re Hutton [1917], 1 Ch. 357 ; 86 L. J. Ch. 375 ; Re Ogilvie, 88 L. J. Ch. 159 ; Re Oppenheim [1917], 1 Ch. 274 ; 86 L. J. Ch. 193.

Contributory loans by trustees.

(z) A contributory loan is a breach of trust unless authorised expressly : Webb v. Jonas (1888), 39 Ch. D. 660 ; 57 L. J. Ch. 671 ; Re Dive [1909], 1 Ch. 328 ; 78 L. J. Ch. 248 ; and see Stokes v. Prance [1898], 1 Ch. 212 ; 67 L. J. Ch. 69.

Loans for terms certain.

Trustees are now authorised to lend money for a term of seven years certain, provided the requirements of T. Act, 1925, s. 10 (1), are complied with, thus meeting the decision in Vickery v. Evans (1863), 33 Beav. 376 ; 33 L. J. Ch. 261.

Duty of trustees as to custody of bonds to bearer and title deeds.

Where trustees are, under T. Act, 1925, s. 7, or otherwise, authorised to retain bonds to bearer, they may deposit them with bankers for the purpose of collecting dividends, confirming : Re De Pothonier [1900], 2 Ch. 529 ; 69 L. J. Ch. 773 ; but not with solicitors : Field v. F. [1894], 1 Ch. 425 ; 63 L. J. Ch. 233. A direction that investments are to be retained or made "in the name" of a trustee does not prevent bearer securities from being purchased and retained : T. Act, 1925, s. 7 (1), meeting the decision in Re Roth (1896), W. N. 16 ; but it is more correct to say in the name or "under the control" of the trustee.

Title deeds.

Title deeds, where frequently required for reference, e.g., in the development of a building estate, may be left in the custody of solicitors acting in the trust : Field v. F., supra. Where there is a tenant for life having the powers under the S. L. Act, he is entitled to the custody of the deeds relating to the legal estate in the settled land : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 98 (3). In the absence of special circumstances a trustee is not entitled to have title deeds and non-negotiable securities removed from the custody of a co-trustee and placed at a bank in a box accessible only to the trustees jointly : Re Sisson [1903], 1 Ch. 262 ; 72 L. J. Ch. 212. But the trustees may require the trust documents to be placed at a bank, &c., for safe custody, and may pay any charges therefor out of income : T. Act, 1925, s. 21.

trust for sale by deed of even date. Application of rents until sale.

being remaining unsold, the Trustees shall hold or apply the net rents and profits thereof (after payment of all rents, rates, taxes, payments for insurance, repairs and other outgoings, and all expenses incurred in the exercise of the powers conferred on the Trustees by statute, or by the said Conveyance, and in their opinion properly payable out of income), upon and subject to the same trusts and powers as are hereinbefore declared concerning the annual income of the [Husband's or the Wife's] Trust Fund:

Power to raise money required on exercising powers in conveyance of even date.

(2) THE Trustees may raise (a) and pay out of the capital or income of the Trust Fund[s hereby settled or either of them] any money required to be paid on the exercise of the powers conferred by statute or by the said Conveyance, and in their opinion properly payable out of capital or income [but so that the said property and the proceeds of the sale thereof and the investments representing the same and any trust fund or property held upon corresponding trusts and the rents and profits and annual income thereof respectively shall be primarily charged with the repayment to any trust fund not held upon corresponding trusts and to the annual income thereof of all money raised as aforesaid out of such last-mentioned trust fund or income].

No. 53.

Power to purchase land in the U. K. or the colonies to be held on trust for sale.(b)

(1) THE Trustees may [during the lives of the Husband and Wife and the life of the survivor of them, with their, his or her consent in writing], instead of laying out all or any money held on the trusts hereof in the other investments hereinbefore authorised, invest the same money in the purchase and paying the cost of the purchase of any buildings, lands, perpetual rent-charges or other real estate or chattels real in or arising in the United Kingdom or in any British Dominion, Colony, State or Dependency

Statutory powers of trustees for sale.

(a) See Re Bellinger [1898], 2 Ch. 534; 67 L. J. Ch. 580. The trustees for sale have all the statutory powers of a tenant for life: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28; hence in many cases no additional powers will be given by the conveyance of even date.

Capital money for S. L. Act purposes.

(b) Under the old law this Form made the trust fund liable to be laid out in the purchase of land within the meaning of S. L. Act, 1882, s. 33; Re Soltau [1898], 2 Ch. 629; 68 L. J. Ch. 39; Re Thomas [1900], 1 Ch. 319, 323; 69 L. J. Ch. 198; now under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (1), trustees for sale, in relation to proceeds of sale, have all the powers of a tenant for life and trustees of a settlement under the S. L. Act, 1925, while under s. 77 of that Act (taking the place of s. 33 of the Act of 1882) money liable to be laid out in the purchase of land can be applied generally as "capital money" under that Act. Where the power omits the direction as to the property being conveyed on trust for sale, &c., and the trust of the rents and profits, the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32, now supplies the omission. For a short form, which will be used where only (but not including the Irish Free State), being either freehold (subject or not to any manorial incidents), or leasehold for any term of years whereof not less than sixty years is unexpired at the time of purchase (with power to effect and maintain sinking fund policies), or in making improvements on the property so purchased, and the same shall be conveyed or assigned to and vested in the Trustees UPON TRUST [with the consent in writing of the Husband and Wife, or the survivor of them, and after the death of both], at the discretion of the Trustees, to sell the same properties, with full power to postpone any sale; and as regards any property not within England or Wales all the statutory powers and provisions applicable to land in England held on trust for sale shall apply thereto in like manner as if those powers and provisions had been expressly incorporated in this deed:

Trusts of proceeds of sale and other capital.

(2) THE Trustees shall stand possessed of the net money to arise from any such sale (after payment of the costs incidental thereto), and any other capital money arising under the said powers Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions (including this present power of purchasing land) upon and subject to which the money laid out under this present power would then have been held if the same had not been so laid out, and in the meantime until sale the purchased properties are to be considered as money:(c) land in England or Wales is to be purchased, see the last para. of Form No. 51 (1), p. 154. Trustees when purchasing leaseholds are not liable to investigate the lessor's title: L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 44, 182; nor when lending on the security of leaseholds: T. Act, 1925, s. 8 (2). A trustee, whether purchasing or lending money, may accept a shorter title than a title which a purchaser, in the absence of a special contract, is entitled to require, but the title must be such as a person acting with prudence would have accepted: T. Act, 1925, s. 8 (3). Where trustees purchase a timber estate under a power to purchase land the tenant for life is entitled to money arising from sales of timber after deducting costs of replanting, &c.; Re Trevor-Batye [1912], 2 Ch. 339; 81 L. J. Ch. 646.

Investigation of lessor's title.

Marketable title.

Timber estate.

Sinking fund policy and short leaseholds.

(c) If desired add: PROVIDED that if a sinking fund policy is taken out in the names and to the satisfaction of the Trustees leasehold property having less than sixty years to run may be purchased under the foregoing power, and all premiums and other money required for taking out and keeping up such sinking fund policy shall be paid out of the income of the trust premises, and on a sale of such property the policy shall be included in the sale, and all money received in respect of any such policy shall be treated as capital.

Power to permit beneficiaries to occupy.

(3) UNTIL such sale as aforesaid the Trustees may permit the Husband and Wife or the survivor of them or their issue, or any other person beneficially interested in possession, to reside in or occupy any messuage or property so purchased upon such terms (if any) as the Trustees in their absolute discretion may think fit :

Powers in conveyance.

(4) ANY such conveyance on trust for sale shall contain [powers corresponding to the additional powers relating to land hereinafter contained and] a power corresponding to the power to appoint new trustees hereinafter conferred.

No. 54.

Power (obligatory on request) to invest in the purchase of a residence.(d)

(1) AT any time during the joint lives, and upon the joint request in writing of the Husband and Wife, the Trustees shall and they are hereby required to raise out of the [Husband's Trust Fund or the Wife's] Trust Fund [or partly out of each] any sum not exceeding £—— and invest the sum so raised in the purchase and in paying the expenses of the purchase of and of making improvements in or on a dwelling-house in England or Wales with or without a garden or other land, or any usual appurtenances, as a residence for the Husband and Wife, which messuage and land may be either freehold (subject or not to manorial incidents) or leasehold for any term of years whereof not less than sixty years is unexpired at the time of purchase, and the property so purchased shall be conveyed or assigned to and vested in the Trustees UPON TRUST, at the request in writing of the Husband and Wife or the survivor of them, and after the death of both at the discretion of the Trustees, to sell the same with full power to postpone any sale:

(2), (3) and (4) (As in last Form).

No. 55.

Power to purchase advowson.

(1) THE Trustees may at any time during the life of the Husband, upon his request in writing and with the consent of the Wife, if living, raise by the sale of a sufficient part of the [Husband's] Trust Fund any sum not exceeding £—— and apply the same in the purchase of an advowson or perpetual right of presentation to any ecclesiastical benefice in England to be conveyed to the Trustees UPON TRUST, with the consent in writing of the Husband and Wife or the survivor of them, and after the death of the survivor of them at the discretion of the Trustees, to sell (but subject to any statutory restriction) the said advowson :

(2) THE Trustees shall stand possessed, &c. (continue as in clause (2) of Form No. 53, p. 157, saying " advowson " for " land " or " property ") :

(d) See notes to last Form.

Additional powers.

Restrictions on renewal.

(f) See also as to additional powers, Settlements Realty (Forms), infra. Such of the above powers will be selected as may be required according to the circumstances of each case. As to the restrictions on renewal of leases: L. P. Act, 1922, 15th Sch., paras. 5 to 8. The trustees can grant a lease by way of renewal: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 43.

(g) These two sub-clauses and the other words in square brackets will only be used in the Personalty Settlement as relating to beneficial interests; they are not required in any separate conveyance on trust for sale.

Delegation.

(h) Where dealings are likely to be frequent this power will be required, otherwise it would be difficult to obtain trustees who would be willing to act.

(i) This Form is expedient where a reversionary interest in land held on conveyed to the Trustees on trust for sale in like manner and so as to be subject to the same powers and provisions as if the same had been acquired under the power to purchase land hereinbefore contained.(j)

No. 58

(ii) Without obtaining any of the consents made requisite by that section.

Equality money.

(2) Any money required to be paid for equality of partition may be raised out of the capital of the Trust Funds and hereby settled on either of them, and all adjustments requisite for maintaining the respective values of those funds shall thereafter be made by repayments from one fund to the other.(k)

No. 59.

(1) The Trustees may at their discretion at any time during the lifetime of the Husband, at his request in writing and with the consent in writing of the Wife, if living, raise out of the [Husband's or Wife's] Trust Fund[s] and lend to the Husband any sum or sums not exceeding together £——, upon his securing the repayment thereof with interest by his bond or covenant, and by a policy of assurance on his life for a sum equal to the amount so lent, which policy shall be either effected in the names of the Trustees or assigned to them by way of mortgage, with such proper and usual covenants on the part of the Husband for keeping on foot such policy, and otherwise in relation thereto, as the Trustees shall require:

(2) If the Husband shall neglect or fail to keep on foot the said policy, the Trustees may apply a sufficient part of the trust for sale is assigned, unless clause (4) of Form No. 23, p. 124, is used instead.

Statutory power to partition.

It can no longer be said to be essential, for if the head trustees for sale make a partition under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (3), (4), this would be binding on the trustees of the share. See also T. Act, 1925, ss. 15 and 24.

Power to accept property.

As regards reversionary interests falling into possession, trustees have power to agree the value thereof, to accept authorised investments in or towards satisfaction thereof, and to allow deductions for duties, costs, &c.: ib., s. 22 (1).

(j) See last paragraph of Form No. 51 (1), also Form No. 53; also L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (3); T. Act, 1925, s. 22.

income of the [said] Trust Fund[s] in or towards the payment of any money which may be required for keeping on foot such policy, or (in case the same shall become void) for effecting and keeping on foot any new policy in lieu thereof:

Indemnity to trustees.

(3) PROVIDED that it shall not be obligatory on the Trustees to take any proceedings in respect of any such bond, covenant or mortgage or to apply any part of the income of the [said] Trust Fund[s] in or towards keeping on foot or effecting any such policy as aforesaid, unless the Trustees shall in their absolute discretion (without being liable to account) think fit, and the Trustees shall not be liable for any loss arising by reason of any omission by the Husband to comply with or perform any such bond or covenant as aforesaid, or by reason of any such policy becoming void:

Money lent to Husband not to be called in so long as he keeps up policy.

(2) IN the execution of any of the trusts or powers hereof the Trustees—

(i) May (without prejudice to any jurisdiction of the court) decide what money represents income and what represents capital ;

(ii) May, in reference to any property or the proceeds of any property from time to time subject to the trusts hereof, or any share therein, and as between the persons interested, exercise the powers of appropriation and other incidental powers conferred on personal representatives by section forty-one of the Administration of Estates Act, 1925, without any of the consents made requisite by that section ; and every decision, allotment, apportionment, setting apart and valuation made in exercise of the said powers shall be as binding upon all persons then or thereafter to be beneficially interested in the premises as if the same had been duly made by a court of competent jurisdiction :(n)

Blended funds ; valuation.

Independently of this express power, a power to sever and apportion blended funds is given by T. Act, 1925, s. 15 ; a power to value is given : ib., s. 22 (3).

(p) This clause is for use in special cases : Wyman v. Paterson [1900], A. C. 271 ; 69 L. J. P. C. 32 ; Re Sheppard [1911], 1 Ch. 50 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 52. No. 63.

Power to allow existing investments held on trusts of another Settlement, &c., to remain.

THE Trustees may permit the trustees or trustee for the time being of the recited Settlement of 19— [or Will] to retain any investments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, and now held on the trusts of that Settlement [or Will], notwithstanding that the same may not be investments authorised by the terms of that Settlement [or Will], and the Trustees shall not be bound to take any proceedings as to any such investments which are not so authorised, or as to any other investments, or as to any breach of trust committed or to be committed by the trustees or trustee of that Settlement [or Will], nor be liable in any way for any loss which may occur through retainer of investments, proper or otherwise, held on the trusts of that Settlement [or Will], or through any act, deed or omission on the part of the trustees or trustee thereof.(pp)

Costs of settlement by wife.

No. 65.

Extension of power to delegate trusts during absence abroad.

ANY trustee may by deed exercise the powers conferred by section twenty-five of the Trustee Act, 1925 (as amended), free from the restrictions and provisions of sub-sections (2) to (5) inclusive of that section, and any power of attorney so granted may be made irrevocable for a period not exceeding one year, and the trustee giving the power of attorney shall not be answerable for the acts or defaults of the attorneys.(r)

No. 66.

Power for professional trustees to charge costs. (s)

ANY trustee being a solicitor or other person engaged in any profession or business (t) shall be entitled to be paid all usual professional or proper charges for business transacted, time expended and acts done by him or any partner of his in connexion with the trusts hereof, including acts which a trustee not being in any profession or business could have done personally.(u)

No. 67.

Examination of trust accounts (v)

THE Trustees, in exercising the powers conferred by sub-section (4) of section twenty-two of the Trustee Act, 1925, shall not (save in special circumstances) require an audit to be made, but shall be satisfied with an examination of the accounts, and the report of the accountant shall (subject to any requirements of the accountant being complied with) operate to protect the Trustees.

Settlements Act, 1855, and which contained no provision as to costs, should be paid out of funds in court which were subject to the settlement.

(r) Sub-section (4) is amended by inserting after " execution thereof " the words " or where not executed within the United Kingdom within ten days after its receipt in the United Kingdom " : L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Powers to employ agents.

(s) The usual power to employ agents is given by T. Act, 1925, s. 23 (2); further powers applicable to property outside the United Kingdom are given by sub-s. (3). The onus is on the person taking proceedings against the trustees to show that loss by the act of an agent was attributable to their default: Re Brier (1882), 26 Ch. D. 238; Shepherd v. Harris [1905], 2 Ch. 310; 74 L. J. Ch. 574.

Professional costs.

Remuneration of trustees.

Professional trustees.

(u) For the necessity of these words, see Re Chalinder and Herington [1907], 1 Ch. 58; 76 L. J. Ch. 71. The trustees cannot settle the amount of the costs: Re Fish [1893], 2 Ch. 413; 62 L. J. Ch. 977; and see Re Webb [1894], 1 Ch. 73; 63 L. J. Ch. 145. The liability of trustees, other than professional trustees, whether a person or a corporation, is not increased by the receipt of remuneration: Jobson v. Palmer [1893], 1 Ch. 71; 62 L. J. Ch. 180; Shepherd v. Harris [1905], 2 Ch. 310, at p. 318; 74 L. J. Ch. 574; but as to professional trustees, see National Trustees of Australia v. General Finance of Australia [1905], A. C., at p. 380; 74 L. J. P. C. 81, and article in 50 Sol. J. 72. The court has power, when appointing a corporation to be a trustee, to authorise remuneration to be charged: T. Act, 1925, s. 42.

Examination or audit.

(v) An " examination " of accounts is an informal matter as compared with an audit, and for most purposes is amply sufficient. As to other audits, see Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 13. In the last edition, Vol. II, pp. 411–12, a full power was given in relation to the audit of accounts, but in view of T. Act, 1925, s. 22, this will seldom, if ever, be required.

SECTION VI.

POWER TO APPOINT NEW TRUSTEES AND MISCELLANEOUS CLAUSES.

No. 68.

Power to appoint new trustees.

THE Husband and Wife during their joint lives, and the survivor of them during his or her life, shall have power from time to time to appoint a new trustee or new trustees hereof.(w)

(If the Husband is a foreigner or domiciled abroad add :— " but no person who is not resident in the United Kingdom shall be appointed to be a trustee hereof.")

No. 69.

Provision where a trust corporation is appointed.(x)

(1) A trust corporation (not being the Public Trustee) acting as a trustee hereof, shall be entitled to charge remuneration not exceeding that which the Public Trustee would be entitled to charge :

PROVIDED that if the trust corporation does not render the same services as would have been rendered by the Public Trustee the remuneration shall be reduced by such amounts as may be agreed at the time that the trust is accepted between the trust corporation on the one hand and the settlors or the persons having power to appoint new trustees (as the case may be) on the other hand.

(2) IF at any time during the subsistence of the trusts hereof the Public Trustee shall act in conjunction with Separate deeds of appointment of new trustees.

(w) Where the settlement consists of a personalty settlement declaring the trusts of the proceeds of sale of land, and one or more conveyances of land on trust for sale, an appointment of new trustees of the personalty settlement must be effected by a separate deed from that whereby new trustees are appointed of the conveyance: T. Act, 1925, s. 35. Where there are two or more conveyances on trust for sale new trustees may, unless inconvenient, be appointed of the conveyances by the same appointment. The same persons who are trustees of the personalty settlement must be appointed as the trustees of the conveyances on trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 24.

Appointment of corporation as co-trustee with individuals.

(x) A corporation can be appointed a trustee to hold trust property jointly with an individual: Re Thompson [1905], 1 Ch. 229; 74 L. J. Ch. 133, a case under the Bodies Corporate (Joint Tenancy) Act, 1899. As a rule it is better that a trust corporation should act alone: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2) as amended; it is conceived that the court would, as in Re Leslie [1911], 1 Ch. 611, appoint a trust corporation to act alone, though the trust instrument provides that there shall not be less than a certain number of trustees. For the meaning of "trust corporation": L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xxviii); L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 3.

any persons as trustees hereof the following provisions shall have effect (y)—

(i) All documents and securities relating to the trust shall be retained in the sole custody of the Public Trustee ;(z)

(ii) The persons for the time being acting as trustees hereof in conjunction with the Public Trustee shall be liable only in respect of their respective wilful and individual fraud or wrongdoing, and shall not be liable for any loss to the trust premises arising by reason of any act or default on the part of the Public Trustee, PROVIDED that the trust premises or the part thereof in respect of which the loss occurs, shall at the time of the loss be under the exclusive control and management of the Public Trustee.

No. 70.

Where Public Trustee appointed—nomination of solicitors to the trust, &c.

FOR the purposes of sub-section (2) of section eleven of the Public Trustee Act, 1906, Messrs. —— shall be deemed to be the firm of solicitors who are selected by the creators of the trust and by the beneficiaries to be employed by the Public Trustee in connexion with the trusts hereof.

No. 71.

Power for Wife to revoke with consent of Trustees.

THE Wife (or other Settlor) may from time to time by deed, revocable or irrevocable, with the consent in writing of the trustees for the time being hereof, not being less than two in number, which consent such trustees may withhold or give at their discretion without being in any way liable for the exercise of such discretion, revoke all or any of the trusts hereinbefore declared concerning all or any part or parts [not exceeding together one-half] of the [Wife's] Trust Fund, and may direct that the parts of the Trust Fund to which such revocation extends shall be held IN TRUST for herself absolutely or otherwise as she may think proper.(a)

(y) These provisions were suggested by Mr. H. E. Borrow in 54 Sol. J. 267, having regard to the fact that the Government guarantee does not apparently extend to co-trustees of the Public Trustee.

(z) Where the Public Trustee appoints an auditor the acting trustee must produce all necessary documents for the audit: Re Williams (1910), 26 T. L. R. 604 ; and see T. Act, 1925, s. 22 (4).

Power of revocation.

(a) This is not a usual provision in a marriage settlement. It should, however, be inserted in voluntary settlements, unless the object is to evade the payment of death duties, and may be essential where a person who has become entitled to property on attaining full age is persuaded to settle it by a relation: Powell v. P. [1900], 1 Ch. 243 ; 69 L. J. Ch. 164 ; approved in Wright v. Carter [1903], 1 Ch. 27 ; 72 L. J. Ch. 138.

Settlements on behalf of lunatics.

Where a settlement is made under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 171, provision must be made, either by a power of appointment or by a power of revocation for the possibility of the lunatic or defective recovering full capacity.

No. 72.

Provision where husband is domiciled abroad.(b)

(1) NOTWITHSTANDING that the Husband may not be a British subject or may be domiciled abroad this deed shall be construed and have effect and the trust shall be administered in all respects as if the Husband were domiciled in England, and the laws of England statutory or otherwise shall apply accordingly :

(2) As regards any interest in property hereby conferred on the Wife she shall be entitled to the same for her separate use and as regards any property, real or personal, or any interest therein belonging to the Wife, or to which she may become entitled during the now intended coverture, or to which she would become so entitled if she were discovert and domiciled in England and not hereby settled or agreed so to be the Wife shall have power notwithstanding coverture by deed revocable or irrevocable, or by Will or codicil, to appoint the same to such persons and for such purposes generally as she may think fit.

No. 73.

Marginal notes.

THE marginal notes hereto shall not affect the construction hereof.

(b) The laws of property obtaining in the country of the husband's domicile should be ascertained as well as those relating to the validity of the marriage.

Trust to invest.

2. THE Trustees shall with the consent of the Wife during her life if she survives the Husband, and after her death at their discretion, invest the residue of the said money in the names or under the control of the Trustees in any of the investments hereinafter authorised, with power from time to time with the like consent or at the like discretion to change such investments for others of a like nature.

Definition of Trust Fund and trusts.

3. THE Trustees shall stand possessed of the residue of the said money and the investments for the time being representing the same (hereinafter called the Trust Fund) and of the annual income thereof Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions following (that is to say):—

Wife for life.

(1) UPON TRUST to pay the annual income of the Trust Fund to the Wife if she survives the Husband during the residue of her life, without power of anticipation during any coverture:

will be 5*s.* per £100 on the sum assured. By the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 118, it is provided that no assignment of a policy of life assurance shall confer on the assignee any right to sue, or give a valid discharge, for the money assured thereby, unless the assignment is duly stamped, and that no payment shall be made to any person claiming under such assignment unless the same is duly stamped. If any payment is made in contravention of this section, the person by whom the payment is made is liable for the penalty. It is apprehended that this enactment does not invalidate the assignment, but merely prevents the assignee from suing for the money until it is stamped. Hence, if A. assigns the policy first to B. and then to C., but the assignment to B. is not stamped until after the assignment to C., B. is not on that account postponed to C.

Lien for insurance money.

(f) In this case, as the only trust fund is the policy money, the trustees have no means of keeping up the policy; hence sub-clause (2) of Form No. 49, p. 148, will not be required; a wife, who by reason of her husband's want of means pays premiums voluntarily to prevent a policy from lapsing is not Power for Settlor to redeem policy and trusts of redemption money.

8. THE Husband may at any time during his life redeem the policy hereby assigned or any policy substituted therefor by paying to the Trustees the sum of £——, and in such case the policy shall be reassigned to the Husband at his expense discharged from the trusts, powers and provisions hereof, and the Trustees shall stand possessed of the said sum of £—— so paid by the Husband, Upon the trusts and subject to the powers

Recital of Husband's life interest.

(3) Under the Will dated, &c., and proved in the Probate Registry on, &c., of ——, who died on, &c., and by virtue of a Vesting Assent, dated, &c., the freehold properties hereinafter demised are now vested in the Husband in fee simple IN TRUST for himself during his life without impeachment for waste with divers remainders over.

And the witnessing part immediately following the above assignment of the policy should be as follows:—

ALL, &c. (referring to a Schedule),

Appointment of a portion.

1. THE Appointor hereby appoints that the trustees for the time being of the term of one thousand years limited by the Settlement shall, after his death, raise out of the said sum of £—— portions and pay (free from all duties and the costs of raising the same) the net sum of £—— as the portion of the said E. B., with interest thereon from the death of the Appointor at the rate (p) of £4 per cent. per annum, and shall hold such sum and the interest thereon IN TRUST for the said E. B. absolutely:(q)

2. PROVIDED that if the said intended marriage shall not be solemnised within six months from the date hereof, the appointment hereby made shall become and be absolutely void.

IN WITNESS whereof the Appointor has hereunto set his hand and seal the day and year first above written.

Parties.

THIS CONVEYANCE is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Husband), of the 1st part, C. D., of, &c..

(p) This will be the rate authorised under the trusts of the term.

Where there is merely a power to create family charges.

If there is no subsisting term, but merely power to appoint a term, then the term must be appointed by one deed for the general purposes of the term, and the portions must be appointed by deeds which will be supplemental to the settlement or resettlement creating the power to charge and also to the deed by which the term is created.

(q) If the trusts of the term do not contain a hotchpot clause a provision should be added as follows:—

Hotchpot.

2. PROVIDED that the said E. B. shall not take any share in the unappointed part of the money to be raised under the trusts of the said term without bringing the sum hereby appointed to him into hotchpot and accounting for the same accordingly.

Spinster (hereinafter called the Wife), of the 2nd part, and E. F., of, &c., G. H., of, &c., K. L., of, &c., and M. N., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), of the 3rd part: WHEREAS:—

(1) (Recite agreement for marriage—Form No. 2, p. 113.)

Seisin of freeholds and enfranchised land.

(2) The Husband is seised in possession free from incumbrances of the freehold and enfranchised lands hereinafter described for an estate in fee simple, but as to the enfranchised lands subject to the manorial incidents and to the rights of the lord of the Manor of —— in respect thereof:

and 3 of the S. L. Act, hence, if desired, it can be sold subject to a family charge. But though the trust for sale is created after an equitable interest still a conveyance under the trust for sale will over-reach the equitable interest, provided that either a trust corporation is acting or the trustees have been appointed or approved by the court, for L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended by the said schedule now runs as follows:—

Over-reaching trusts for sale.

Trust for sale, with approved trustees.

"Where the legal estate affected is subject to a trust for sale, then, if at the date of a conveyance made after the commencement of this Act under the trust for sale or the powers conferred on trustees for sale, the trustees (whether original or substituted) are either—

"(a) two or more individuals approved or appointed by the Court or the successors in office of the individuals so approved or appointed; or any equitable interest or power having priority to the trust for sale shall, notwithstanding any stipulation to the contrary, be over-reached by the conveyance, and shall, according to its priority, take effect as if created or arising by means of a primary trust affecting the proceeds of sale and the income of the land until sale."

"(b) a trust corporation;

All trusts for sale are "binding."

Thus all effective trusts for sale become "binding" (i.e., capable of over-reaching equitable interests) within Re Leigh, 70 Sol. J. 758; ib., Art. 749, 769; it is merely a matter, in some cases, of subsequently obtaining the approval of the trustees, or appointing a trust corporation to act.

Trusts kept off the title.

All proceeds of sale and other capital money must be paid either to a trust corporation or to at least two trustees; a purchaser is not concerned with the trusts affecting the proceeds of sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27.

Conveyance of freeholds.

1. (Form No. 20, sub-clause (1) only, p. 121).(s)

Conveyance of enfranchised land.

2. (Form No. 21, p. 122, sub-clause (1) only. See that the Conveyance is produced to the steward.)

Assignment of leaseholds.

3. (Form No. 22, p. 123, sub-clause (1) only.)

Trust for sale.

4. The Trustees shall sell the properties hereinbefore respectively conveyed and assigned, but so that during the joint lives of the Husband and Wife and the life of the survivor of them every sale be made only with their, his or her consent in writing.

Proceeds of sale to be held on trusts of deed of even date.

5. The Trustees shall stand possessed of the net proceeds of sale arising under the trust aforesaid (after payment thereout of all costs incidental thereto) and all other capital arising under the statutory powers (as hereby extended), and also of the rents and profits of the premises until sale, and as respects the said leasehold property after payment of the rent reserved by and all outgoings payable under the recited Lease Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions declared concerning the same by a Settlement already prepared and intended to bear even date herewith and to be made between the same persons and in the same order and to be executed immediately after this Conveyance.

6. (Power to postpone sale—Clause (4) of Form 20, p. 122.)

Powers, &c.

7. (Additional powers—Form No. 56, p. 159, omitting the parts in square brackets, but adding, if desired, in the case of registered land : "No restriction against dispositions without the consent of the Husband and Wife or the survivor of them shall be required in the case of registered land.")

8. (Power to appoint new Trustees—Form No. 68, p. 166.(t))

In witness, &c. (Add three Schedules of parcels.)

Variations where settlor is registered proprietor under L. R. Act.

(s) If the settlor is registered under the L. R. Act, 1925, say :—Of all which property the Husband is registered as proprietor with [an absolute possessory, good leasehold] title under the Land Registration Act, 1925, under the heading District ——, Title No. ——, Property ——.

The settlor must also execute a transfer (see next Precedent) of even date to the trustees, and this should be recited. If registered land only is being conveyed this can be done in the Personalty Settlement on trust for sale (without a separate conveyance on trust for sale) for the register keeps the trusts off the title.

Separate appointments of new trustees.

(t) On the appointment of new trustees of the settlement of even date new trustees of the conveyance on trust for sale must be appointed by a separate deed: T. Act, 1925, s. 35.

If desired, the transfer may be made by endorsement, but if it has to be sent to different places for execution it is safer to effect it by supplemental deed.

Signed, sealed and delivered, &c.

(x) This is the settlement of the mortgage debt.

Receipts by new trustees.

(y) This transfer is an independent trust deed, and contains a separate power to appoint new trustees, which should be exercised by the deed by which the mortgage debt and securities are subsequently transferred and not by the deed by which new trustees of the settlement of even date are appointed. The money being settled, is necessarily held by the trustees upon a joint account, see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 111, which section, however, is not required in this case, for T. Act, 1925, s. 14 (which is retrospective) is sufficient. In a transfer of mortgage after the execution of the settlement to secure settlement money advanced under the investment clause the mortgage debt should be transferred to the then trustees without reference to the trusts. Notice in writing of the transfer of the mortgage should be given to the mortgagor, and to any subsequent incumbrancers; this applies whether or not a land charge has been registered in respect of the mortgage.

Advance by way of investment.

Notice.

(z) This is the prescribed Form 54, in the schedule to the L. R. Rules, 1925. The marriage will not be referred to if the trustees are, after the marriage, laying out part of the trust money in taking a transfer of a mortgage.

---

Effect of the Husband's covenant to settle the Wife's property when she is an infant.

(v) When the intended wife is an infant, she is incapable of making a settlement binding on herself, except with the leave of the court under the Infant Settlements Act, 1855. But it is sometimes desired to avoid the expense and delay of an application to the court, and it was therefore usual, before the passing of the M. W. P. Act, 1882, where the infant's property was personalty in possession or in reversion, to rely on the husband's covenant to settle it. Such a covenant was effectual as regards personal estate, except in the event of the property not falling into possession during the coverture and the wife being the survivor.

Before the M. W. P. Act, 1907, a settlement by an intended husband and infant wife of the wife's property bound it, having regard to s. 19 of the M. W. P. Act, 1882, to the same extent as under the old law; hence, the wife could not repudiate a settlement so effected after she attained full age. Stevens v. Trevor-Garrick [1893], 2 Ch. 307; 62 L. J. Ch. 660; Buckland v. B. [1900], 2 Ch. 534; 69 L. J. Ch. 648.

The M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 2 (1), was intended to meet this point, and provides that unless the settlement is confirmed by her on attaining full age it shall not be valid except as mentioned in sub-s. 2.

The husband's covenant would bind interests to which he may become entitled under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46, or L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130. The wife has power to give receipts for income and for statutory accumulations after she marries: ib., s. 21.

IN WITNESS, &c.(x)

(x) In former editions a Precedent was inserted here giving successive life interests in land to the husband and wife, with remainder to the trustees on trust for sale, the proceeds to be held on trusts for the issue of the marriage. This hybrid form of settlement was never recommended ; it was sometimes adopted with a view to making the husband and wife masters of the situation during their lives. This can be effected by extending the powers of delegation conferred by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 29, to all the statutory powers (see Form No. 56 (4), p. 160, supra). They are bound to delegate when so requested : ib., s. 30. In this edition the Precedent has been omitted, for it would involve a vesting deed in favour of the first tenant for life and a trust deed to comply with S. L. Act, 1925, s. 4. On the death of the first tenant for life, the settled land would devolve on the S. L. Act trustees as his special personal representatives ; they would, by a vesting assent, if so required, vest the land in the second tenant for life, and on his or her death they would, in writing, assent to the land vesting in themselves on trust for sale. This scheme is not recommended when the same result can be achieved by an immediate trust for sale. The effect of a future trust for sale is to create S. L. Act trustees : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30 (1) (iv).

Interests in remainder.

Undivided shares.

(y) All interests in remainder are equitable interests : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1. If the settlor has only an undivided share, the entirety of the land will, on the death of the tenant for life, vest in the special representatives of the latter when constituted (who will generally be the S. L. Act trustees), on trust (subject to duties, &c., being provided for) to assent to the land vesting in the S. L. Act trustees on trust for sale : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36 ; thus a remainderman can only convey his share in the proceeds of sale, not in the land itself. In the case of an undivided share, there is no reason why the conveyance of the settlor's interest in the proceeds of sale should not be inserted in the personalty settlement without using a separate deed.

Notice to S. L. Act trustees.

Minor Interests Index.

Notice in writing of the conveyance of the interest in remainder must be given to the S. L. Act trustees : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 137 ; if the title to the land is registered under L. R. Act, 1925, then under s. 102 (2) of that Act (see also L. R. Rules, 1925, rr. 11, 229) a priority inhibition must be lodged in the Minor Interests Index ; this does not affect the powers of the tenant for life who is registered as proprietor.

Trust for sale terminates a realty settlement.

Where a trust corporation should be appointed a trustee for sale.

Where a legal estate becomes subject to a trust for sale, the land ceases to be "settled land" : L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending ss. 1 and 3 of the S. L. Act, 1925. Where the land becomes vested in the former S. L. Act trustees on trust for sale they have the same over-reaching powers as the former tenant for life : ib., amending L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (3), bringing this paragraph into line with S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36 (2). They also have any additional powers conferred by the settlement : ib., amending L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (1). On the other hand, where the trust for sale is created by the owner of the land, then, in order that the trustees for sale should have power to over-reach equitable interests (e.g., a jointure) subsisting under a former settlement, then either a trust corporation should be appointed a trustee or the trustees must be approved by the court : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

(4) (Agreement for Settlement, Form No. 11, p. 119) : NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement and in consideration of the said intended marriage, THIS DEED WITNESSETH and it is hereby declared as follows :— Witnessing part.

1. THE Husband, As Settlor, with the privity of the Wife, hereby conveys unto the Trustees, Conveyance

ALL, &c. (parcels, referring to schedule. If the Settlor only has an undivided share in the interest in remainder, the following words should be prefixed to the parcels "ALL THAT the —— undivided —— share of the Husband in, &c., or in the proceeds of sale thereof." In this case, the conveyance can be properly inserted in the Personalty Settlement for, on the death of the tenant for life, the entirety of the land will be vested in the S. L. Act Trustees on trust for sale : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36.)

TO HOLD (subject to the life interest therein of the said R. B.) unto the Trustees in fee simple IN TRUST for the Husband in fee simple, until the said intended marriage shall be solemnised : And after the solemnisation thereof Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions hereinafter declared concerning the same.

2. THE Trustees shall, after the solemnisation of the said intended marriage with the consent in writing of the Husband and Wife during their joint lives and of the survivor of them during his or her life, and after the death of the survivor at the discretion of the Trustees, sell the premises hereby conveyed at any time after the death or cesser (z) of the life interest Trust for sale.

(z) Under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 105 (as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sched.), if the tenant for life surrenders his life interest "to the person next entitled in remainder or reversion under the settlement" so as to extinguish it, his statutory powers cease. It is conceived that the trustees for sale being absolute assignees of the remainderman would be "next entitled . . . under the settlement" within the section. At any rate the settlement comes to an end by reason of the trust for sale, hence, on a surrender, the trustees for sale, having become entitled free from the limitations of the settlement, can call for a conveyance under ib., s. 7 (5). Similarly, if the trustees have been approved by the court or a trust corporation is acting as trustee for sale so that any subsisting family charge could be over-reached by them, they can call for a conveyance; semble, they could do so before the trustees were approved, for the approval can be obtained at any time before they make title. Under s. 105, after the surrender, the statutory powers become exercisable as if the surrenderor were dead; the trustees for sale have the statutory powers under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28. Trustees for sale have to give effect to equitable interests of which they have notice, "whether created before or after the disposition upon trust for sale" : ib., s. 3 (1) (b). Effect of surrender of life interest to remainderman, or his absolute assignees. Beneficial interests.

Notice in writing of the conveyance of the estate in remainder must be given to the S. L. Act trustees of the Will: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 137. Notice to S. L. Act trustees.

of the said R. B., with power to postpone any such sale as the Trustees shall think fit, and shall stand possessed of the net money to arise from the sale of the premises (after payment of the costs and expenses attending such sale) and of any other capital money arising under their statutory powers, and of the rents, profits and income of the premises after the death of the said R. B., or the cesser of his life interest and until the sale of the premises Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions declared concerning the same by a Settlement already prepared, and intended to bear even date herewith, and to be made between the same parties as are parties hereto and in the same order.

As to capital money arising under the Will.

3. ALL capital money arising under the said Will or investments representing the same received by the Trustees from the trustees for the time being of the said Will in respect of the premises hereby conveyed shall be held Upon the same trusts as if the same had arisen under the trust for sale aforesaid.

(b) A settlement of furniture is seldom desirable, particularly as, since the M. W. P. The deed does not require to be registered as a bill of sale: Bills of Sale Act, 1878, s. 4. WITNESSETH, in consideration of a marriage intended shortly to be solemnised between the Husband and Wife, and declares as follows :—

Wife assigns furniture to Trustees.

1. The Wife, As Settlor, with the approbation of the Husband, hereby assigns unto the Trustees,

All the furniture, chattels and effects in and about the messuage No. 1, —— Street, in the Town of ——, which are mentioned in the Schedule hereto,

In trust for appointees of Wife.

To hold unto the Trustees absolutely In trust for such persons and in such manner generally as the Wife shall by any writing under her hand or by Will or codicil appoint :

In default for Wife and then for her children or next of kin.(c)

And in default of and until and subject to such appointment In trust to permit the Wife to use and enjoy the premises during her life And after her death In trust for her child or children by any marriage who attain the age of twenty-one years, or being female marry under that age, and if more than one in equal shares according to value :

(c) If desired, the following trusts may be substituted :—

Trust for Wife for life, and then for Husband for life, and then for children of Wife, as she shall appoint, and in default of appointment equally.

In trust to permit the Wife to use and enjoy the same during her life, and after her death [In trust to permit the Husband, if he survives her, to use and enjoy the same during the residue of his life, and after the death of the survivor of the Husband and Wife] In trust for such child or children or more remote issue (or any one or more of them exclusively of the other or others) by any marriage of the Wife, and in such manner as the Wife shall by deed or Will appoint :

And in default of and subject to such appointment In trust for all or any of the children or child by any marriage of the Wife who attain the age of twenty-one years, and if more than one to be divided between them equally according to value :

If no child, for appointees by Will of Wife, and in default of appointment for Wife or her next of kin.

And if there shall be no child of the Wife who attains the age of twenty-one years In trust for such person or persons as the Wife shall by Will generally appoint, And in default of and subject to such appointment In trust for the Wife absolutely, if she shall survive her now intended coverture :

But if she shall die during her coverture In trust for, &c. (next of kin, as in the text).

If the trusts are declared in this way, the following power of sale should be substituted for clause 2 :—

Power of sale.

The Trustees may at any time, with the consent of the Wife during her life, and after her death [with the consent of the Husband during his life, and after the death of the survivor of

AND if there shall be no such child, then IN TRUST for the persons who under the Administration of Estates Act, 1925, would have been entitled thereto at her death as her statutory next of kin if she had died possessed thereof intestate domiciled in England [and without ever having been married] such persons, if more than one, to take in the shares and manner in which the same would have been divisible between them under the said Act.

Power for Trustees to sell.

2. THE Trustees may at any time, with the consent of the Wife during her life, and after her death at their discretion, sell the premises or any of them, and in case of any such sale shall either apply the net proceeds in purchasing other furniture and effects or shall invest the net proceeds in any investments or securities authorised by law as investments for trust money, with power, with such consent or at such discretion as aforesaid, to vary the said investments for others of a like nature: And shall stand possessed of the said proceeds and the investments thereof, and the furniture and effects (if any) to be purchased as aforesaid, UPON TRUSTS and subject to powers and provisions corresponding as nearly as may be with those hereinbefore declared concerning the premises hereby assigned or such of them as shall be then subsisting or capable of taking effect.

Proviso for indemnity of Trustees.

3. PROVIDED that while the premises hereby assigned or any of them shall remain in the possession of the Wife,(d) the Trustees shall not be bound to see to the preservation thereof, nor be answerable for any loss or injury which may happen thereto.

the Husband and Wife] at the discretion of the Trustees, sell the premises hereby assigned, or any of them, and either apply the net proceeds in purchasing other furniture, chattels or effects, or invest the same in, &c. (as in the text), and shall stand possessed of the proceeds and the investments representing the same Upon the like trusts and subject to the like powers and provisions as are hereinbefore declared concerning the premises hereby assigned, or such of them as shall be then subsisting or capable of taking effect.

This Precedent gives an example of one of the few cases where a power of sale (as distinguished from a trust for sale) is of any practical use. If desired the provisions as to inventories, &c., in Form 3 of the Statutory Will Forms, 1925, can be incorporated, with slight modification, by reference to that form.

(d) If the husband is given a life interest in the furniture, say "or of the Husband."

Power to apportion.

4. The Trustees may value and apportion any chattels hereby settled among the persons entitled thereto under the trusts hereof, and every apportionment and valuation shall be as binding upon all persons beneficially interested as if the same had been duly made by a court of competent jurisdiction.

New trustees.

5. The Wife during her life shall have power from time to time to appoint a new trustee or new trustees hereof.(e)

For the stamps thereon, see Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74. The duty in the case of real estate is sometimes prohibitory.

Settlement by parent on unmarried daughter or extravagant son.

Where a parent makes a settlement in favour of an unmarried daughter or extravagant son the Forms will be almost the same as in the case of a marriage settlement, but the child will be given a power (Form No. 44, p. 139), only to appoint a life interest to a husband or wife, and the life interest of the son will be protected: Form No. 34c, p. 133.

Evasion of death duties and income tax.

Voluntary settlements made with a view to evading death duties must not contain any trust, &c., for the benefit of the settlor: Fin. Act, 1894, s. 2 (3); Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1920, s. 59; the powers given in the text are not "for the benefit of the settlor"; nor a power of revocation exercisable by him; such settlements may incidentally evade the super-tax on large incomes: Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 66. The settlor must survive the settlement by at least three years and must do all things necessary for legally vesting the property in the trustees. As to income tax generally, see p. 105, supra. Under the Fin. Act, 1922, s. 20, income derived from property held under revocable settlements and certain other dispositions is deemed for the purposes of income tax to belong to the settlor or disponor.

(Continue Form No. 51, sub-clause (1), omitting the power to purchase land, p. 152, and continue), with power from time to time at the like discretion to vary such investments for others of a like nature.

(i) The New Zealand Trustee Acts, 1908, as amended by the New Zealand Trustee Act, 1924, embodies many of the provisions contained in English Acts in relation to trustees, including provisions for the appointment of new trustees, that receipts of trustees shall be sufficient discharges, and for indemnity of trustees.

(j) The trustees should be defined here so as to include survivors, &c., as an enactment corresponding to the T. Act, 1925, s. 18, has not been enacted in New Zealand.

B. and the children of the said G. B., or any one or more exclusively of the other or others of them the said H. B. and the said children for the time being in existence, in such manner in all respects as the Trustees shall in their absolute discretion without being liable to account think fit,(k) and shall accumulate the surplus (if any) of the said income by investing the same and the resulting income thereof in manner aforesaid, To the intent that the accumulations shall be added to the Trust Fund and follow the destination thereof, with power nevertheless for the Trustees at any time to resort to the accumulations of any preceding year and apply the same for the maintenance, support and benefit of the said H. B., and the said children or any one or more of them :

When youngest child attains twenty-one, annual sum to be paid to widow during widowhood.

B. the annual sum of £—— during her life if she shall so long continue the widow of the said G. B. :

Subject to annual sum, Trust Fund to go to children equally.

(3) Subject to setting aside a fund to answer out of the income thereof the said annual sum hereinbefore directed to be paid to the said H. B., the Trust Fund (including the said accumulations, if any) shall, if and when the youngest child for the time being of the said G. B., attains the age of twenty-one years, be divided among all or any the children or child of the said G. B., who attain the age of twenty-one years, or being female marry under that age, and if more than one, in equal shares [and so that the share of each such child shall be a vested and transmissible interest in such child being a son upon his attaining the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter upon her attaining that age or marrying (which first happens), notwithstanding that he or she may die before the period of distribution]:

Power for Trustees, with consent of widow, and after her death or second marriage at their discretion, to raise money for advancement of children.

(4) The Trustees may at any time during the minority of the youngest child for the time being of the said G. B., with the consent in writing of the said H. B. during her widowhood, and after her second marriage or death (which first happens) at the discretion of the Trustees, raise out of the Trust Fund any sum, and apply the same for the advancement or benefit of any child of the said G. B., and any sum so applied for the advancement or benefit of any child shall be taken in or towards satisfaction of the ultimate share of such child in the Trust Fund and be accounted for accordingly, if that child attains a vested interest.

If no child attains a vested interest, Trust Fund to revert to Settlor.

4. If no child attains a vested interest in the Trust Fund, the same (including the said accumulations) shall, subject to the trusts and powers hereinbefore contained, revert to and be held IN TRUST for the Settlor absolutely.

Power for Trustees to purchase any property in the United Kingdom or New Zealand as an investment.

5. (1) The Trustees may from time to time at their discretion lay out the Trust Fund (including the said accumulations) or any part thereof in the purchase of any real or personal property or things in action in the United Kingdom or in New Zealand of whatsoever nature or kind, and the Trustees shall stand possessed of any property to be purchased as aforesaid UPON TRUST that they shall sell the same or any part thereof, with full power at their discretion to postpone any such sale, and shall stand possessed of the net money to arise from such sale (after payment of costs) Upon the trusts and subject to the powers hereby declared concerning the said sum of £——, including this present power of purchasing property, and shall in the meantime and until such sale pay and apply the net rent or income arising from the property to be purchased as aforesaid to the persons and in the manner to whom and in which the income of the money laid out in the purchase of such property would for the time being be payable under the trusts hereof if such purchase had not been made:

As to occupation.

(2) THE Trustees may during the minority of the youngest child for the time being of the said G. B., permit the said H. B., and her children to reside in or occupy any house or property so purchased upon such terms as the Trustees may in their absolute discretion think fit :

(3) THE Trustees shall have and may exercise in reference to any land or interest in land for the time being subject to the trusts hereof all the powers which are by the Law of Property Act, 1925 (by reference to the Settled Land Act, 1925, or otherwise), or by the Trustee Act, 1925, applicable to land in England held on trust for sale as if such powers had been incorporated in this deed, and in addition to any powers which by the local law may be applicable to the land.

English statute law to apply.

6. (1) IN the administration and construction of this deed, the English statute law from time to time in force shall apply thereto so far as the local law will permit, and the Trustees shall be entitled to the like indemnities as if the trust were being administered in England :

Remuneration.

(2) THE Trustees shall be entitled to such remuneration (if any) for their services as may be authorised by the local law.

Power for Settlor to revoke and declare new trusts in favour of the widow or issue of deceased son of Settlor.

7. PROVIDED that the Settlor may at any time during his life by any deeds, revocable or irrevocable, revoke or vary, either wholly or partially the trusts and powers hereby declared concerning the Trust Fund or any part thereof (including any accumulations), and by the same or any other deed may appoint any new or other trusts or powers concerning the premises to which such revocation shall extend as he shall think fit [but so that such new or other trusts or powers shall be for the benefit of the said H. B. and the children and remoter issue of the said G. B., or some or one of them].

IN WITNESS, &c.

Part III.

INSTRUMENTS RELATING TO SETTLEMENTS (PERSONAL).

Preliminary Note on Appointments under Powers.

What appointments may be made under a power to appoint amongst children or issue.

Appointment may be made upon such trusts, &c., as child shall generally appoint.

Appointment may be made to trustee for object.

A power to appoint to children in such shares and manner as the donee shall direct is effectually exercised by an appointment of a limited interest to one and of the capital of the fund to another: Alexander v. A. (1755), 2 Ves. Sen. 640; Bristow v. Warde (1794), 2 Ves. 336; by an appointment of the whole fund to one to the exclusion of the other: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 158; by an appointment upon such trusts as a child, being an object of the power, shall generally by deed or Will (and if the child was born at the time of the creation of the power, but not otherwise, as such child shall by Will alone) appoint: Jebb v. Tugwell (1855), 7 D. M. & G. 663; 25 L. J. Ch. 109; Phipson v. Turner (1838), 9 Sim. 227; Morgan v. Gronow (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 1; 42 L. J. Ch. 410; Slark v. Dakyns (1874), L. R. 10 Ch. 35; 44 L. J. Ch. 205, by an appointment to trustees in trust for the objects of the power: Trollope v. Linton (1828), 1 Sim. & St. 477; 2 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 3; or to trustees upon trust to sell real estate and divide the proceeds among the objects: Kenworthy v. Bate (1802), 6 Ves. 793; Fowler v. Cohn (1856), 21 Beav. 360; Re Paget [1898], 1 Ch. 290; 67 L. J. Ch. 151; Re Redgate [1903], 1 Ch. 356; 72 L. J. Ch. 204; Re Adams and Frost [1907], 1 Ch. 695; 76 L. J. Ch. 408; Re Hughes [1921], 2 Ch. 208; 91 L. J. Ch. 10.

A power exercisable with the consent and concurrence of trustees does not necessitate their approval of the persons to benefit thereunder, but merely makes the exercise of the power conditional upon this consent and concurrence: Re Dilke [1921], 1 Ch. 34; 90 L. J. Ch. 89.

Appointment by direction of object to persons who are not objects.

Again, under a power to appoint to children the fund may, by the direction of a child, either in contemplation of or subsequently to marriage, be appointed in favour of his or her issue, or to the trustees of his or her settlement. Such an arrangement is regarded, first, as an appointment, and then as a settlement by the object of the power: Thompson v. Simpson (1841), 1 Dr. & War. 459; see also White v. St. Barbe (1813), 1 V. & B. 399; Sug. Pow. 670; Limbard v. Grote (1832), 1 Myl. & K. 1; 2 L. J. Ch. 10. It is, however, cumbersome, and is not recommended.

An appointment of this kind made on the marriage of an infant daughter by the direction of her intended husband has been held good: Fitzroy v. Duke of Richmond (1859), 27 Beav. 190; 28 L. J. Ch. 752; see also Re Turner's S. E. (1884), 28 Ch. D. 205; 54 L. J. Ch. 690.

In Wright v. Goff (1856), 22 Beav. 207; 25 L. J. Ch. 803; a tenant for life had a power of appointing a fund amongst her children. A married woman was the only object of the power, and an arrangement was entered into between the tenant for life, the married woman and her husband, whereby the fund was appointed to her and then resettled, giving an interest to her children and to a stranger. The husband survived, and the transaction was held to be binding on him.

Who to retain fund

If under a marriage settlement in the ordinary form the surviving parent appoints to A., one of the children, upon trust for the benefit of another child, the fund must be retained by the trustees of the settlement and not transferred to A.: Busk v. Aldam (1874), L. R. 19 Eq. 16; 44 L. J. Ch. 119; followed in Re Mackenzie [1917], 2 Ch. 58; 86 L. J. Ch. 543, and explained in Re Paget, supra.

where appointed to a trustee.

With regard to the application of the rule against perpetuities to appointments under special powers, the following points may be noted:—

Perpetuities.

An appointment of personal estate to a child unborn at the date of the instrument creating the special power for life, or for life determinable on marriage or on some other event, with a gift over to the other children, is valid throughout, but if the gift over is to such of the other children as shall be living at the determination of the prior interest, the gift over would be too remote: Wainwright v. Miller [1897], 2 Ch. 255; 66 L. J. Ch. 616; Re Gage [1898], 1 Ch. 498; 67 L. J. Ch. 200. The rule is now the same in regard to land: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 161.

Life interest to unborn child.

An appointment to take effect upon a contingency is void if, when the appointor takes the last life interest under the instrument creating the power, the contingency might happen after the expiration of twenty-one years after his death: Re Crichton (1912), 56 Sol. J. 398; save that if the contingency is, after 1925, made to depend on the appointee attaining an age exceeding twenty-one years, the age of twenty-one will be substituted and the appointment may be thereby validated: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 163. The section applies where the testator, being the appointor, dies after 1925, though the Will was made before 1926.

Contingent appointment.

Statutory validation.

A restraint on anticipation annexed to a life interest appointed to a daughter is invalid if she was unborn at the date of the instrument creating the limited power, but is valid if she was born before that date: Herbert v. Webster (1880), 15 Ch. D. 610; 49 L. J. Ch. 602; Re Ferneley's Trusts [1902], 1 Ch. 543; 71 L. J. Ch. 422; and see Re Game [1907], 1 Ch. 276; 76 L. J. Ch. 168. The restraint might be imposed for twenty-one years.

Restraint on anticipation.

In exercising a power of appointment among children or other objects, the substantial motive of the appointment must be the benefit of the objects of the power; an appointment made to such objects with a view, not to their exclusive benefit, but to the benefit either wholly or partially of the donee of the power, or any other person, is void, as being what is technically called a fraud on the power: Farwell, 3rd ed., 457; the doctrine applies to a revocation of an appointment, hence the donee of the power cannot revoke a previous appointment with the avowed object of obtaining a benefit by that revocation: Re Jones [1915], 1 Ch. 373; 84 L. J. Ch. 406. This must be distinguished from a release of a power.

Fraud on the power.

Revocation of appointment.

An appointment to a child, however young, is not in itself necessarily fraudulent, though the effect may be to give the whole fund to the donee of the power as administrator. An appointment will be looked upon with suspicion if from the facts of the case, as, e.g., from the child being in bad health at the time and likely to die soon, it seems to the court that the intention of the appointor was to benefit himself, and not the appointee, see Henty v. Wrey (1882), 21 Ch. D. 332; 53 L. J. Ch. 667. Whether the appointor will benefit himself if the child dies intestate will generally depend after 1925 on Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46. Where it is made in favour of young children who die soon afterwards (particularly where the child is in bad health at the time of the appointment) very little evidence of improper motive will induce the court to set it aside: Hinchinbroke v. Seymour (1784), 1 Bro. C. C. 395; Re De Hoghton [1896], 2 Ch. 385, 397; 65 L. J. Ch. 667.

Appointment to children in bad health.

It is a fraud on the power if the appointment is made with a view to benefit a stranger as, for instance, upon a secret understanding that the appointee shall reassign the whole or part of the fund to a stranger: Daubeny v. Cockburn (1816), 1 Mer. 626. In Birley v. B. (1858), 25 Beav. 299; 27 L. J. Ch. 569, Appointment to benefit strangers.

an appointment made to two children, who, a year afterwards, settled the appointed fund on persons who were not objects of the power, the deed containing a recital that when the appointment was made it was understood that the appointees should consider themselves possessed of the funds upon the trusts declared in the settlement, was held void, and see Farwell, 3rd ed., 475.

Secret trust to resettle.

Where the donee of a power to appoint amongst children executed an appointment in favour of two of her children, and such appointment was made on a previous understanding that they should resettle the property appointed first, for the benefit of themselves, and finally for persons not objects of the power, the appointment was held to be bad: Pryor v. P. (1864), 2 De G. J. & S. 205; 33 L. J. Ch. 441; Knowles v. Morgan (1909), 54 Sol. J. 117.

In Duke of Portland v. Topham (1869), 11 H. L. C. 32; 34 L. J. Ch. 113, 606, certain appointments to one of two objects of a power were held void as being frauds on the power, on the ground that there was a secret understanding between the appointor and appointee as to the mode in which the latter should deal with the fund.

Again, an appointment executed by parents in favour of a son to enable him to raise money to pay the parents' debts is void on the same principle: Cloutte v. Storey, 1911, 1 Ch. 18; 80 L. J. Ch. 193; so is an appointment made by the donee in pursuance of an alimony agreement entered into by him to obtain freedom to re-marry: Cochrane v. C. [1922], 2 Ch. 230; 91 L. J. Ch. 605.

Knowledge of appointee of the fraud not requisite.

If the motive or object of the appointment is to benefit a stranger, it is not necessary that the appointee should be aware of such motive or object. Thus, where a married woman, having a power of appointment among her children, appointed the fund by Will to her eldest daughter, in order that she might thereout benefit her father (the testatrix's husband), it being arranged between the testatrix and her husband that after the death of the former the latter should inform the appointee of the object of the appointment, the appointment was held bad: Re Marsden (1859), 4 Drew. 594; 28 L. J. Ch. 906. On the other hand, an appointment made to an object of the power with this addition, "who will, I am assured, settle the same voluntarily" in favour of persons not objects, was held good, there being no bargain on the part of the appointee, and he being therefore free from any obligation to settle it: Re Crawshay (1890), 43 Ch. D. 615; 59 L. J. Ch. 395.

Suspicion of fraud not sufficient.

Appointment to enable title to be made.

Mere suspicion that the appointor's motive was to benefit himself or others is not sufficient to invalidate the appointment. Thus, in M'Queen v. Farquhar (1805), 11 Ves., at p. 479, a tenant for life entered into a contract for sale, but, finding that he could not make a good title without exercising a power reserved to him of appointing the estate among all or any of his children, he exercised the power in favour of his eldest son in fee. Then the father and mother (who were entitled respectively to life estates), as well as the son, conveyed the estate to the purchaser in consideration of £8,000 paid to the father, mother and son (such an appointment would not now be of any avail, as title would have to be made under the S. L. Act; see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 42); it was held that the power was well executed, and that the purchaser must take the title. Lord Eldon observed that there was nothing to show that the son was not to receive a due proportion of the money when the contract was afterwards executed by the deed, see also Green v. Pulsford (1839), 2 Beav. 70; Cockcroft v. Sutcliffe (1856), 25 L. J. Ch. 313; Hamilton v. Kirwan (1845), 2 Jo. & Lat. 393; Roach v. Trood (1876), 3 Ch. D. 429; Saunders v. Shafto [1905], 1 Ch. 126; 74 L. J. Ch. 110.

Appointment by way of family arrangement to obtain powers of management.

If the appointment is made with a view to secure a benefit to all the objects of the power, the appointment is not bad, though the donee may to some extent participate in such benefit. Thus, where an appointment was made to one of the objects, and the appointor and appointee then executed a deed to enable building leases to be granted, there being no power to grant building leases in the original settlement, and subject thereto the property was relimited substantially to the old uses, the appointment was held valid: Re Huish's Charity (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 5; 39 L. J. Ch. 499. In view of the wide powers given to tenants for life and to trustees for sale, such an arrangement would now be unnecessary.

Contemporaneous arrangement, in what cases valid.

Nor does it render an appointment bad that there is a contemporaneous arrangement with the appointees, provided that their substantial interests in the property are not thereby diminished. Hence, where a tenant for life, with a power of selection amongst his children, had received from the trustees part of the trust money in breach of trust, and afterwards appointed to his daughters, in exclusion of his son, this money, which had been advanced to him, and a sum of £500, and contemporaneously with the appointment the daughters exchanged the sums so appointed for an estate of the father, the transaction was supported, for the estate was not proved to be of less value than the amount given in exchange: Askham v. Barker (1853), 17 Beav. 37; 22 L. J. Ch. 769.

Query whether the appointor may take under the ultimate trusts of the appointee's settlement.

Where, on the marriage of a daughter under age, the father made an appointment to her, and by the settlement the appointed money, and also a further sum secured by the father's bond, was settled on the usual trusts for the daughter and her husband, and the issue of the marriage, with an ultimate trust in default of issue for the father, the appointment was held good, on the ground that all that the father took was the husband's marital right, the daughter not being bound (see now M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 2). A similar appointment and settlement in the case of another daughter who was of age was upheld by James, V.-C., on the ground that the father gave a sufficient consideration for the reversionary interest; but the Lord Chancellor on appeal thought the transaction of doubtful validity: Cooper v. C. (1869), L. R. 5 Ch. 203; 39 L. J. Ch. 240.

Appointments severable.

Under a power of distribution amongst the children, the fraudulent appointment of one share does not invalidate the appointment of the remaining shares: Rowley v. R. (1854), Kay, 242; 23 L. J. Ch. 275.

Fraudulent condition.

An appointment by Will to some of the objects on condition that they release the appointor's estate from certain claims, with a gift over to other objects if the release was not given, is void in toto: Re Perkins [1893], 1 Ch. 283; 62 L. J. Ch. 531; and so is an appointment on condition that the appointee pays the appointor's debts: Re Cohen [1911], 1 Ch. 37; 80 L. J. Ch. 208.

Condition as to religion.

A proviso determining a life interest in the event of the appointee marrying a person who did not profess the Jewish religion, or becoming a Roman Catholic, or a member of a sisterhood, is not invalid, either as a fraud on the power or as contrary to public policy: Wainwright v. Miller [1897], 2 Ch. 255; 66 L. J. Ch. 616.

Appointed share does not pass by assignment of a share in default.

Where the object of a power is also entitled to a share in default of appointment, an assurance of his share before any appointment is made does not pass a share acquired by him under a subsequent appointment: Sweetapple v. Horlock (1879), 11 Ch. D. 745; 48 L. J. Ch. 660; Lovett v. L. [1898], 1 Ch. 82; 67 L. J. Ch. 20; see also Re Walpole [1903], 1 Ch. 928; 72 L. J. Ch. 522.

Protection to purchasers.

Where the appointee is not less than 25 years of age a purchaser in good faith for money's worth without notice, &c., of the fraud is protected to the extent to which the appointee would have taken in default of appointment: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 157, but the same care must be taken in investigating titles as before 1925: 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 408–9.

Release of special power.

A special power of appointment may be released by deed whether coupled with an interest or not: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 155; provided that it is not coupled with a duty: Re Eyre, 49 L. T. 259; 1883, W. N. 153; Weller v. Ker (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. (Sc.) 11; Saul v. Pattinson (1886), 55 L. J. Ch. 831.

Release of power valid, even though appointor is benefited by it.

A power of appointment among children is not a power coupled with a duty, and where there is a gift in default of appointment to the children equally, the donee may release his power, even where, by the death of one of his children intestate, he has become entitled to a share. If in the latter case he surrenders his life interest, the trustees will be bound, at his request, to transfer the fund to him as the personal representative of the deceased child: Re Radcliffe [1892], 1 Ch. 227; 61 L. J. Ch. 186; Re Somes [1896], 1 Ch. 250; 65 L. J. Ch. 262; this would apply after 1925 if the appointor becomes entitled to the property under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46. A trustee in bankruptcy cannot release a special power for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate: Re Rose [1904], 2 Ch. 348, per Farwell, J.; 73 L. J. Ch. 726; but the order in that case was by consent discharged by the C. A. on the ground that the persons interested under the power were not before the court: [1905], 1 Ch. 95; 74 L. J. Ch. 22.

Trustee in bankruptcy.

Covenant not to exercise power.

A covenant by the donee not to exercise a testamentary power so as to diminish the share which the covenantee would take in default of appointment is valid as a release pro tanto: Davies v. Huguenin (1863), 1 H. & M. 730; 32 L. J. Ch. 417: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 155. Sufficient property must, if necessary, be left to devolve in default of appointment to give effect to the release, and any appointments in excess of the balance must abate rateably: Re Evered [1910], 2 Ch. 147; 79 L. J. Ch. 465, which overruled the method of working out the result of the release employed in Davies v. Huguenin, supra; but appointments might be made which give effect to the release: Re Evered, supra; cf. Re Cooke [1922], 1 Ch. 292; 91 L. J. Ch. 273.

Covenant as to exercise of special power.

A covenant to exercise a special testamentary power in a particular manner, or not to revoke a particular appointment, is void: Re Bradshaw [1902], 1 Ch. 436; 71 L. J. Ch. 230: Re Cooke, supra; but an appointment actually made is not invalidated by reason of its having been made in pursuance of a covenant: Coffin v. Cooper (1865), 2 Dr. & Sm. 365; 34 L. J. Ch. 629; Palmer v. Locke (1880), 15 Ch. D. 294; 50 L. J. Ch. 113.

Special power is fiduciary.

A special power places the donee in a fiduciary position and cannot be delegated: Farwell, 3rd ed., 499: see Re Airey [1897], 1 Ch. 164; 66 L. J. Ch. 152.

Covenant to charge a jointure.

A covenant to charge a jointure on land which may devolve upon the covenantor operates as a defective execution of a power to jointure conferred after the date of the covenant; the court will give effect to it: Charlton v. C. [1906], 2 Ch. 523; 75 L. J. Ch. 715.

Execution of powers by infants or foreigners.

An infant cannot execute a power over real estate, except a power simply collateral: Hearle v. Greenbank (1749), 3 Atk. 695, this could now only apply to an equitable power; but, as regards personalty, he may exercise, otherwise than by Will, a power over property which, but for the appointment, would belong to some other person. It follows that the ordinary power of appointment among issue contained in a marriage settlement of an infant may be exercised during infancy: Re D'Angibau (1880), 15 Ch. D. 228; 49 L. J. Ch. 756, "because the authority to dispose proceeds from the donor of the power, and not from the donee": Pouey v. Hordern [1900], 1 Ch., at p. 495; 69 L. J. Ch. 231 (a case of a foreigner of full age), see Farwell, 3rd ed., 141, 142. As to powers of attorney granted by married women infants: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 129.

Appointments of equitable interests in land.

Under the old law where land purchased under a power in a money settlement, but not directed to be held on trust for sale, was appointed, words of inheritance had to be used: Re Thursby [1910], 2 Ch. 181; 79 L. J. Ch. 538; but if the settlement had been made after 1911 there would have been a statutory trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32; after 1925 words of inheritance are not essential in any case: ib., s. 60.

Double portions.

Where there is an appointment by Will in favour of several objects of a special power followed by an appointment by deed in favour of one of the same objects the rule against double portions applies, and the objects who take under the deed cannot also take under the Will: Re Peel [1911], 2 Ch. 165; 80 L. J. Ch. 574.

Equitable interests.

All appointments of interests in land create equitable interests only: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1.

Desire to appoint.

(4) The Appointors are desirous of making such appointment as hereinafter contained:

NOW, for effectuating the said desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Principal Deed and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Appointment to surviving children equally.

1. The Appointors hereby appoint that the trustees for the time being of the Principal Deed shall, after the death of the survivor of the Appointors, and in the meantime subject to their respective life interests, stand possessed of the Trust Fund and all other (if any) the property now or which may by any means hereafter become subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed In trust for all or any of them the said six surviving children of the Appointors who attain the age of twenty-one years, or in the case of females marry under that age, and if more than one, in equal shares.(c)

[Variation where there has been a previous appointment. Appointment to six surviving children, one child bringing a previously appointed sum into hotchpot.]

[Where there has been a previous appointment and it is intended that all the children shall take equally, the appointment to N. B. will be recited, and this clause should run as follows:—

(b) As a general rule, it is better to give the date of birth of each child. Notice of the appointment must be given to the trustees.

Application of advancement clause.

(c) This appointment does not take the appointed shares out of the provisions of the Settlement so as to defeat the advancement clause: Re Hodgson [1913], 1 Ch. 34; 82 L. J. Ch. 31; cf. Re Greenslade [1915], 1 Ch. 155.

PROVIDED that the said N. B. shall, under the hotchpot provision contained in the Principal Deed, bring into account the said sum of £—— [the share in the Trust Fund] so appointed to him as hereinbefore recited before taking any share in the premises hereinbefore appointed in like manner as if the trusts herein contained were the trusts in default of appointment declared by the Principal Deed].

APPOINTMENT by a FATHER of INVESTMENTS to a SON and SURRENDER of the FATHER'S LIFE INTEREST, where DUTIES are to be paid out of the UNAPPOINTED INVESTMENTS.(e)

Parties.

THIS APPOINTMENT is made, &c. (date), BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Appointor), of the 1st part, E. B., of, &c. (a son of the Appointor), of the 2nd part, and G. H., of, &c., and J. K., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), of the 3rd part: WHEREAS:—

---

or might die leaving issue, to whom the appointment should be made direct to avoid double duties.

An appointment may be revocable, though the power does not refer to revocation.

A power of revocation and new appointment may be reserved, though the instrument creating the original power does not expressly authorise such a reservation: Adams v. A. (1777), 2 Cowp. 651; where the original power is given to two persons and the survivor, a joint appointment may be made reserving a power of revocation and new appointment to the survivor: Brudenell v. Elwes (1801), 1 East, 442; Re Harding [1894], 3 Ch. 315; 63 L. J. Ch. 725; but not to one of them during their joint lives: Burnaby v. Baillie (1889), 42 Ch. D. 282; 58 L. J. Ch. 842; see also Farwell, 3rd ed., 303, et seq.

Exercise of power of revocation.

A power of revocation and new appointment is not exercised primâ facie merely by a new inconsistent appointment. The previous appointment should be expressly revoked: Re Thursby [1910], 2 Ch. 181; 79 L. J. Ch. 538.

Duties on appointment and surrender of life interest.

(e) If the whole of the funds were appointed, the trustees could not safely transfer them to the son at once, because if the father died within three years estate duty would become payable: Fin. Act, 1900, s. 11; Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 59. In any case succession duty will be payable, and can be commuted and paid in advance under the S. D. Act, 1853, s. 40. If the duties are to be paid out of the appointed fund, see next Precedent. Except as to estates of £1,000 or under within Fin. Act, 1894, s. 16 (3), the payment of estate duty no longer clears the property from succession duty: Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 58 (2), unless within the provisions at the end of that sub-section.

(6) The Appointor is desirous of making such appointment and surrender in favour of the said E. B. as are hereinafter contained :

NOW, for effectuating the said desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Principal Deed and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

1. THE Appointor hereby irrevocably appoints that the investments mentioned in the first part of the Schedule hereto shall be forthwith transferred by the trustees for the time being of the Principal Deed to the said E. B., absolutely free from the costs of and incidental to this Deed and the transfers required for giving effect to the same and from all duties which may on the death of the Appointor or otherwise become payable in respect of the premises hereby appointed, and so that all such costs (except so far as discharged by the Appointor) and duties and the costs of raising and paying the same shall be paid or commuted out of the investments mentioned in the second part of the Schedule hereto or other the investments for the time being representing the same, or out of such of them (of sufficient value) as the Appointor shall from time to time direct, in exoneration of the premises hereby appointed.

Appointment of investments in first part of schedule free from costs and death duties.

2. THE Appointor, As Settlor, hereby assigns and surrenders unto the Trustees :

Surrender of life interest so as to merge.

ALL THAT, the life interest of the Appointor in the investments mentioned in the first part of the Schedule hereto To the intent that such life interest shall forthwith merge in the reversionary interest in the same investments hereinbefore appointed to the said E. (f) For the stamp on the surrender, see Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, ss. 73, 74, and note on stamps, p. 99, et seq. The latter section applies unless the surrender is made in consideration of the son's marriage. This involves a valuation of the life interest, and in this case the date of birth of the surrenderor should be recited.

APPOINTMENT by a FATHER of a fixed SUM to a SON and SURRENDER of the FATHER'S LIFE INTEREST, where DUTIES are to be paid out of the APPOINTED MONEY.(h)

(Parties and recitals as in last Precedent.)

NOW, for effectuating the said desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Principal Deed and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appointment of immediate sum to son.

1. THE Appointor hereby irrevocably appoints that the sum of £—— shall (subject to the provision for setting apart investments to answer part thereof hereinafter contained) forthwith be raised and paid out of the investments mentioned in the Schedule hereto, or any of them, and shall (subject to the payment of the costs of raising the same and of all duties payable in respect thereof) be held IN TRUST for the said E. B. absolutely.

Surrender of life interest.

2. (As in last Precedent, saying "sum of money" for "investments" and "subject to the payments aforesaid" before the words "IN TRUST.")

Direction to Trustees as to payment of estate and succession duty.

3.—(1) THE Appointor and the said E. B. hereby direct the Trustees (which expression shall include the trustees or trustee for the time being of the Principal Deed) to commute forthwith the succession duty (if any) payable in respect of the sum hereinbefore appointed, and to set apart and retain unconverted until the expiration of three years from the date hereof, or until the death of the Appointor (which first happens),

---

The merger of the life interest discharges the appointed fund from estate duty if the appointor survives for three years after the appointment. The succession duty can be commuted at once.

investments to represent so much of the sum hereinbefore appointed (taking the investments set apart at the mesne market price at the date hereof) as may in the opinion of the Trustees be required, if the Appointor dies before the expiration of three years from the date hereof, for discharging or commuting the estate and any other duty, and the costs of raising the same, which will then become payable or be capable of being discharged or commuted in respect of the sum hereinbefore appointed:

Income of retained investments to go to appointee.

(2) The income of the investments hereinbefore directed to be set apart and retained shall, until the investments are applied for the purposes aforesaid, be paid to the said E. B. or the persons deriving title under him.

Surplus of retained investments to belong to appointee.

(3) Subject to the payments aforesaid, the investments hereinbefore directed to be set apart and retained and any money in the hands of the Trustees representing any part of the sum hereinbefore appointed shall, after the expiration of the aforesaid periods (which first elapses), be held In trust for the said E. B. absolutely.

Variation where estate duty becomes payable.

(i) If the appointor dies within the three years, then on his death the memorandum should be varied to show that the investments have been sold, the net proceeds applied in discharge of estate duty, and the balance paid to the appointee.

Releases of powers.

(j) L. P. Act, 1925, s. 155, authorises the donee of a power to release it. This release, though it benefits the donee, is valid: Re Radcliffe [1892], 1 Ch. 227; 61 L. J. Ch. 186; Re Somes [1896], 1 Ch. 250; 65 L. J. Ch. 262; and see preliminary note to this part, p. 226. A married woman, though married before 1883, could, under the old law, release a power by deed unacknowledged: Re Chisholm [1901], 2 Ch. 82; 70 L. J. Ch. 533. After 1925 no acknowledgment is required of any deed: ib., s. 167; as to disclaimers by married women: ib., s. 168.

(6) The said A. B. is desirous of executing such release and surrender as are hereinafter contained:

NOW, for effectuating the said desire, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Release of power.

1. THE said A. B. hereby releases the Trust Fund and all other (if any) the property now or which may hereafter become subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed from the power of appointment thereby conferred on him as having survived the said C. B., his wife, as hereinbefore appearing, To the intent that the said power may be absolutely extinguished.

Surrender of life interest.

2. THE said A. B., As Settlor, hereby surrenders unto the Trustees:

ALL THAT the life interest of the said A. B. in the Trust Fund and other property (if any) now subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed, To the intent that the same may be merged in the capital of the Trust Fund and other property, and that the Trustees shall henceforth stand possessed of the Trust Fund and other property aforesaid IN TRUST for the said D. B. and A. B. (as the personal representative of the said E. B., deceased), in equal shares.(k)

IN WITNESS, &c.

THE SCHEDULE.

Particulars of investments now subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed.

Stamps and death duties.

(k) It is conceived that the stamp would be 10s. and ad valorem duty on one moiety only of the value of the life interest in property, for no surrender is required in regard to the moiety taken by the father: Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74. It must be seen that all the duties payable on the death of the deceased child are discharged as regards that child's moiety. It is conceived that the Commissioners will, if desired, commute the estate duty as well as the succession duty payable in respect of the surviving child's moiety. If the estate duty is not commuted the trustees must retain a sufficient part of this moiety to answer any estate duty which would become payable if the father dies within three years, see notes to Prec. II, p. 230, supra.

Variation where release is only to extend to one moiety.

If the release of the power is to extend only to the moiety of the deceased child and the father intends to preserve his life interest in the other moiety and his right to appoint to issue of his surviving child, then the operative parts will be as follows:—

Release of power of appointment in regard to one moiety.

1. THE said A. B. hereby releases the moiety to which the said E. B., would in default of appointment have been entitled in the Trust Fund and in all other (if any) the property now or which may hereafter become subject to the trusts of the

B. and the Trustees, and all other persons interested in the Trust Fund and property now or hereafter to become subject to the trusts of the recited Settlement, the power of revocation thereby reserved to the said A. SCHEDULE.

(m) Though companies will register stock, &c., in several names, they will not usually recognise trusts, and accordingly will not pay dividends on investments standing in the names of trustees to a beneficiary. It should be ascertained whether the particular company has a special form of request.

DEED by TRUSTEES for SALE, delegating POWERS to the TENANT for LIFE of the proceeds of sale.(q) (Legal Estate.)

Parties.

THIS POWER OF ATTORNEY is made, &c. (date), BETWEEN P. T., of, &c., Q. T., of, &c., R. T., of, &c., and S. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), of the one part, and T. L., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Donee), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Conveyance on trust for sale.

(1) By a Conveyance, dated, &c., and made, &c., certain freehold and leasehold properties were conveyed to the Trustees IN TRUST for the Donee until the solemnisation of his marriage with the said S. B. (which was duly solemnised on ——), and thereafter UPON TRUST to sell the same as therein mentioned,

---

Power to delegate.

(q) Under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 29, the powers of and incidental to leasing, accepting surrenders of leases and management conferred on trustees for sale, either by s. 28 or otherwise, may, until sale of the land, be revocably delegated by writing signed by them to a tenant for life of the proceeds of sale, and in favour of a lessee this will be sufficient evidence that the donee is a person to whom the powers may be delegated; this keeps the trusts off the title to the land. The production of the power of attorney is sufficient evidence that it has not been revoked. The powers must be exercised in the names and on behalf of the trustees; they will not be liable for the acts, &c., of the donee, but he will be in the position of a trustee. If they refuse to delegate the court may direct them to do so: ib., s. 30.

Filing of powers of attorney.

All powers of attorney conferring power to deal with land, or the material parts thereof, must be filed at the Central Office or, in the case of registered land, at the Land Registry: ib., s. 125 (1). A purchaser is entitled to a copy of the power, or of the material parts thereof, unless the power is handed over: ib., s. 125 (2), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sched.

Statutory declaration.

He will be able to have the copy converted into an office copy. The usual statutory declaration as to execution will be required at the Central Office.

and to stand possessed of the net proceeds of sale and other capital money arising therefrom, and the net rents and profits until sale Upon the trusts declared concerning the same by a Settlement of even date therewith under which the Donee (being a person of full age) is now beneficially entitled to the net rents and profits of the premises during his life: [Add, if the case, see Form No. 56, p. 159, supra, " And the said Conveyance conferred certain powers in addition to those conferred by section twenty-eight of the Law of Property Act, 1925, and it was thereby declared that the powers of delegation conferred by section twenty-nine of the said Act, should, for the purposes thereof and until sale of the land, apply to all the statutory powers relating to land as thereby extended, but with a provision that "—(set out the special provisions, if any)].

Request to delegate.

(2) The Donee has requested the Trustees in exercise of their statutory powers [as extended as aforesaid] to execute such power of attorney as is hereinafter contained, which they have agreed to do in manner hereinafter appearing:

Operative parts.

NOW, in exercise of the powers for this purpose conferred by section twenty-nine of the Law of Property Act, 1925 [as extended as aforesaid] and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Delegation of powers.

1. The Trustees hereby delegate to the Donee all the powers of and incidental to leasing, accepting surrenders of leases and management conferred on them by the Law of Property Act, 1925, or otherwise [Together with the additional or other powers which by virtue of the said Conveyance or otherwise they have power to delegate] in relation to the real estate and chattels real from time to time held by them on trust for sale under the provisions of the said Conveyance and the Settlement of even date herewith, or either of them, and hereby appoint the Donee to be their attorney in their names and on their behalf to exercise the said powers or any of them, and for that purpose to execute and do all deeds, acts and things which may be requisite.

Capital money to be paid to the Trustees.

2. Nothing herein contained shall authorise the Donee to complete any sale or other transaction in respect of which capital money arises or to give any receipt for capital money.

Power of revocation.

3. The Trustees or other the trustees or trustee for the time being of the said Settlement and of any conveyance on trust for sale subsisting for the purposes thereof shall have power at any time by writing signed by them, to revoke this power of attorney, and thereupon notice of the revocation shall be given to the proper officer at the Central Office [at the Land Registry] where this deed is to be filed, and any office copy thereof in the possession of the Donee shall be delivered up to the Trustees.

Acknowledgment.

4. THE Trustees hereby acknowledge the right of the Donee to production of the recited Conveyance and the documents mentioned in the Schedule hereto, and to delivery of copies thereof.

IN WITNESS, &c.(r) (Add Schedule of documents relating to the legal estate in the land.)

(r) Semble, apart from an express provision, when new or additional trustees are appointed, a new power of attorney will be required. If an acknowledgment of the right to production of the material deeds is given, the donee of the power can give an acknowledgment of a right to the production of the office copy, and this would give the lessee, &c., with whom he is dealing a right to production of the other deeds. The powers of management referred to include those given by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 102.

Powers of management.

SECTION I.

Recitals.

No. 1.

Agreement for marriage.

A marriage has been agreed upon and is intended to be solemnised between the Husband and Wife. [In the Trust instrument recite the Vesting Deed of even date.]

No. 2.

Agreement for Settlement on marriage.

UPON the treaty for the said intended marriage it was agreed that such Settlement should be executed as is hereinafter contained.

No. 3.

Agreement for Settlement (not on marriage).

THE said —— (father) and —— (son) have agreed to execute such Settlement as is hereinafter contained.(b)

Scheme for avoiding stamp on resettlements.

Settlements by way of trust for sale.

(b) In view of the stamp imposed by the Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74, and the possible costs of valuing the land, a resettlement between father and son will now, as regards the land, be generally postponed till the marriage of the son, but the capital money and investments can be settled as land, and the land may be settled later. The ad valorem stamp will be borne by the trust instrument.

As entailed interests can be created in personal estate: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130, the trusts formerly applicable to realty settlements can now be used in settlements made by way of trust for sale. In a few cases slight adaptations of the trusts may be expedient, but as a whole the forms (so far as they create beneficial interests) are interchangeable. No S. L. Act trustees are required where the land is held on trust for sale, nor any vesting instrument.

SECTION II.

Operative Parts.

No. 4.

Commencement of operative part.

NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement [and in consideration of the said intended marriage], THIS DEED WITNESSETH and it is hereby declared as follows :—(c)

No. 5.

Declaration of trust of freeholds, enfranchised lands and leaseholds (on marriage) in a vesting deed where the settlor takes the first life interest.

THE Husband (or other settlor), As Settlor, hereby declares that—

FIRST, All and singular the mansion house and park known as ——, advowsons, perpetual rentcharges (including tithe rentcharges), lands, buildings, minerals and other freehold properties and rights mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto and as regards [surface] land more particularly delineated on the plans hereto and thereon coloured ——,

SECONDLY, All and singular the enfranchised lands, buildings and rights mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto and as regards lands more particularly delineated on the plans hereto and thereon coloured —— (which properties were formerly copyhold of the manors of —— and ——),

AND THIRDLY, All and singular the premises respectively comprised in and demised by the Leases [and Underleases] mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto :

ARE vested in the Husband (or other settlor) as to the said freehold properties and enfranchised lands in fee simple (but as to the enfranchised lands subject to the manorial incidents and rights of the lords of the said manors affecting the same) and as to the said leasehold properties for the residue of the terms and at the rents mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto and subject to the lessee's covenants and conditions [and as to such of the premises as are affected thereby, subject to the incumbrances mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto] Upon the trusts declared concerning the same by a Trust Instrument bearing even date and intended to be executed contemporaneously herewith and made between the same parties and in the same order as this deed or upon such other trusts as the same ought to be held from time to time.

Essential Forms in a realty settlement.

(c) The essential Forms in realty settlements are, first, the vesting instrument in which the S. L. Act trustees will be named, and which will set out any additional powers relating to the land and give the name of the person having power to appoint new trustees ; and secondly, the trust instrument in which all the trusts will be declared, see S. L. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Forms 2 and 3.

No. 5A.

Conveyance where the settlor does not take the first life interest (vesting deed).

The Settlor, As Settlor, hereby conveys and assigns unto the Husband (or other the person who is to take the first life interest) (Parcels as in last Form).

To hold unto the Husband (or other tenant for life), as to the said freehold properties, &c. (continue as in last Form).(d)

No. 5B.

Commencement of trusts in a trust instrument.

The —— (tenant for life) hereby agrees that he will hold the properties and rights comprised in the Vesting Deed [the recited deed of even date will in the recital be defined as "the Vesting Deed"] [and the several properties of which the —— is registered as proprietor as aforesaid]:

Upon the trusts following, namely—(continue Form No. 7).

No. 6.

Appointment of land in a trust instrument by way of resettlement.

In exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Disentailing Assurance and of all other powers, the Father and Son, As Settlors, hereby appoint that

All the lands and incorporeal properties comprised in the —— Vesting Deed and all other the real estate and chattels real whatsoever which may be subject to the joint power of appointment conferred by the Disentailing Assurance, shall henceforth remain and be held [until the said intended marriage shall be solemnised, Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions which immediately before the execution hereof were subsisting or capable of taking effect with respect to the premises, But after the solemnisation of the said intended marriage] (take Form No. 7, omitting the first sentence in square brackets, or Form No. 7A, as the case may require).

Variation where on marriage.

Incumbrances to be referred to.

Trustees of compound settlements.

(d) In the vesting instrument only the incumbrances which cannot be over-reached (e.g., legal mortgages or legal rentcharges) should be mentioned. All family charges (whenever created) will be capable of being over-reached and will be mentioned and generally re-limited by the trust instrument. These family charges can be over-reached because the S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement will be the acting trustees: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1. There should be no difficulty in ascertaining who are the trustees of the compound settlement. If there are S. L. Act trustees of the instrument creating the charge, they will also be the trustees of the subsequent instruments: ib., s. 31; they or their successors remain S. L. Act trustees so long as the settlement subsists: ib., s. 33. If there are no S. L. Act trustees of the prior instrument, and no trustees of the compound settlement have been appointed by the court, then the S. L. Act trustees of the instrument, under which there is a tenant for life or statutory owner, will be the trustees of the compound settlement till trustees are appointed of the prior instrument or of the compound settlement: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31. Though a power of sale may have ceased to be exercisable before 1926, the successors in office of the trustees become S. L. Act trustees: ib., s. 33 (1), see the words "at any time."

SECTION III.

Limitations of Land.

No. 7.

Preliminary declaration of trusts (in a trust instrument); life interests to be sans waste, &c. [release of powers of charging].

[UPON TRUST for —— (the Settlor) until the solemnisation of the said intended marriage and thereafter] Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions hereinafter declared concerning the same, and so that all interests for life shall be without impeachment for waste [and that where limited to a female shall be without power of anticipation during any coverture (e)] [provided that each tenant for life shall be liable to insure all buildings (except farm buildings) (f) and mining plant to an amount equal to at least three-fourths of the amount required to rebuild or replace the same in case of total destruction and either to apply the insurance money in reinstating the buildings or as capital money arising from the premises hereby settled] [and To the intent that all powers of charging given to the said —— (tenant for life) by the Settlement of 19— shall be hereby discharged (g)] (that is to say):—

No. 7A.

Limitations (in a trust instrument) to devolve with the land directed to be purchased and settled with capital money previously settled.

UPON the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions which, under the recited Resettlement of 19— or any power of charging therein contained, are now subsisting or capable of taking effect with respect to the freehold land thereby directed to be purchased and settled or which would have been subsisting or capable of taking effect if such land had been purchased and settled, but not so as to increase or multiply charges or powers of charging and so that the trustees or trustee for the time being of the Resettlement of 19— for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925, shall be the trustees or trustee hereof for those purposes. (h)

(e) These words in square brackets avoid repetition where several life interests are limited.

(f) See Re Quicke [1908], 1 Ch. 887; 77 L. J. Ch. 523; Gaussen v. Whatman (1905), 93 L. T. 101; article in (1910) 54 Sol. J. 356; and the dictum in Re Bladon [1911], 2 Ch. at p. 354; 81 L. J. Ch. 117; T. Act, 1925, s. 20.

Discharge of powers of charging.

Increase of portions.

(g) On a resettlement the powers of charging given by the previous settlement should still be discharged and new powers given in their place; this is not so important as it was under the old law, for in all resettlements the trustees of the compound settlement must act. If the powers to charge portions in favour of the younger children of the tenant for life are to be increased, it is better to give him a general power to raise the additional money to avoid the extra succession duty which would be payable if a term were limited for their benefit by their brother, the tenant in tail.

Settlements by reference.

(h) This trust creates a settlement by reference to the capital money settlement. The S. L. Act trustees of the money settlement become the trustees of the subsequent settlement of the land unless the latter appoints S. L. Act trustees or the court makes an appointment: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 32.

No. 7B.

The like in a vesting deed.

UPON the trusts declared (by reference) concerning the same by a Trust Instrument bearing even date with, but intended to be executed contemporaneously with this deed, and made between the same parties and in the same order or upon such other trusts as the same ought to be held from time to time. [A new vesting deed is not required (save for the purposes of additional powers) where there is a subsisting vesting deed and the same tenant for life is to act as trustee of the settled land ; pending a new deed an endorsement as to additional powers, if any, relating to land, may be made on the subsisting vesting deed.]

No. 8.

Equitable rent-charge(i) for pin-money (trust instrument).

UPON TRUST that the Wife may, during the joint lives of herself and the Husband, receive out of the premises (other than advowsons) by way of pin-money, without power of anticipation during any coverture, the yearly rent-charge of £——, to commence from the solemnisation of the said intended marriage [or from the death of the said —— (a prior tenant for life)] and to accrue from day to day, but to be paid without any deduction (j),

---

Remedies for recovery of rent-charges.

(i) The remedies for the recovery of rentcharges are given by L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 121 and 122 ; they are exercisable whether the rentcharge is created under a power in an instrument made before or after 1882, unless that instrument or the document exercising the power otherwise directs. Under s. 121 (4) only an equitable term can be created by a woman entitled to pin money or a jointure, as her rentcharge is not held for a legal estate, but the tenant for life (being the trustee of the legal estate) must give legal effect to mortgages created for raising arrears : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 16.

" Without any deduction."

Land tax.

(j) Rentcharges, though no rate or local assessment is payable in respect of them, are subject to deduction on account of land tax (38 Geo. 3, c. 5, ss. 4, 5, 24), unless expressly exempted as above, see note to Gwynne v. Heaton (1778), 1 Bro. C. C., at p. 4, and to 3 Dav. Convg., 3rd ed., 313.

Income tax.

The words " without any deduction " are not sufficient to make a rentcharge payable under a deed free of income tax, the deed being a contract : Income Tax Act, 1918, All Schedules Rules, r. 23, and see Floyer v. Bankes (1863), 32 L. J. Ch. 610, 612 ; A.-G. v. Shield (1858), 3 H. & N. 834 ; 28 L. J. Ex. 49 ; Re Peck [1921], 2 Ch. 237 ; 90 L. J. Ch. 491 ; Re Gretton [1923], 1 Ch. 77 ; 92 L. J. Ch. 49 ; cf. Re Gordon [1924], 1 Ch. 146 ; 93 L. J. Ch. 187 ; nor sufficient to free an annual sum given by a Will from income tax : Gleadow v. Leetham (1882), 22 Ch. D. 269 ; 52 L. J. D. 105 ; 51 L. J. Ch. 449 ; Re Buckle [1894], 1 Ch. 286 ; 63 L. J. Ch. 330. In Wills the words " clear of income tax " should be used if that is the intention, the words " clear annuity " will not suffice : Re Loveless [1918], 2 Ch. 1 ; 87 L. J. Ch. 461 ; nor will " free of all duties " : Re Saillard [1917], 2 Ch. 401 ; 86 L. J. Ch. 749 ; and see Re Cain [1919], 2 Ch. 364 ; 88 L. J. Ch. 513 ; Re Cooper, 88 L. J. Super tax.

A gift in a will of an annual sum clear of all deductions, including income tax, was held to free the annuitant from liability for super tax : Re Crosse [1920], 1 Ch. 240 ; 89 L. J. Ch. 145.

Where the tax is payable out of residue, the residue bears such proportion of the total super tax payable as the annuity, with the income tax thereon except for income tax, by equal quarterly payments, the first thereof to be made at the end of three months from the solemnisation of the marriage [or from the death of the said ——] if the Wife and Husband be both then living. And subject to the said rent-charge.

Equitable rentcharge for son during the lives of himself and his father in a resettlement (trust instrument). (k)

Upon trust that the said —— (son) may during the joint lives of himself and the said —— (father) receive out of the premises (other than advowsons) the yearly rentcharge of £——, to commence from the date hereof and to accrue from day to day, but to be paid without any deduction,(l) except in respect of added, bears to the total amount of the annuitant's income assessed for the purposes of super tax: Re Doxat (1920), W. N. 262. Where an annuitant, whose tax has been paid out of residue, obtains relief by repayment of income tax, the owner of the residuary estate is entitled to such proportion of the sum repaid as the annuity bears to the total income of the annuitant: Re Pettit [1922], 2 Ch. 765; 91 L. J. Ch. 732.

Estate duty.

The words "without any deduction" or "free from all deductions" exempt the jointress from contributing to estate duty; Re Parker-Jervis [1898], 2 Ch. 643; 67 L. J. Ch. 682; or the old settlement estate duty (if any payable): Re Maryon-Wilson [1900], 1 Ch. 565; 69 L. J. Ch. 310; Re Earl of Egmont [1912], 1 Ch. 251; 81 L. J. Ch. 250; and as to what are sufficient words of exemption, see also Re Lord Fitzhardinge (1899), 80 L. T. 376; Re Rayer [1903], 1 Ch. 685; 72 L. J. Ch. 230; Re Turnbull [1905], 1 Ch. 726; 74 L. J. Ch. 438. But if the estate is in possession, and the only life interest after the death of the husband is the jointure to the wife, the latter duty is not payable: Fin. Act, 1894, s. 5 (1); Fin. Act, 1914, s. 14; and see Re Snape [1915], 2 Ch. 179; 84 L. J. Ch. 803; Re Stoddard [1916], 2 Ch. 444; 86 L. J. Ch. 29; Re Parker [1917], 86 L. J. Ch. 766; Re Eve [1917], 1 Ch. 562; 86 L. J. Succession duty.

Where succession duty is payable, it has been held that the words "without any deduction in respect of any tax" exempt from the duty: Floyer v. Bankes (1863), 3 De G. J. & S. 306; 33 L. J. Ch. 1; cf. Re Parker-Jervis, supra; Re Saunders [1898], 1 Ch. 17; 67 L. J. Ch. 55; Re Turnbull, supra.

Where a jointure is limited by or charged under a power in the Will of a person who died on or after the 1st July, 1888, succession duty is payable under the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888, s. 21 (2).

Rent-charge created under power.

A rentcharge created under a power which authorised it to be charged free from deductions is so free notwithstanding that it is not expressed to be free in the deed of charge: Re Cadogan's S. (1911), 56 Sol. J. 11.

(k) Sometimes a rentcharge is given for the life of the son, but it is conceived that this would not save duty. To effect this it would be necessary to limit the rentcharge to the son and the persons deriving title under him during the residue of the life of his father. This Form is for use in a resettlement where the son is to be provided for during the joint lives of his father and himself. It will precede the father's life estate. The words at the end enable the father to increase the rentcharge on the son's marriage without demising his life estate.

(m) For trusts of the term, see Form No. 23 or 23a, p. 267–68. If used, the above term should precede the settlor's life estate.

Term for discharging incumbrances on life estate.

If a term is required for paying off incumbrances on the life estate (see Form No. 24, p. 269), it should be limited for 500 years certain at least.

Protected life interests and discretionary trusts.

(n) For forms creating protected life interests and discretionary trusts, see Forms in Wills (Real), infra.

(o) The words in brackets are not required if Form No. 7 is used. A tenant for life is not liable for permissive waste: Re Cartwright (1889), 41 Ch. D. 532; 58 L. J. Ch. 590; but though made unimpeachable for waste in general terms, this does not confer a power to commit equitable waste: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 135; 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 357.

Death duties.

(p) Under the old practice, if probate or account duty as respects personal estate, or estate duty as respects real or personal estate, had previously been paid under the prior settlement, then no further estate duty was payable under that settlement till the death of a tenant in tail, but if the tenant for life took a new life estate, then it was thought that estate duty might be claimed on his death, see Austen-Cartmell, 5th ed., 3, 53, 77, 78, 183. Having regard to the decision in Parr v. A.-G. [1926], A. C. 239, it seems doubtful, even though the old life interest is kept on foot, whether duties can be thereby saved. Having rightly over-ruled Re Constable's S. E. [1919], 1 Ch. 178; 88 L. J. Ch. 89, it is difficult to see how a resettlement can affect the duties payable on the death of the tenant for life if he retains his original life interest.

Statutory power to restore life interests, &c.

Under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 22, a relimitation in a disentailing assurance of the subsisting trusts (subject to any interests or powers thereby created) with all statutory and other powers annexed to or capable of taking effect during the continuance of such life interest (other than and except the powers of charging hereby [or by the Disentailing Assurance] expressly released) With remainder

No. 12A.

Principal beneficiary under a discretionary trust to be the statutory owner during the subsistence of a discretionary trust (trust instrument).

(1) During the subsistence of the discretionary trust next hereinafter declared the —— (tenant for life) shall have and may exercise in reference to the premises hereby settled all the powers which are by the Settled Land Act, 1925, or any other statute conferred on a tenant for life in possession of land without impeachment of waste [including any powers which would have been exercisable by him if his life interest under the recited —— (will or settlement) had been hereby restored] and so that the —— (tenant for life) shall be the statutory owner for the purposes hereof during the subsistence of the said trust.(q)

Discretionary trust with power for trustees to authorise beneficiary to act as their attorney.(r)

(2) UPON TRUST for the Trustees during the life of the —— (tenant for life) without impeachment for waste, and so that the Trustees shall enter into and during the life of the —— (tenant for life) continue in possession or receipt of the rents and profits of the premises and exercise all powers in reference thereto (other than the powers hereinbefore conferred on the —— (tenant for life), and with power (subject to revocation) does not for the purposes of that Act "and otherwise" create any new interest.

---

Additional powers under resettlement.

A relimitation in a resettlement of a prior life interest (subject or not as above) does not for the same purposes create a new life interest.

In addition to the powers exercisable in respect of the former life interest, the tenant for life (whose interest is restored) is capable of exercising all such further powers as he could have exercised under the resettlement if he had been entitled under the resettlement only: ib., s. 22 (2). On this account it is expedient to restore the life interest, and see ib., ss. 108—9. There is no longer any objection to the additional powers being exercised so as to overreach prior family charges, for in all cases capital money will be paid to the S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement or into court: ib., s. 1; also s. 75 (1); Re Cowley (1926), W. N. 202. By para. 8 of the 4th Sch., ib., s. 22 is made retrospective.

Retrospective

Statutory owners.

(q) Under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 23 (1), where there is no tenant for life (e.g., by reason of a discretionary trust or pending a contingency) the settlement can confer the powers on a person of full age who then becomes "statutory owner": ib., s. 117 (1) (xxvi); if the powers are not expressly conferred on a person of full age then the S. L. Act trustees become the "statutory owners." A statutory owner has an inalienable right to have a vesting instrument made in his favour: ib., s. 106 (1) (a).

Right to vesting instrument.

Effect of discretionary trust.

Power to pay on policies.

(r) Where this discretionary trust is used, the tenant for life will not be in a position to borrow money on his life estate coupled with a policy. If it is desired to give him power (see Form No. 26A or 26B) to obtain money for his own use, then power may be given to him to require the trustees to pay from time to time to delegate the right to enter into possession or receipt of the rents and profits of the premises and generally manage the same to the —— (tenant for life) as attorney of the Trustees and shall pay the net income of the premises (after payment thereout of all rents, rates, costs of insurance, repairs, management and all other outgoings which in the opinion of the Trustees are properly payable out of income) to or for the maintenance, support or otherwise for the benefit of all or any one or more exclusively of the other or others of the —— (tenant for life) and his wife and issue for the time being in existence as the Trustees in their absolute discretion, without being liable to account for the exercise of such discretion, may think fit and so that during the subsistence of any power of attorney given by the Trustees to the —— (tenant for life) the Trustees shall not be liable for any acts or defaults of the —— (tenant for life) With remainder after the death of the —— (tenant for life), &c.

Protectorship.

(3) In this deed, notwithstanding the discretionary trust aforesaid, expressions referring to a tenant for life include the said ——, who shall, as tenant for life, remain and be the protector of the settlement as if his life interest had been restored.(rr) to him out of capital money amounts equal to the full value of policies on his life which he assigns to them, the premiums being made a charge on the rents and income arising during his life. Thus the tenant for life, instead of paying the premiums and interest on the mortgage money, merely pays the premiums and loses the income on the investments sold out.

Discretionary trust in a resettlement.

When a tenant for life is resettling he would object to the statutory powers being vested in the trustees, but if they are reserved to him then, for special reasons, he may agree to create a discretionary trust during his lifetime.

When discretionary trust should be in a separate deed.

Where (see Form No. 12) it is desirable to restore the life interest by the resettlement, then the father may, pursuant to a bargain with his son, assign his life interest to the trustees on discretionary trusts by a separate deed; the assignment would not prejudicially affect his statutory powers: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 104.

Special protectors.

(rr) Special protectors can no longer be appointed: L. P. Act, 1925, 7th Sch., repealing F. & R. Act, 1833, s. 32.

(s) If a new rentcharge is given, the following provision may, unless the wife joins to release her original charge, be added at the end of the Form:—

No. 13A.

Provision requiring release of a rent-charge.

PROVIDED that if the Wife survives the Husband, then the Wife shall, within such time after the death of the Husband as the Trustees may permit, execute at the cost of the trust premises such release of the said yearly rentcharge limited to her by the recited —— as the Trustees may reasonably require, the residue of her life (t) the yearly rentcharge of £——, to commence from his death and to be considered as accruing from day to day, but to be paid without any deduction [except in respect of death duties (u)] by equal half-yearly payments, the first payment thereof to be made at the end of six months from his death if the Wife shall then be living,(v) And subject to the said rentcharge.

and shall accept the yearly rentcharge hereby limited to her in substitution therefor, And subject to the said rentcharge hereby limited (go to next limitation).

Whether or not the jointress releases her original charge, it will be overreachable by the tenant for life for the time being, as trustees of the compound settlement, if there is one, will always be employed. Still, it is convenient that all the trusts should be declared by the last trust instrument.

Family charges overreachable.

If the wife is not restrained from anticipation, then she can join with her husband in the resettlement and release the original rentcharge without acknowledging the deed; in this case the above proviso will not be required.

When wife may join and release.

(t) It used not to be the practice to limit a jointure rentcharge to the wife without power of anticipation, though it was always capable of alienation by her by deed acknowledged with the concurrence of the husband. Now under the M. W. P. Acts it becomes her separate property, and can be disposed of by her alone; this does not seem to be a sufficient reason for giving the rent-charge without power of anticipation; but where that is the intention, see Form No. 8, also Form No. 31. As to the power for the Court to bind the interest of a married woman restrained from anticipation: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 169.

Restraint on anticipation.

(u) The words in brackets should be used when the rentcharge is not to be free from death duties. As to the method of contributing to estate duty, see Re Parker-Jervis, cited in note to Form No. 8, p. 251, where the effect of the words "without any deduction" is discussed.

(v) If the proviso requiring a release to be executed is used it will come in here.

Release of a portions term.

(x) If the younger children taking under the original term are not all sui juris, and the trustees of that term have not been given a power to release it, the release may have to be postponed, but see T. Act, 1925, s. 15 (d). If the portions are slightly increased and the security is sufficient, the trustees can safely join in the re-settlement to release the original term because it will be for the benefit of the younger children; a trustee mortgagee can always release his security and accept another on the ground that he might otherwise be paid off. If the portions are to be largely increased, the father may be given a general power to raise the money so as to save any question arising as to extra succession duty, though the Inland Revenue do not now, it seems, claim a higher rate for the additional portions.

Portion terms take effect in equity.

Though the original portions term, created before 1926, may have been a legal term, it will be converted into an equitable term by the vesting deed: S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 1 (6), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., but without prejudice to legal mortgages of the term.

Settlements inter vivos.

Settlements inter vivos, made after 1925, must be effected by two deeds, a vesting deed and a trust instrument, and if effected in any other way, will not operate to transfer or create a legal estate: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 4 (1).

By the vesting deed the land is to be conveyed to the tenant for life: ib., ss. 4 (2), 5; while the trust instrument is to declare the trusts, including trusts creating terms: ib., s. 4 (2), 1st Sch., Form No. 3.

Portion terms.

An instrument purporting to create a legal term for family purposes could only take effect as part of a settlement: ib., s. 1 (1) (v), hence, if not created by a vesting instrument, could only create an equitable term.

Giving legal effect thereto.

Legal effect must, however, be given to the trusts of terms under ib., s. 16, preferably by raising the money required under ib., s. 71, by a charge by way of legal mortgage, if there is not sufficient capital money in hand to pay off the charge.

(xx) It may be suggested that an express trust for sale should be declared, instead of relying on the statutory trust, and that the daughters should be expressly given entailed interests in the proceeds of sale. The objection to this is that no trust for sale is required or expedient unless the limitation in undivided shares takes effect. Moreover the over-reaching powers conferred by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36, should be exercisable.

Undivided shares (trust for sale).

(y) These limitations are sufficient to create estates tail: L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 61 (4), 130. When land becomes subject to the trust for the daughters in undivided shares in tail, it will be held by the former S. L. Act trustees on

P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 3.

As to limitations to devolve with a peerage, or to tenants in common.

Where the land is to devolve with a title all the limitations should, as a rule, be in tail male. Where there is a limitation to persons as tenants in common the trustees or other estate owners will hold on the statutory trusts: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36. They will have the same powers as the former tenant for life: ib., also L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (as amended).

(c) In the case of a resettlement by father and eldest son, who has disentailed, the ultimate limitation should be to the son in fee simple or absolutely.

All land, whether freehold or leasehold, to be included in the limitations.

After 1925, all land (whether freehold, enfranchised land or leaseholds) will be included in the original limitations. There will be no need for separate clauses dealing with enfranchised lands and leaseholds by reference to the freeholds. Hence the word "absolutely" is added to the ultimate limitation as applying to the leaseholds.

(d) Substitute in a resettlement Form No. 12, p. 252, if required.

(5) UPON TRUST for the fourth,(e) fifth and other subsequently born younger sons of the said —— (Present Peer) successively according to seniority in tail male,(f) with remainder

(6) UPON TRUST that the several persons (other than the persons to take under the foregoing limitations) who are or shall be in the line of the heirs male (g) of the body of ——, first [Earl] of ——, may take successively the following estates and in the following order and manner (that is to say):

THAT each of such several persons (other than as aforesaid) born at the date hereof shall take an estate for his life, with remainder immediately after his death

UPON TRUST for his first and other sons (not being persons who would also take life estates) successively according to seniority in tail male, and so that each of such several persons (other than as aforesaid) shall take their estates successively in the order in which, as heirs male of the body of the first [Earl] of ——, they would succeed to the [Earldom] of ——, with remainder

(8) UPON TRUST for the said —— (h) in fee simple or absolutely.

No. 19.

General power of appointment in a resettlement (trust instrument).

UPON such trusts, and in such manner generally as the said —— (father) and —— (son) shall from time to time by any deed, revocable or irrevocable, jointly appoint, And in default of and until and subject to any such appointment.(i)

(e) It is assumed that there are three sons of the present peer in existence. This is a limitation to unborn sons.

(f) In a Will, use the Form cutting down estates tail of persons born in testator's lifetime.

(g) It is assumed that the Letters Patent granted the dignity to the first peer and the heirs male of his body.

(h) The ultimate remainder should be to the settlor, unless father and son are resettling, when it should be to the son. It is assumed that life interests are made unimpeachable for waste, see Form No. 7, p. 249.

General power; effect on stamp duty.

(i) This power is frequently inserted in a resettlement to avoid a claim for ad valorem stamp duty under Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74. In a resettlement on the marriage of a son this power, if inserted, should either come after the provisions for the wife and children of the intended marriage, or if placed first (as is more usual, so as to enable the settlement to be varied) the following proviso should be added:—

No. 19A.

Power of appointment not to prejudice jointure or portions.

PROVIDED that the foregoing power shall not be capable of being exercised so as to prejudice either the yearly rentcharge of £—— hereinafter limited to the said —— (son's wife) or the term of —— years hereinafter limited for raising portions for the younger children of the said intended marriage without the respective consents in writing of the said —— (son's wife) and of the trustees or trustee for the time being of the said term.

No. 20.

General power in a resettlement for son and the person of full age next entitled in remainder to appoint after the death of the father (trust instrument).

Provided that if the said —— (son) survives the said —— (father), then the said —— (son) shall jointly with the person (if any) of full age for the time being entitled in remainder (whether the remainder is defeasible by the birth of another person or not) expectant on the estate for life of the said —— (son) for an estate for life or in tail male by purchase under the limitations hereinbefore contained have power after the death of the said —— (father) by any deed from time to time to appoint the premises hereby settled or any part thereof, Upon such trusts and generally in such manner as the two appointors think fit, but subject to the limitations having priority to the estate of the person who joins with the said —— (son) in making the appointment.(j)

No. 21.

Name and arms clause (trust instrument).

(1) Every person who, under the limitations hereinbefore contained,(k) becomes entitled as tenant for life or as tenant in tail [male or in tail] by purchase to the possession or to the receipt of the rents and profits of the premises hereby settled (not merely to a share in the income of the proceeds of sale thereof) shall (unless prevented by death or accident)—

(j) This power, if inserted, will come at the end of all the limitations. It will not affect the provisions (if any) for the wife and younger children of the son. It may render unnecessary the execution of a disentailing assurance.

The limitations "hereinbefore contained."

(k) A person whose estate is accelerated by the operation of the clause does not, during the accelerated period, become entitled under the limitations hereinbefore contained, and is not affected by the clause: so decided by Jessel, M.R., in an unreported case, Haygarth v. Mostyn, 1880, H., No. 1711 (21st July, 1881); this should be so, as such person may not be aware of a "discontinuance" giving rise to a forfeiture, and during the accelerated period his estate may be liable to be divested by the birth of issue. See also as to the construction of a name and arms clause, Musgrave v. Brooke (1884), 26 Ch. D. 792; 54 L. J. Ch. 102; Re Cornwallis (1886), 32 Ch. D. 388; 55 L. J. Ch. 716; Re Greenwood [1903], 1 Ch. 749; 72 L. J. Ch. 281; Re Evans [1920], 2 Ch. 469; 89 L. J. Ch. 626.

Chattels and chattels real.

Perpetuities, cesser and shifting clauses.

As chattels and chattels real can now be entailed in the same way as freeholds and the entail therein can be barred, no express provision, taking them out of the operation of a shifting or cesser clause, when under the old law they would otherwise have vested absolutely, is required to avoid infringing the perpetuity rule; as to the old law, see Miles v. Harford (1879), 12 Ch. D. 691; Re Beresford-Hope [1917], 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. J. Ch. 182: Portman v. P. [1922], 2 A. C. 473; 91 L. J. Ch. 708.

As to tenant for life.

As to tenant in tail.

Requirements

(m) To give effect to the requirements of the clause a grant should be obtained, if practicable, from the College of Arms, but the impossibility of obtaining such a grant does not create a forfeiture: Austen v. Collins (1886), W. N. 91 ; Re Croxon [1904], 1 Ch. 252 ; 73 L. J. Ch. 170. The obligation to assume arms is not satisfied by a de facto user of such arms, but by obtaining a Royal Licence to bear the surname and arms followed by a grant and exemplification of arms from the College of Arms ; the obligation to bear a particular coat of arms is not satisfied by a grant of arms resembling that coat: Re Berens (1926), 70 Sol. J. 405, unless the applicant would not be granted the exact coat.

(n) An infant cannot "refuse or neglect," so is not bound by the condition : Re Edwards [1910], 1 Ch. 541 ; 79 L. J. Ch. 281.

(o) As to the effect of this clause, see Re Michell [1892], 2 Ch. 87 ; 61 L. J. Ch. 326. It is no longer necessary to limit any estate to trustees by a name and arms clause ; the estate owner will hold the land on the requisite trusts : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 16 ; the S. L. Act trustees will hold capital money on corresponding trusts.

limitations hereinbefore contained in the same manner as if the person whose estate in tail [male or in tail] is so made to determine were dead and there were a general failure of issue inheritable to the estate which is so made to determine ;

(iv) to a person who already uses and bears the same, or (except as next hereinafter provided)
(v) to a female during coverture :

(4) THE obligations aforesaid shall apply to the husband of every female (not being a peeress either in her own right or in right of her husband) who becomes entitled as aforesaid (p) and whose estate has not before marriage determined under the proviso for cesser aforesaid, if and so far as such obligation would have applied to him in case he had himself become so entitled, and notwithstanding that his wife may have previously complied with the same, and shall so apply to him as from the marriage or the time when his wife becomes so entitled, whichever event last happens ; and any refusal, neglect or discontinuance by any such husband shall be deemed to be a refusal, neglect or discontinuance by his wife, and the aforesaid proviso for cesser of estates shall apply to her accordingly.

Married woman.

SECTION IV.

Trusts of Terms (In Trust Instruments).

No. 22.

Trusts of portions term in marriage Settlement.

THE Trustees [or if there is a separate set of trustees "The Portion Trustees," and so throughout] shall stand possessed of the said term of —— years [hereinbefore limited in substitution for the term of —— years limited by the recited —— and for the trusts thereof (r)] Upon the following trusts, namely :—

(1) UPON TRUST if there shall be any child or children of the said intended marriage who attain the age of twenty-one years, or being female marry under that age (s) (other than and besides a first (t) or only son or any other son or sons [or any daughter or daughters (u)] who, before attaining the age of twenty-one years [or being female before marrying under that age (u)], shall or would, if of full age, be or become [indefeasibly] (v)

Request to take name and arms.

(q) For a Form applying the clause independently to personal estate so as to prevent a tenant in tail by purchase from becoming indefeasibly entitled on attaining twenty-one and barring the entail, see Re Cornwallis (1886), 32 Ch. D. 388 ; 55 L. J. Ch. 716.

It is becoming a practice merely to insert a request (see Forms, Wills (Real), infra) that the name and arms should be taken and used without imposing any penalty by way of cesser of estates.

Variations where a substituted term is limited in a resettlement.

(r) For limitation of the term, see Form No. 14, p. 255 ; where a substituted term is limited, the trusts of the new term may be more beneficial to the children, but in other respects should give effect to the trusts of the term intended to be superseded. Trustees of a term for raising portions, with power to postpone the raising, are bound to consider the interest of the persons entitled to the estate as well as the portioners : Re Sandys [1916], 1 Ch. 511 ; 85 L. J. Ch. 418.

Vesting of portions.

(s) As to the importance of limiting a time for the vesting of portions, see Hemming v. Griffith (1860), 2 Giff. 403 ; Knapp v. K. (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 238 ; Henty v. Wrey (1882), 21 Ch. D. 332 ; 53 L. J. Ch. 667 ; Re De Hoghton [1896], 2 Ch. at p. 396 ; 65 L. J. Ch. 667 ; Waller v. Stevenson (1912), 56 Sol. J. 666.

(u) Omit these words in brackets if the daughters take as tenants in common in tail, as in Form No. 15, p. 256. The words should only be used if the daughters take successively.

"Indefeasibly."

(v) The word "indefeasibly" should be used when a daughter who takes the land is to be excluded from taking a portion (see last note), or if there is a power of appointment among issue, as in Form No. 16, p. 257. If a wide power of appointment is used (Form No. 16A, p. 257) there may be no need for a portions term. When the settlement contains a name and arms clause, or other shifting clause, and the word "indefeasibly" is used, it should be qualified, "except by the operation of," &c.

(ii) The [net] sum of £—— [free as aforesaid] if there shall be two such children and no more,

Such portion or portions to be vested in and payable to such child or children or issue at such age or time (not previous in case of a child to the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter to marriage under that age), or any one or more exclusively of the other or others of such children or issue at such age or time (but in case of a child not previous as aforesaid), and if more than one in such shares and with such provisions for maintenance, advancement and otherwise at the discretion of any persons and with such trusts over and generally in such manner for the

L. Act, 1925, s. 71, or independently of an equitable mortgage. It may save duty if the portions are paid in his lifetime. The trustees may accept the money before it becomes payable : T. Act, 1925, s. 15.

Hotchpot clause.

(2) PROVIDED that a child who, or whose issue, shall take any money by appointment shall not, in the absence of any direction to the contrary, take any share in money unappointed without bringing the amount appointed to such child, or his or her issue, into hotchpot and accounting for the same accordingly :

Trust for maintenance and education.

(3) UPON FURTHER TRUST, after the death of the Husband, to raise out of the income of the premises or by the sale of timber and pay or apply for or towards the maintenance (a) or education of any child or other issue for the time being presumptively entitled to a portion under the trusts aforesaid, and until such portion becomes payable such yearly sum (not exceeding interest at the rate of £5 per cent. per annum on the then presumptive portion of such child or other issue) as the Husband shall in manner aforesaid appoint ; And in default of any such appointment, then such sum as the Trustees shall deem proper, not exceeding the amount hereinbefore authorised to be appointed by the Husband for the like purposes, such yearly sum to be clear of all deductions [except for income tax (b)] and to be applied by the Trustees or to be paid to the guardians or guardian of such child or other issue for the purposes aforesaid, and so that in the latter case the Trustees shall not be concerned to see to the application thereof :

Advancement clause.

(4) PROVIDED that the Trustees may at any time after the death of the Husband or in his lifetime, with his consent in writing, raise by any of the means hereinbefore authorised, and at their discretion apply for the advancement or benefit of any son or other male issue (c) presumptively entitled to a portion Maximum capital sum raisable.

Surplus rents and profits.

(6) SUBJECT to the trusts hereinbefore declared, and to the right of the Trustees to raise by any of the means aforesaid all costs and expenses incurred in relation thereto, the rents and profits of the premises comprised in the said term shall be received by the persons for the time being entitled in remainder or reversion immediately expectant upon that term:

Power for any person named to charge a principal sum.(h)

(1) NOTWITHSTANDING the limitations hereinbefore contained, the said —— may from time to time by any deed, revocable or irrevocable, or by Will or codicil specially referring to this power, charge all or any of the premises hereby settled with any sums not exceeding in the whole the sum of £—— and interest thereon at a rate not exceeding £5 per cent. per annum for his own benefit, and may by the same or any other deed or by Will or codicil appoint the premises charged for any equitable term of years with or without impeachment of waste Upon usual trusts by mortgage or otherwise to raise the principal money and interest charged and the costs and expenses (if any) of raising the same [and every such charge and appointment shall take priority over all the other limitations and powers hereof]:

(2) LEGAL effect shall (unless the charge is paid off out of capital money) be given to any such charge under the provisions of section sixteen or section seventy-one of the Settled Land Act, 1925, as the case may require, but if raised under the last-mentioned section shall in the first instance be paid to the Trustees.

No. 26.

(h) This power is desirable in the case of a resettlement in preference to increasing portions to any large extent, as it saves any question as to a claim for extra succession duty payable when the eldest son is in effect the settlor. The father can raise the money for himself under this power and then settle it on the younger children, but under the present practice the Inland Revenue do not claim succession duty at the higher rate.

thereof, any sums not exceeding in the whole the sum of £—— for his own benefit, and for that purpose may from time to time exercise the powers conferred by section seventy-one of the Settled Land Act, 1925, in like manner as if the money were raisable for one of the purposes mentioned in that section [with interest thereon at a rate not exceeding £5 10*s.* per cent. per annum] and every mortgage so made shall (subject to the provisions thereof) have priority over the limitations herein contained.

Vesting instruments.

(2) In every vesting instrument the powers conferred by the said section shall be extended so as to authorise the raising of the said money by the said —— (tenant for life) and the money shall in the first instance be paid to the trustees.

No. 26A.

Power for any tenant for life in possession to require capital money to be paid to him in exchange for policies.(j)

(1) If any tenant for life of full age in possession under the limitations hereof shall from time to time assign to the Trustees (without reserving any right of redemption), any policies on his life effected in such offices as the Trustees shall reasonably approve then and in any such case such tenant for life may, by writing, direct that the Trustees shall pay to him the amount secured to be paid on his death by any such policy out of any capital money or investments for the time being subject to the trusts hereof, and the money to be received or recovered under any such policy shall be accepted in satisfaction of the amounts from time to time paid to such tenant for life under this present power:

Provided that in the case of any policy with profits, any bonus, or part of a bonus, not applied in reduction of premiums and not required to replace the money paid to the tenant for life, shall be held in trust for him absolutely.

Covenants to maintain.

(2) As a condition to making any such advance, the Trustees may require such tenant for life to enter into covenants for the upkeep of the policies assigned and to maintain or restore any such policy in the usual way.

Authorised investments.

(3) All policies so accepted by the Trustees, and any policy substituted therefor shall be deemed to be authorised investments for the purposes of this settlement.

(i) This is an alternative Form to the last. Where this Form is used the mortgage has immediate priority to the settlement. This Form is used when it is unlikely that there will be capital money in hand to pay off the incumbrance.

Protection of mortgagees.

(j) This form will be used in connexion with Form No. 23, supra, declaring the trusts of a policy term. A mortgagee is not concerned when the money is paid to S. L. Act trustees to see that the money advanced is wanted for any purpose or that no more than is wanted is raised: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 95.

(4) PROVIDED that the aggregate amount to be paid from time to time to any such tenant for life under this present power shall not exceed such amount as shall, in the opinion of the Trustees, leave, after paying the premiums out of income, sufficient income for the proper upkeep of the premises hereby settled, and for answering or keeping down any charges payable out of income.

Limit of advances.

(5) IF there shall not be sufficient investments or capital money for the time being subject to the trusts hereof, out of which any such payment can be made as aforesaid, then the payment shall not be made unless and until there shall, in the opinion of the Trustees, be sufficient capital money in hand or interim investments out of which the advance can be properly made.

Payment to be made exclusively out of capital money in hand.

No. 26 B.

Power (specific) for a tenant for life to obtain money for his own benefit on assigning policies to the Trustees.

(1) IF the —— (tenant for life) shall from time to time assign to the Trustees any [further] policy on his life effected in such office as the Trustees shall reasonably approve then, and in any such case, he may, by writing direct that the Trustees shall pay to him the amount secured to be paid on his death by any such policy out of any capital money or investments for the time being subject to the trusts hereof and the money to be received or recovered under any such policy shall be accepted in satisfaction of the amounts from time to time paid to the —— (tenant for life) under this present power, and the covenants by the —— (tenant for life) for the upkeep of policies hereinbefore contained and the trusts of the term of —— years hereinbefore limited shall extend and apply to all such policies so accepted by the Trustees (k) and the same shall be deemed to be authorised investments for the purposes hereof.

(2) PROVIDED that the aggregate amount to be paid to the —— (tenant for life) under this present power shall not in the whole exceed the sum of £—— :

Fixed limit.

(3) PROVIDED ALSO that if there shall not be sufficient investments or capital money for the time being subject to the trusts hereof, out of which any such advance can be made as aforesaid, then and in any such case, the —— (tenant for life) may from time to time during his life raise by mortgage of the premises (other than advowsons) hereby settled or any part thereof, as if the money were authorised to be raised by section seventy-one of the Power to raise money.

(k) A term should be limited to the trustees, in priority to the life interest, on trusts out of income to keep up the policies and the tenant for life must enter into the usual covenant with variations making it applicable to policies subsequently assigned to the trustees. This power may be required where a discretionary trust is imposed during the lifetime of the tenant for life.

Premiums to be paid out of income.

Settled Land Act, 1925, any sums which he would be entitled to have paid to him out of capital money under the provisions of this clause for his own use.

Vesting Instruments.

(4) In every vesting instrument the powers conferred by the said section shall be extended so as to authorise the raising of money by the said —— (tenant for life) for the purposes aforesaid, and the money shall in the first instance be paid to the Trustees.

Protection of mortgagees.

(5) No mortgagee shall be concerned to see or enquire whether the —— (tenant for life) has duly assigned to or vested in the Trustees a policy or policies on his life of sufficient value to authorise the intended payment to be made to him or whether the capital money and investments for the time being subject to the trusts hereof are insufficient to provide for the payment.

No. 27.

Power to jointure future wife.

Variations where power is given to son in a resettlement to jointure any wife.

(1) The said —— (husband) may, at any time, either before or after any marriage contracted by him subsequent to the now intended marriage [said —— (son) may at any time either before or after marriage], by deed, revocable or irrevocable, or by Will or codicil, appoint to his wife by such [any] marriage, if she survive him, for her life or for any less period, any yearly rentcharges not exceeding in the whole the yearly sum of £—— without any deduction (l) except for income tax, to commence from his death [whether the said —— (father) be then living or not (m)], and to be issuing out of all or any of the premises hereby settled (except advowsons) and to be paid at such times and in such manner as he [the said —— (son)] shall direct :

(2) Any such appointment may be made as often as the said —— (husband) [or son] shall marry, but so that the premises, or any of them, shall not under this power be at any one time (n) subjected to the payment of yearly rentcharges which in the whole [including the said rentcharge of £—— in favour of the said —— (wife or intended wife)] shall be in excess of the annual sum of £—— ; but any rentcharges or any part of any rentcharge which, but for this provision, would from time to time have occasioned or formed such excess shall not during the continuance of such excess be raisable out of the premises :(o)

(m) On a resettlement the eldest son should be given an absolute power to jointure. If the jointure is not to commence, if the father survives him, till the father's death some other provision should be made for the son's wife.

(n) See Re Beckett (1905), 93 L. T. 746.

Divorce.

(o) The last part of this clause is required to provide against a second full jointure in case of a divorce: Marlborough v. M. [1901], 1 Ch. 165; 70 L. J. Ch.

No. 28.

Power to charge portions on future marriage.

THE said —— (husband) may at any time, either before or after any marriage contracted by him subsequent to the now intended marriage :—

Variations where the power to charge on any marriage is given to a son in a resettlement.

244. The donee of a power to jointure may make a bargain when exercising it: Saunders v. Shafto [1905], 1 Ch. 126; 74 L. J. Ch. 110. The powers conferred by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 121 (see also ib., s. 122), will apply.

(p) On a resettlement the eldest son should be given an absolute power to charge portions. If the interest does not run till after the father's death, some other provision should be made for the son's children. A power of charging portions may be impliedly released by dealings clearly inconsistent with its exercise: Nottidge v. Dering [1910], 1 Ch. 297; 79 L. J. Ch. 439.

(q) If the limitations of the land are not confined (as in Form No. 15, p. 256), to issue of the intended marriage, any child of a subsequent marriage taking the land should be excluded, as in Form No. 22, p. 264.

Variation to exclude issue of son taking settled estate.

Also, where the power is given to a son in a resettlement, then his issue who take under the limitations should be excluded, as in Form No. 22, p. 264, and the necessary addition made to this Form (No. 28).

Advancement.

(3) By the same or any other deed or by Will or codicil (but subject as aforesaid) charge the premises with any sum or sums not exceeding together one-half of the presumptive portion of any son or other male issue, to be raised for his advancement or benefit, so that the amount raised be taken in part discharge of the portion in respect of which it is raised in case such son or other male issue eventually becomes entitled to a portion ; And every sum charged as lastly provided for the advancement or benefit of a son or other male issue may be paid [after the death of the survivor of the said —— (father) and —— (son)] in such manner or applied at the discretion of such persons as the said —— (husband) [or son] shall in manner aforesaid direct :

No. 29.

Contingent power for successive tenants for life (other than the settlors) to limit rentcharges to husbands or wives.

(1) EVERY person (except the said ——(s)) hereby made tenant for life of the premises hereby settled may, from time to time, either before or after becoming, under the limitations hereinbefore contained, entitled to the possession or to the receipt of the rents and profits of the premises,(t) and either before or after any marriage contracted by him [or her] (but subject to the limitations, powers and charges having priority to the estate of the appointor) by deed, revocable or irrevocable, or by Will or codicil, appoint to any person the appointor may marry during the residue of the life of such person, if surviving the appointor, or for any less period any yearly rent-charges not exceeding in the whole for any one such person the yearly sum of £—— without any deduction, except for income tax,(u) to be issuing out of all or any of the premises hereby settled (except advowsons), and to be paid at such times and in such manner as the appointor may in manner aforesaid direct, and any such appointment may be made as often as the appointor shall marry :

Charge to be contingent.

(2) PROVIDED that any rentcharge appointed under the power last aforesaid is not to become a lien upon the premises, or be payable unless and until either the appointor shall be or become entitled to the possession or to the receipt of the rents and profits of the premises hereby settled, or some issue of the appointor shall or if of full age would be so entitled :(v)

Persons excepted.

The general rule is that the settlors arrange to take absolute powers to create family charges.

Assignment of life interest.

(t) A tenant for life, who, while his interest is in remainder, disposes of his life interest, nevertheless becomes entitled to the "possession" of the property on the termination of the prior life interest so as to be able to exercise powers conferred by the settlement : Re Lord Petre [1910], 1 Ch. 290 ; 79 L. J. Ch. 145.

(u) See notes to Forms Nos. 8 and 13, pp. 250, 254.

(v) The power is here contingent because the appointors are not the settlors.

Limit of rentcharges.

(3) PROVIDED also that the premises, or any of them, shall not under the power lastly hereinbefore contained be at any one time subject to the payment of yearly rentcharges appointed by any one appointor (w) which in the whole shall be in excess of the annual sum of £——, nor to any yearly rentcharges which in the whole shall be in excess of the annual sum of £——, but any rentcharges or any part of any rentcharge which but for this proviso would from time to time have occasioned or formed such excess shall not during the continuance of such excess be raisable out of the premises, and the several rentcharges appointed are to have the like priority as the interests of the persons by whom they are appointed.

Settlement (by Trust Instruments) of Investments, Policies and Heirlooms.(e)

No. 33.

Declaration of trusts of money and investments to devolve with settled land.

THE Trustees shall stand possessed of the money and investments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, which have on or before the execution hereof been paid or transferred or caused to be paid or transferred to the Trustees by the said —— (settlor), Upon, &c. (take Form No. 36, p. 283).

No. 34.

Appointment of investments and capital money.(f)

IN exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Disentailing Assurance and of all other powers, the said —— (father) and —— (son), As Settlors, hereby appoint [that the trustees of the Settlement of —— shall, as soon as possible, transfer (g)] to the Trustees

Pure personalty dealt with separately from land.

(e) All interests in land to be settled should be vested in the estate owner (i.e., the tenant for life or statutory owner) and will be dealt with together. Any requisite conveyance of a legal estate will be included in the vesting instrument, while appointments of equitable interests will be made by the trust instrument. On the other hand, pure personalty (e.g., money, investments, policies and heirlooms) must be vested in the trustees of the settlement and not in the tenant for life.

Words of limitation.

Words of limitation were never necessary to transfer an absolute interest in investments or other personal estate though notionally converted into land by a trust to purchase: Re Monckton [1913], 2 Ch. 636; 83 L. J. Ch. 34; see now L. P. Act, 1925, s. 60.

(f) It is assumed that the capital money under the previous settlement was disentailed and limited upon such trusts as father and son should appoint, discharged from liability to be invested in land. Form No. 38, p. 285, should also be used when the investments cannot be transferred at once.

Trustees of the compound settlement to hold the investments.

The S. L. Act trustees of the prior settlement will not make over the capital money and investments to the trustees of the subsequent settlement till the family charges (if any) under the prior settlement have been cleared; the trustees of the prior settlement must act as the trustees of the compound settlement so long as it subsists: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 31. If there are no S. L. Act trustees of the prior settlement, the trustees of the instrument under which there is a tenant for life will be the trustees of the compound settlement: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. (amending s. 31, supra). And see Re Cradock (1926), W. N. 179. The trustees of a prior instrument will be preferred to those of a subsequent instrument, having become trustees of that and the subsequent instruments, they will, in default of trustees of a prior instrument, become trustees of the entire settlement.

(g) These words will be required if the trustees of the previous settlement and the resettlement are not the same persons.

Same persons to act as trustees of all the instruments.

It saves costs, in avoiding transfers of investments, if the same persons are appointed to act as S. L. Act trustees of each of the instruments. If the original trustees do not desire to act as trustees of the new settlement they should retire from the trusts of the prior settlement before the new settlement is made, and the persons who are to act as trustees of the new settlement should be appointed to be trustees of the prior settlement.

ALL AND SINGULAR the money and investments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, and all other (if any) the money and investments which or the produce of which were immediately before the execution of the Disentailing Assurance [or if the investments are to remain as capital money on account of existing family charges which are not released, say "are"] liable to be held on the same trusts as the land comprised in the Settlement of ——,

To be held by the Trustees (take Form No. 36, infra, or where capital money and investments alone are settled in the first instance, Form No. 37, infra).

No. 35.

Assignment of policies to be held as capital money.

THE said —— (settlor), As Settlor, hereby assigns (h) unto the Trustees

ALL those policies of assurance on his own life mentioned in the —— schedule hereto, and the respective sums thereby secured, and all other money to become payable thereunder, and the full benefit of the said policies:

To have and receive the same unto the Trustees absolutely, UPON TRUST to get in and receive all money to become payable under the said policies, and after payment of the costs incidental thereto, to stand possessed of the net money (take Form No. 36, post, or Form No. 37, infra, as required).

(h) Notice in writing of the assignment must be given to the assurance societies. A recital should be inserted stating that "the settlor is entitled to the policies on his own life hereinafter mentioned and assigned." In the case of a voluntary settlement of policies the stamp is on the surrender value of the policies at the date of the settlement and not on the whole policy money.

Direction to lay out in the purchase of land unnecessary.

(i) It is no longer necessary to direct the money or personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land to be settled on the same limitations as the settled land; it is sufficient to declare the trusts by reference to capital money arising under the Act from the land settled by the instrument in question, or to declare that it shall be held on trusts corresponding with the limitations of the land: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 78 (1) (2), which meets the decisions in Re Walker [1908], 2 Ch. 705; 77 L. J. Ch. 755; Re Aspinall [1916], 1 Ch. 15; 85 L. J. Ch. 102; Re Twopeny [1924], 1 Ch. 522; 93 L. J. retain any investments in their present state of investment or sell or convert into money so much of the premises as shall not consist of money and shall with the like consent or at the like discretion lay out the net money arising thereby and so much of the premises as may consist of money in the purchase of freehold property in or arising in England or Wales to be settled by means of the requisite instruments (j) Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions hereinafter declared or directed.

(2) NOTWITHSTANDING that the Trustees shall with such consent or at such discretion as aforesaid have power to retain such investments as aforesaid or to invest the premises in any of the interim investments hereinafter authorised all the premises shall as from the date hereof be deemed to be primarily liable to be laid out in the purchase of freehold property as aforesaid to be settled in manner hereinafter directed and shall be impressed with a trust for conversion into land accordingly.

(3) THIS deed shall be construed in like manner as if the premises had immediately upon the execution hereof been invested in the purchase of freehold property, and references to "the premises hereby settled" and other like expressions shall have effect as if freehold property had by a vesting deed and a trust instrument been settled upon the trusts hereinafter mentioned.

(4) THE freehold property hereinbefore directed to be purchased shall be settled Upon the trusts, &c. (Take Form No. 7, p. 249, and continue the limitations in the same way as if land had been settled, add the requisite trusts of terms, powers of charging, appoint S. L. Act trustees, and add such further provisions as, having regard to any lands which are ultimately intended to be settled (k) may be deemed requisite.)

Principal and subsidiary vesting instruments.

(j) When land is first acquired, there being no other settled land in regard to which a principal vesting instrument is in force, then a principal vesting instrument must be used: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 10 (1), proviso. Where land has already been settled and further land is acquired, then a subsidiary vesting instrument (referring to the principal vesting instrument) must be employed: ib., s. 10.

Where vesting deeds are not required.

Where land is already subject to a vesting instrument a new trust instrument only will be required to vary the trusts, save that if this involves a change in the ownership of the life interest then there must be a conveyance of the legal estate to the new tenant for life by means of a vesting instrument. The penalty for not using a vesting instrument is that the legal estate does not pass: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 4 (1); this does not apply when only equitable interests are being dealt with.

The effect of the power of sale in the Act in certain cases under the old law altered the devolution of the property—e.g., where the proceeds of sale were applied in discharge of incumbrances on, or, semble, improvements to, or the purchase of, freeholds; but now that the heirlooms are entailed this will not occur.

clusive evidence as regards all persons interested hereunder as to what chattels for the time being are held as Heirlooms on the trusts hereof, and upon any change in the Heirlooms the new Inventories shall be altered and re-signed as aforesaid or new Inventories made, as may be convenient:

Receipts to be signed by usufructuaries when Heirlooms are handed over to them.

(4) After the death of any tenant for life, and upon the Heirlooms being handed over to the person for the time being entitled to the use and possession thereof, such person shall sign a receipt for the same at the foot of the copy of each Inventory retained by the Trustees:

Power for Trustees to inspect Heirlooms and see to insurance and preservation, and to make arrangements as to the Heirlooms during a minority.

(5) The Trustees are hereby empowered from time to time to inspect and examine the state of the Heirlooms and to require (subject to the provisions hereinafter contained as to insurance) that the same be insured (o) against loss or damage by burglary, theft or fire, so far as they are capable of being so insured, and to be otherwise properly preserved, and to be restored and repaired at the expense of the usufructuary thereof for the time being, but except during a minority or at any other time while the Heirlooms are in the actual custody of the Trustees, it shall not be obligatory on the Trustees to inspect and examine the Heirlooms or to require that the same be insured, preserved, restored or repaired; but during a minority the Trustees may apply any rents, profits and income of the premises hereby settled for any of the aforesaid purposes, or for paying any persons for acting as custodians of the Heirlooms, and may at their discretion, without being liable to account for any loss which may arise by reason of the exercise of such discretion, permit any person who, if of full age, would be entitled to have the use and enjoyment of the Heirlooms, or his guardians, to have such use and enjoyment of the Heirlooms, or any of them, during the minority of such person, or may permit the Heirlooms to be kept in any mansion house or other place in which they have hitherto been kept and to be used and enjoyed therewith:

Insurance of heirlooms.

(o) Apart from this direction the trustees can, under T. Act, 1925, s. 19, insure out of income if the tenant for life refuses to do so: Re E. of Egmont [1908], 1 Ch. 821; 77 L. J. Ch. 479. Where chattels had been insured out of income by trustees during the minority of a tenant for life, he was formerly entitled to the policy money: Re Quicke [1908], 1 Ch. 887; 77 L. J. Ch. 523. After 1925 the insurance money will be treated as capital belonging to the trust where it is maintained under any trust or under any power or obligation, statutory or otherwise, or by a tenant for life who is impeachable for waste: T. Act, 1925, s. 20. When obtained in respect of heirlooms it is applicable as capital money arising under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 67 (2).

Application of insurance money.

Protection to the Trustees and application of insurance money.

(6) So long as the Heirlooms have been handed over to the person for the time being entitled to the use and enjoyment thereof, or to such infant or guardians as aforesaid, or to the persons occupying such mansion houses or other places as aforesaid, the Trustees shall not be liable in any way for any theft, loss, damage or depreciation or for any omission or any unauthorised dealing therewith or disposition thereof, nor shall the tenant for life or other person having the use and enjoyment of the Heirlooms be liable for any theft, loss or damage if he complies with the provisions herein contained as to insurance and repairs; but all money received in respect of any such insurance shall, until the same is laid out in acquiring other chattels to be held as Heirlooms or in restoring any Heirlooms, be treated as capital money arising from the [freehold] property hereby settled:

SECTION VIII.

Provisions extending the S. L. Act, 1925.

No. 41.

Term to merge in reversion acquired (Trust instrument).

IF and whenever the immediate reversion in fee simple of any leasehold property for the time being subject to the trusts hereof shall be purchased, or otherwise made subject to the trusts hereof, then and in every such case the term shall be merged by the estate owner of the settled land in the freehold, unless the court otherwise directs.(r)

No. 42. Provisions as to obtaining renewal (s) of leases (Trust instrument).

THE estate owner of the settled land may from time to time, as occasion requires, obtain, on the authorised terms, the renewal of any leasehold interest subject to the trusts hereof which (so far as the law permits) is capable of renewal; And may make, execute and do all such surrenders, assurances and things as may be expedient for effectuating any renewal as aforesaid, but shall not be chargeable for a breach of trust by reason of any omission or neglect to obtain any renewed lease; And the fines and expenses of renewals may be paid out of capital money, subject to the trusts hereof, without any apportionment being required between tenant for life and remainderman,(t) and section seventy-one of the Settled Land Act, 1925, shall be deemed to authorise the raising of such fines, expenses and the costs of raising the same:

No. 43. Introductory clause as to additional or larger powers which need not be inserted in the vesting instrument. (u)

THE following additional or larger powers shall, for the purposes hereof, take effect in accordance with section one hundred and nine of the Settled Land Act, 1925, as if conferred by that Act (that is to say):—

No. 44. Interim investment of capital

CAPITAL money arising under the Settled Land Act, 1925, or the powers herein contained, or money representing surplus rents and profits during a minority, or any other money liable

Abolition of perpetually renewable leases.

(r) This is merely to prevent any question arising on S. L. Act, 1925, s. 73 (1) (xi) and (xii), as to whether the term ought to be kept on foot; for the converse case: ib., s. 73 (1) (xiv).

(s) As to the restrictions on renewal of leases: L. P. Act, 1922, 15th Sch., paras. 5 to 8. There are no perpetually renewable leases or underleases left: ib., 15th Sch., hence T. Act, 1893, s. 19, has not been reproduced.

A tenant for life has power (so far as the law permits) to grant a lease by way of renewal: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 43, or to confirm a lease: ib.; these powers are also exercisable by personal representatives and by trustees holding on trust for sale. He has also power to accept a lease: ib., s. 53.

(t) As to how, under the old law, the expense was ultimately borne as between tenant for life and remainderman: Re Baring [1893], 1 Ch. 61; 62 L. J. Ch. 50; Re Wix [1916], 1 Ch. 279; 85 L. J. Ch. 192; see also Lewin, 12th ed., 440, and article in (1899), 15 L. Q. R., 378.

(u) As a rule additional powers will not be required. The draftsman will select such (if any) of the Forms under this heading as may be required; only the additional powers (S. L. Act, 1925, s. 109 (2)) relating to the settled land (i.e., those affecting a purchaser, mortgagee or lessee) have to be set out in the vesting instrument. A separate list of these is given later. It is no longer necessary to introduce the provisions of the Interpretation Act, 1889: see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 61. In some cases it may be convenient to schedule the powers, in which case there will be a reference to the schedule instead of the "following" additional powers.

The trustees are not bound to follow the directions of the tenant for life if they have evidence that the investment is undesirable: Re Hunt's S. E. [1906], 2 Ch. 11; 75 L. J. Ch. 496; but they are safe if the security is authorised: S. L. The trustees are not bound to invest on mortgage unless satisfied that the direction of the tenant for life was given upon a proper investigation of title, a proper report as to value, and proper advice as to the form of mortgage: Re Hotham [1902], 2 Ch. 575; 71 L. J. Ch. 789, but they are not bound to employ a separate agent in or about the valuation of the security or the investigation of the title thereto, nor are they liable in regard to the form in which the security is taken: ib., s. 98 (1).

No. 49.

As to licensed property.

THE tenant for life may at his discretion either surrender any licence connected with any hotel, publichouse or other licensed property from time to time subject to the limitations hereof which by reason of the duties imposed thereon he may consider it undesirable to retain, or may pay all duties required for renewing or keeping on foot any such licence, notwithstanding that the amount of the duties may be in excess of the enhanced value of the property attributable to the existence of the licence, whether with a view to the ultimate reduction of such duties or not, and may take or defend any proceedings in connexion with any licensed property or the licences or duties connected with the same:(a)

Dealings with mansion house.(b)

(1) NOTWITHSTANDING section sixty-five of the Settled Land Act, 1925, a principal mansion house and the pleasure grounds, park and lands, if any, usually occupied therewith, may not be disposed of without the consent of the Trustees or an order of the court:

PROVIDED that a purchaser, mortgagee, lessee or other person dealing for value with the tenant for life or statutory owner shall not be concerned to see or enquire whether or not any such consent or order has been obtained.

(2) Any part of a mansion or other house may be pulled down with the consent of the Trustees with a view to providing a residence which, having regard to the net annual income of the premises hereby settled, can in the opinion of the Trustees be adequately maintained;

(3) THE costs of converting a mansion or other house into a residence which can, having regard to the circumstances of the case, be occupied by the tenant for life and of providing the requisite fittings and fixtures, may with the consent of the Trustees be discharged out of capital money.

Introductory clause as to larger powers which must be set out in the vesting instrument.

THE following additional or larger powers in relation to the settled land shall for the purposes hereof take effect in accordance with section one hundred and nine of the Settled Land Act, 1925, as if conferred by that Act (that is to say) :—[A provision which affects a purchaser, mortgagee or lessee should be set out in the vesting instrument, but not otherwise.]

Mansion house; public purposes.

A principal mansion house, with or without any pleasure grounds, park and lands to be used therewith, may with the consent of the Trustees be disposed of for public or charitable purposes at less than the best price or rent.

Notices.

(c) As to notices: S. L. Act 1925, s. 101; a person dealing in good faith with the tenant for life is not concerned. At least two trustees or a trust corporation must be acting at the date of the notice, otherwise it will not be valid.

Incorporation by reference, when permissible.

(d) This form can only be used when a new settlement inter vivos is made by a trust instrument and vesting instrument of even date; where the powers are lengthy, it will save setting them out in full in both instruments; for though S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 4 and 5, speak of the powers being stated in both instruments, there can be no objection to an incorporation in a trust instrument by reference to powers set out in full in the vesting deed, provided that the latter is not handed over to a purchaser.

Simplicity of documents relating to the legal estate.

One of the main objects of the new conveyancing practice is to secure that all documents relating to the legal estate in land shall be simple. No trusts (save a trust for sale) should as a rule be declared by a document transferring or creating a legal estate. All complications affecting the equitable title should be kept behind the curtain as is already done by the register kept under the L. R. Act, 1925, in regard to registered titles.

Additional or substituted security or security by way of consolidation.

Power is given by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 70, with the consent of the incumbrancer to vary the rate of interest or other provisions of an incumbrance affecting the settled land. Also to give additional security and consolidate securities. Power is given, ib., s. 69, to shift incumbrances with the consent of the incumbrancer.

Exoneration of charges.

Without prejudice to the rights of an incumbrancer, capital and annual sums may, on a disposition, be charged exclusively on part of the land in exoneration of other land: ib., s. 49 (1) (c).

Statutory owners, powers of.

A power expressed to be given to a tenant for life is, if there is no tenant for life, exercisable by the statutory owners: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 23 and 26.

(f) See S. L. Act, 1925, s. 40 (3). "England" includes Wales.

Grants at perpetual rents, &c.

(g) For the provisions respecting leases, see ib., ss. 41 to 48. The new powers are so wide that it will seldom be necessary to extend them. As to the power to convey in consideration of the reservation of a perpetual rentcharge: ib., s. 39, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. This involves a subsidiary vesting deed: ib., s. 10 (3).

(h) This Form will not be required if the powers conferred by s. 64 (transactions generally) are (see Form No. 58, infra) made exercisable with the consent of the trustees without an order of the court.

Raising money for death duties.

(i) As to raising money for death duties: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 16 (3); capital money may in the first instance be applied in discharging succession duty, but the capital must be recouped to the trust: ib., s. 18, see also s. 16 (5) as to the liability of the beneficiaries. As to raising money to meet a charge for estate duty: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 71; Fin. Act, 1894, s. 9. The charge of estate duty is automatic: Lord Advocate v. Countess of Moray [1905], A. C. 531; 74 L. J. P. C. 122. Interest on the duty cannot be raised by mortgage, and must be borne by the tenant for life apart from express directions: Re Howe [1903], 2 Ch. 69; 72 L. J. Ch. 461.

No. 58. Transactions generally.

(1) WHERE, under the Settled Land Act, 1925, power is given to the tenant for life to enter into or carry out any particular transaction with the consent or approval of the trustees of the settlement, the transaction may be entered into and carried out without any such consent or approval:

(2) WHERE, under that Act, the leave of the court is made requisite to authorise the tenant for life to enter into or carry out any transaction, the transaction may be entered into or carried out with the consent of the trustees of the settlement without any leave of the court, and in particular any transaction which, in the opinion of the trustees, would be for the benefit of the settled land or any part thereof, or the persons interested under the settlement, may be effected under section sixty-four of that Act with the consent of the trustees without any such leave as aforesaid.

(3) THE power conferred by section sixty-six of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (relating to further assurances), may be exercised with the consent of the Trustees without the leave of the court.

No. 59. Powers of attorney.(k)

(1) THE powers to delegate and appoint attorneys conferred by section twenty-five of the Trustee Act, 1925 (as amended), on a tenant for life, a statutory owner, and on each Trustee may be exercised free from the obligations and restrictions imposed by sub-sections (2) to (5) inclusive of the said section, and a power of attorney may be made irrevocable for any period not exceeding one year:

(2) THE tenant for life may, by writing, authorise an agent to sign or execute tenancy agreements in his name creating terms or interests not exceeding three years:

(3) THE donor exercising the said powers in good faith shall not be liable for the acts or defaults of the donee.

Powers of attorney relating to land must be filed; a purchaser is entitled either to the original or a copy: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 125 (2), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. — Purchaser's rights.

The foregoing additional or larger powers are capable of being extended under [a joint] an overriding power of appointment vested in —— (the father) [and —— (the son)] [or the settlor or other donee] by the recited Settlement [Will] during his life [their joint lives].(l)

Section IX.

Miscellaneous Provisions in Trust Instruments, &c.(m)

No. 61.

Statutory owners may present to livings during minorities.

During the minority of any person who, under the limitations hereinbefore contained, is or would if of full age be entitled for the time being to the possession or to the receipt of the rents and profits of the premises hereby settled as tenant for life or as tenant in tail [male or in tail] by purchase, the statutory owners may present a fit person to any vacant ecclesiastical benefice, either absolutely or subject to such lawful terms (n)

Matters not to be referred to in vesting instrument.

(l) Where the powers are capable of being enlarged it is expedient to refer to this fact.

Powers to create family charges should not be referred to in vesting instruments; they are part of the limitations of the settlement and effect must be given thereto under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 16 or s. 71, unless the charge is paid off out of existing capital money.

Powers relating to the legal estate.

It is useless to attempt to give powers to deal with the legal estate in the settled land to any person except the tenant for life or statutory owner, for such powers are immediately made exercisable by him: ib., s. 108 (2), though he will be bound to give effect to equitable interests and powers in accordance with ib., s. 16. The powers of "revocation and appointment" referred to in s. 108 (2) take effect as equitable powers: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1 (7).

Accumulations, destination of.

(m) In view of T. Act, 1925, s. 31 (2) (ii), semble it is unnecessary to insert any express provision as to the destination of accumulations made during the minority of an unmarried person. A person having a vested life interest who attains twenty-one or marries acquires the accumulations; if on attaining twenty-one or on marriage a person becomes entitled to the capital either in fee simple (absolute or determinable) or absolutely or for an entailed interest he also acquires the accumulations; in other cases they are added to the capital or go as capital money, save that in the case of a vested annuity the accumulations become part of the estate of the annuitant. An infant who marries can give a receipt for accumulations and future income: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 21.

Receipt for accumulations.

Direction to hold as capital money.

A direction to hold accumulations as capital money is not within the prohibition to accumulate for the purchase of land only beyond minorities: ib., s. 166 (2), confirming Re Danson (1895), W. N. 102.

Advowsons.

(n) See Benefices Act, 1898. An infant of any age could, independently of statute, present to a living: 11 Hals. L. of Eng., 573, After 1925 advowsons (which are on the same footing as land) will be vested during a minority in the statutory owners: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 26. As to the powers of S. L. Act trustees during a minority: ib., s. 102. As to the restrictions on the power of an owner of an advowson to sell or mortgage it, see the Benefices Act, 1898 (Amendment) Measure, 1923. This Form (No. 61) did not make the trustees patrons for the purpose of giving consent on a sale of glebe land. The consent had to be given by the guardian of the infant:

Glebe land.

(if any) as to resignation as the statutory owners deem proper [and generally act as patrons of a living]:

PROVIDED that if the land, subject to the trusts hereof, becomes subject to a trust for sale, the trustees for sale shall have and may exercise the said power.

No. 62.

Lands acquired to be made subject to compound settlement.(o)

(1) DURING the subsistence of the recited Settlement, all land acquired with capital money shall, by a subsidiary Vesting Deed, be conveyed to the tenant for life or statutory owners or personal representatives in whom the land hereby settled may be vested to be held (by reference to the principal vesting instrument) in effect Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions which, under the recited Settlement and Disentailing Assurance and this Deed, or by reason of the exercise of any power of charging contained in the recited Settlement (and not released) or this Deed, shall for the time being be subsisting or capable of taking effect with respect to land hereby settled:

Cesser of prior settlement.

(2) IF and when all the limitations, charges and powers of charging subsisting under the recited Settlement shall have determined or been discharged, the trustees for the time being hereof, for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925 (if not the same persons as the former trustees of the compound Settlement), shall be declared to be the trustees for those purposes of the principal vesting instrument.(p)

No. 63.

Power for professional trustee to charge.(q)

ANY trustee (including a term trustee) being a solicitor or other person engaged in any profession or business shall be entitled to be paid all usual professional or proper charges for business

Leigh v. L. [1902], 1 Ch. 400; 71 L. J. Ch. 195. But after 1925 the legal estate in the advowson will be vested in the statutory owners.

(o) This Form is only used in a resettlement when, by reason of the existence of family charges under the old settlement, the latter cannot be determined. For the corresponding provision as to capital money, see Form No. 38, p. 285.

When a settlement ceases.

A settlement determines when the limitations and powers cease and there is no minority, or when the land becomes subject to a trust for sale: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 3, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Changes of ownership.

(p) If, as is desirable, the same persons act as trustees of both settlements, then nothing need be done when the old settlement is spent, save that if it determines by reason of the death of a tenant for life then his special personal representatives will, if the land remains settled land, by a vesting assent, transfer the land to the next tenant for life after the charges immediately raisable are cleared. Again, if a tenant for life by forfeiture, &c., ceases to be a tenant for life then he must by a vesting instrument convey to the next tenant for life: ib., s. 7.

Deed of discharge.

When a settlement (including a compound settlement) wholly ceases then a deed of discharge is required: ib., s. 17; unless the land is vested in personal representatives.

(q) See notes to the similar Form in Settlements (Personal), p. 165, also transacted, time expended and acts done by him or any partner of his in connexion with the trusts hereof, and of any vesting instrument from time to time forming part of the Settlement, including acts which a trustee not being in any profession or business could have done personally.

No. 64.

Power to value and apportion.(qq)

In the execution of any of the trusts or powers hereof the Trustees may (without prejudice to any jurisdiction of the court) decide what money represents income and what represents capital, and may on the winding up of all or any of the trusts allot or apportion any money or investments [heirlooms or other chattels] the trusts whereof are hereby declared to or between the persons entitled thereto at the mesne market price of the day, or at a valuation, in such manner as the Trustees shall deem just and reasonable according to the respective rights and interests of the persons interested, and notwithstanding that funds held on different trusts have been blended, and for the purposes aforesaid may ascertain and fix the value of the respective parts of the said investments [and chattels], and every such decision, allotment, apportionment and valuation shall be as binding upon all persons then or thereafter to be interested in the premises as if the same had been duly made by a court of competent jurisdiction.

No. 65.

Protection of tenant for life and Trustees who act on expert advice.

WHERE a tenant for life, statutory owner, or a trustee, in the purported exercise of the trusts and powers hereby or by any statute conferred, acts on the advice of any counsel, solicitor, engineer, surveyor, land agent, actuary, cashier, accountant or other expert [of not less than —— years standing in his profession] the tenant for life, statutory owner or trustee (as the case may be) shall not be responsible for any loss which may

T. Act, 1925, s. 23, as to powers to employ agents; and as to the power to make valuations: ib., s. 22 (3).

Undivided shares; trust for sale. If the land becomes vested in possession in undivided shares a trust for sale is interposed: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36. If the land is not already vested in the former S. L. Act trustees (e.g., as the special personal representatives of a former tenant for life) they can require the estate owner to convey it to them or assent to its vesting in them on trust for sale.

Overreaching powers. The S. L. Act trustees so holding on trust for sale have the over-reaching powers of a tenant for life: ib., s. 36 (2); see also L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (3), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Additional powers. These trustees and their successors in office also have any additional powers which were formerly conferred on the tenant for life by the former settlement: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (1), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

No. 66.

General wide indemnity to tenant for life and trustees.(r)

In the professed execution of the trusts and powers hereof, or of any statutory power, neither a tenant for life, statutory owner, nor a trustee, shall be liable for any loss to any property from time to time subject to the limitations or trusts hereof arising by reason of any improper investment made in good faith, or for the negligence or fraud of any agent employed by any of them, although the employment of such agent was not strictly necessary or expedient or by reason of any mistake or omission made in good faith by a tenant for life, statutory owner or by a trustee, or by reason of any other matter or thing except wilful and individual fraud or wrong doing on the part of the tenant for life, statutory owner or trustee who is sought to be made liable.

No. 68.

Appointment of Trustees for purposes of the S. L. Act, 1925.(t)

But there must be not less than two trustees to give receipts unless the trustee is a trust corporation. S. L. Act, 1925, s. 94 (1); T. Act, 1925, s. 14. The same rule applies as to notices: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 101. After 1925 the number of trustees cannot be increased to exceed four: T. Act, 1925, s. 34. For the meaning of "trust corporation": L. P. Act, 1925, s. 205 (1) (xxviii); L. P. Minorities. The mere appointment of S. L. Act trustees is sufficient to give them, during a minority, the powers conferred by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 102, see that section. The other powers of a tenant for life are exercisable by the S. L. Act trustees during a minority: ib., s. 26.

Powers during minorities. (u) This direction did not under the old law create any antecedent legal estate in the trustees but only a power of entry: Re Earl Stamford and Warrington (No. 1) [1912], 1 Ch. 343; 81 L. J. Ch. 302; it could not create a legal estate after 1925. For the powers referred to, see S. L. Act, 1925, s. 102.

Who should be appointed S. L. Act trustees. (v) It is obviously expedient in the case of a resettlement to appoint the S. L. Act trustees (if any) of the previous settlement to act as S. L. Act trustees of the new settlement; this avoids the need for sub-clause (2). Whether or not so appointed, the S. L. Act trustees of the previous settlement will be the trustees of the compound settlement so long as the previous settlement remains subsisting: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31. As to the duration of the previous settlement: ib., s. 3, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. It is essential that if there is a compound settlement the S. L. Act trustees thereof should act: ib., s. 1. The trustees of the prior instrument are the S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement consisting of that and the subsequent instruments, unless the court has appointed trustees of the compound settlement: ib., s. 31. But if there are no S. L. Act trustees of the prior instrument, then the trustees of the instrument, under which there is a tenant for life or statutory owner, will be the trustees of the compound settlement till new trustees are appointed of the prior instrument or of the compound settlement: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31. As to who are S. L. Act trustees: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30.

Absence of trustees of the prior instrument.

Continuance in office. Once persons have become S. L. Act trustees of an instrument, they and their successors in office remain trustees thereof so long as the settlement subsists: ib., s. 33; thus, although a power of sale may have ceased, whether before 1926 or after 1925 (see the reference to the Acts of 1882 to 1890), if it constituted S. L. Act trustees, they and their successors will remain S. L. Act trustees. A settlement subsists so long as a family charge subsists or a power of charging can be exercised, if it is not determined by a trust for sale: ib., s. 3 (as amended). The Act applies to settlements made before or after the 1st January, 1926: ib., s. 119 (1) (a).

Incorporeal property.

As to the remedies for recovering a rentcharge (e.g., a jointure) issuing out of another rentcharge: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 122.

Settlement by reference to descriptions in Vesting instruments.

The schedules relating to the land and incorporeal property will form part of the vesting instrument of even date and will not be repeated in the trust instrument. It will be sufficient in the trust instrument to refer to the land and rights described in the vesting instrument.

Production to steward.

(z) If the manorial incidents have been extinguished, then the land should be placed with the other freeholds in the freehold schedule. The vesting instrument (as it relates to the legal estate) will be the document to be produced to and endorsed by the steward within six months under L. P. Act, 1922, s. 129.

Extinguishment of manorial incidents.

Where the settlement involves an immediate change of ownership it will save fines and costs if a compensation agreement is entered into before the settlement is made.

Reference should be made after each set of parcels to the last admission, thus:—

"to which property —— was admitted on the —— day of ——."

Date of Lease.	Parties to Lease.	Property demised.	Term.	Yearly Rent [or minimum Rent].

2. £— Secured, &c.

As to settlement of mining leases or mines worked by tenant for life.

(a) If different classes of leaseholds are settled, e.g., building leases and mining leases, the schedule should be divided into parts. If mines are to be worked by statutory owners during a minority with capital money, special powers and indemnities must be given.

Abolition of leases for lives and of perpetually renewable leases.

Leases for lives have been converted into terms of 90 years terminable by notice on either side after the dropping of the life: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 149 (6).

Perpetually renewable leases have been converted into terms of 2,000 years: L. P. Act, 1922, 15th Sch., as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1924.

Perpetually renewable copyholds have been enfranchised, the owner of the land takes a fee simple: L. P. Act, 1922, s. 135; but the owner of a perpetually renewable underlease derived out of a renewable copyhold interest takes a 2,000 years term.

Copyholds for life or for years without a right of perpetual renewal have been converted into leaseholds for years: L. P. Act, 1922, s. 133; L. P. Act, 1925, s. 149.

Mining leases as incumbrances.

(b) If there are any mining leases subject to which any part of the property is to be settled they may be placed in another part of the incumbrance schedule in the vesting deed. The same remark applies to building leases.

Family charges are not incumbrances for purposes of Vesting instruments.

Family charges are capable of being over-reached, as in every case the trustees of any compound settlement must act; accordingly they must not be mentioned as incumbrances in any vesting instrument.

Legal estate in settled land.

The legal estate (e.g., the fee simple or head term) in settled land will be vested in the tenant for life or statutory owner; legal mortgagees will either have a legal charge or a long term derived out of the fee simple or a sub-term derived out of the head term which is settled.

Incumbrances affecting beneficial interests.

Mortgages affecting life interests and remainders must not be referred to in vesting instruments, but notice thereof must be given to the S. L. Act trustees: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 137.

Where the title to the settled land is registered, the tenant for life or statutory owner or personal representatives must be registered as proprietors: L. R. Act, 1925, s. 86. The register must be rectified if the land stands in the names of persons having a mere power of appointment, not being the Act, 1925, s. 106. As to the restriction to be entered in the case of registered land: L. R. R., 1925, Sch., Form 9.

Land held on trust for sale.

When the land becomes subject to a trust for sale the trustees for sale must then be registered as proprietors: L. R. Act, 1925, s. 94; for the restriction then applicable: L. R. R., 1925, Sch., Form 10.

Additional powers.

(c) Powers relating to the application of capital money and powers to create family charges should not be mentioned in vesting instruments. But if the powers can be enlarged by the exercise of a general power of appointment this should be mentioned.

Powers under compound settlements.

A compound settlement consists of all the instruments creating it, it is not a separate entity; it is immaterial which of the documents confer the powers, all of the additional powers are exercisable by the tenant for life: Re Cowley S. E. (1926), W. N. 202.

Overreachable family charges.

(d) Though the family charges created before the date of a resettlement and not thereby released will have priority to the new trusts, this does not prevent them from being over-reached; but it may be convenient to place them in a schedule to the trust instrument for purposes of reference.

Need for vesting deed.

Death of tenant for life before deed executed.

(c) As to who are tenants for life or statutory owners: ib., ss. 19 and 20; also L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., adding para. 4 to 1st Sch., Pt. IV, of the L. P. Act, 1925. So long as the land remains settled land, the tenant for life or statutory owner is unable to make a title to the legal estate till a vesting deed is executed: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 13. If the tenant for life dies before a vesting deed has been executed the legal estate will vest in his special personal representatives, and they can, when the family charges, &c., required to be paid off have been cleared, convey the land by a principal vesting deed to the next tenant for life, pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 2, for in this case para. 1 of this Sch. does not apply, save that the conveyance should be effected by deed (not by an assent) where a legal term remains to be converted into an equitable term under para. 1 (6) as amended. An absolute owner, subject to a family charge, can make a title to a legal estate subject thereto: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1, but a vesting deed should be made in his favour to authorise him to overreach it on all occasions save where he is mortgaging the land to raise money for his private purposes. Land ceases to be settled land when it becomes subject to a trust for sale: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 3.

"Binding trust for sale."

All immediate trusts for sale are now "binding" (that is capable of overreaching equitable interests created before the trust for sale) within Re Leigh's S. E., 70 Sol. J. 758, for under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended, the subsequent approval of the trustees, or the appointment of a trust corporation is all that can be required. This approval is not required where the land becomes vested in the former S. L. Act trustees on trust for sale.

IV, of the L. P. Act, 1925) as joint tenants. For instance, if a father surrenders his life interest in part of the settled land to his son, the next tenant for life, so as to extinguish the first life interest (S. L. Act, 1925, s. 105) a separate vesting deed must be made in favour of the son.

Vesting deeds relating to part of the settled land.

N. 227. If a specific description is given, an exception of the property disposed of will not usually be required.

4. THE said Settlement [Resettlement] [Will] [Compound Settlement] confers the additional or larger powers mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto in relation to the settled land, and by virtue of section one hundred and eight of the Settled Land Act, 1925, these powers operate and are exercisable as if conferred by that Act on a tenant for life [or, No additional or larger powers operating in extension of those conferred by the Settled Land Act, 1925, are given by the said Settlement [Resettlement] [Will] [Compound Settlement] in relation to the settled land].

Trustees of compound settlements.

(f) If there is a compound settlement, the S. L. Act trustees thereof must be named: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1) proviso. There will seldom be a case where there are no S. L. Act trustees capable of acting: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 30 to 33. The amendment of s. 31 in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., authorising the S. L. Act trustees of the instrument under which there is a tenant for life to act for the purposes of a compound settlement, if there are no trustees of the prior instruments, is far-reaching.

Additional powers.

(g) Additional powers given by any of the instruments forming part of the compound settlement relating to the settled land should be referred to: Re Cowley S. E. [1926], W. N. 202. If, after the vesting instrument has been executed, a resettlement is made which confers additional powers, but does not involve an immediate change in the ownership of the settled land, a memorandum of the additional powers should be endorsed on the vesting instrument, pending the execution of a supplemental vesting deed to comply with S. L. Act, 1925, s. 18 (1) (a).

Power to appoint new trustees.(h)

6. THE power of appointing new trustees of the said Settlement [Resettlement] [Will] [Compound Settlement [and Resettlement] mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto] is vested in the Tenant for Life during his life [or, No express power of appointing or nominating new trustees is conferred, and accordingly the statutory power is applicable for the purpose of appointing new or additional trustees].

OPINION.

(2) An Appointment and Charge of Jointure and Portions of (date):

(3) A Disentailing Assurance (freeholds and capital money) of (date):

(h) The express power to appoint trustees should not be set out in full. It is only requisite to show by whom trustees are to be appointed during the subsistence of the vesting deed; the deed will cease to be actively operative on the death of the tenant for life, for the land then vests in his special personal representative. The parcels therein may be referred to in subsequent vesting instruments: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 5 (2).

Opinion in place of certificate of title.

(i) The object of this is to enable a vesting instrument to be made a root of title in those cases where, under the proviso to s. 110 (2), a purchaser would otherwise be concerned to see that (1) the land was comprised in the settlement, (2) the person in whom it is expressed to be vested was the tenant for life or statutory owner, and (3) the persons stated to be the S. L. Act trustees were the properly constituted trustees of the settlement. The General Council of the Bar take exception to the opinion being given in the form of a certificate of title. A purchaser should be given an opportunity of inspecting the opinion before a sale. To avoid questions arising as to identity, the opinion should in most cases be supplemented by a statutory declaration as to identity where the vesting instrument contains a specific description. Counsel cannot do more than inspect the parcels and plans as if he were advising a purchaser.

(2) BY a Deed (hereinafter called the Vesting Deed), bearing even date herewith, and made between the same parties and in the same order, certain freehold properties, enfranchised lands and leasehold properties, situated or arising in the Counties of —— and ——, were declared to be vested in the Husband Upon the trusts declared concerning the same by a Trust Deed of even date, therein referred to (meaning this Deed): Vesting deed.

Still they are not so important as before 1926, for family charges (till money is raised by way of legal mortgage for satisfying them) can be over-reached, as in all cases the trustees of the compound settlement will be employed.

PRELIMINARY NOTE TO RESETTLEMENTS.

Where vesting deed is not required.

Though S. L. Act, 1925, s. 4 (1), provides that a Settlement of a "legal estate," inter vivos, is to be effected by a vesting instrument and trust instrument, and if effected in any other way is not "to transfer or create a legal estate," this does not apply to a Resettlement, where—

(a) there is already a subsisting vesting instrument, and
(b) the existing estate owner is to retain the first life interest.

Estate owner bound to hold on the proper trusts.

The penalty (loss of the legal estate) is not applicable, for the proper estate owner already has it vested in him upon the trusts upon which the same ought "from time to time" to be held, see S. L. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Forms Nos. 1 and 2; even if the original vesting instrument is defective in this respect the estate owner would, under ib., s. 16, be bound to give effect to the equitable interests and powers "of which he has notice according to their respective priorities."

Not a disposition of the legal estate.

In such circumstances a resettlement is not a disposition of a legal estate, but operates to vary the equitable interests and powers, by way of family arrangement, behind the existing curtain. If trustees are the registered holders of stock, no transfer has to be executed by them when the equitable

---

(t) This clause can only be used where the additional powers are set out in full in the Vesting Deed of even date. If only a few additional powers are given or it is contemplated that the Vesting Deed may have to be handed over to a purchaser, then Form No. 52, p. 295, should be used in place of Form No. 51A, and the additional powers should also be set out in full in the trust instrument. In most cases Form No. 58, p. 297, should be used.

interests in the investments are varied by a derivative settlement or sub-settlement. Again, if the title to the land is registered and the tenant for life is the registered proprietor subject to the prescribed restrictions, no transfer has to be executed by him when the land is re-settled.

Supplemental vesting deed.

An excuse may be made for the execution of a supplemental vesting deed, see Prec. XX, infra, where additional powers have been conferred since the date of the last principal vesting instrument, for bringing the story up to date, but the general rule is that, unless the life estate is surrendered, or additional land is brought into settlement, a new vesting instrument will not be required on a re-settlement inter vivos.

Vesting assent after death.

On the death of the estate owner, in whom the settled land is vested, a vesting assent will be made by his special representatives, if the land remains settled land; in this assent the facts material to the title to the legal estate will be mentioned.

No. IV.

TRUST INSTRUMENT (Re-settlement on Marriage) of LAND by an ABSOLUTE OWNER where the land is subject to a JOINTURE RENTCHARGE (which is not released) limited by a PRIOR SETTLEMENT and a SUBSTITUTED RENTCHARGE is limited.(u) (Equitable Interests.)

Parties.

Parties (as in last Precedent, No. IIID. The Vesting Deed will be in the form of Prec. No. I, supra, for the Settlor would have been within S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20, on 1*st January,* 1926. The fact that the jointure is subsisting must not be mentioned in the Vesting Deed, for it is over-reachable. Care must be taken that the S. L. Act Trustees of the Compound Settlement are appointed as the trustees in the Trust Instrument. If there are no such trustees, then the S. L. Act Trustees of the new Settlement will become the trustees of the Compound Settlement till (if at all) other trustees are appointed in their place: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Schedule amending S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31; see also ss. 30, 32 and 33 of that Act).

Settlement by owner in fee simple subject to a jointure rentcharge.

(u) It is assumed here that in the lifetime of the settlor's father (the tenant for life under the old settlement) the estate tail of the settlor was barred, and that he is entitled in fee simple subject to a jointure rentcharge limited under the old settlement. The jointress may be abroad and cannot release her rentcharge and accept a new one in its place, but a new one is limited to her so that she can subsequently release the old one.

Variation if the jointress releases her jointure, before a vesting deed is executed

An absolute owner subject to a family charge can make a title subject thereto without a vesting deed being made under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 13, see L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1. If no such vesting deed has been made and the jointress is willing to release her jointure, this release should be effected by a separate deed as it affects an equitable interest, then no vesting deed will be required under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 13, and the transaction will be carried out in the forms given in Precs. IIIA and IIID, save that in Prec. IIID the release of even date will be recited and a substituted rentcharge will be limited to the jointress.

Recitals relating to the Property Settled and other Matters.

B. B.) in fee simple or absolutely subject to a yearly jointure rentcharge of £—— limited to the said Jane B. (Settlor's mother) (hereinafter called the Jointress) during her life in the event (which happened) of her surviving her husband, the said X. B., but otherwise free from incumbrances: And at the date aforesaid the Trustees were the trustees of the Settlement of —— for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925:(v)

Vesting deed pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, s. 13, and 2nd Sch.

(3) BY a Deed (hereinafter called the Vesting Deed) dated, &c., and made between the Trustees of the one part and the Husband of the other part, the Trustees declared that the properties therein described were vested in the Husband as to freehold properties in fee simple and as to leasehold properties for the residue of the terms of years for which the same were held, but as to enfranchised lands, subject to the manorial incidents and rights of the lords affecting the same, and as to all the premises on the trusts which under the Settlement of —— or otherwise the same ought to be held from time to time, and that the Trustees were the trustees of the Settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925, and that the statutory power to appoint new trustees was applicable:

Continuance in office.

(v) This would be so notwithstanding the disentailing assurance, and the death of the father, by virtue of S. L. Act, 1925, s. 33, see also s. 3. It is assumed that the father died before 1926, otherwise the settled land would have vested in his special personal representatives, and they would have executed a vesting assent in favour of the son if the jointure were still on foot.

Jointress put to election.

Where the new rentcharge exceeds the old one the jointress should be put to her election, and the following proviso will be substituted for that in the text:—

"Provided that if the Jointress shall accept the yearly rentcharge hereby limited to her in substitution for the said rentcharge limited to her by the Settlement of ——, then she shall, within three months from the execution hereof or such longer period as the Trustees may allow, execute at the cost of the trust premises such release of the said rentcharge limited to her by the Settlement of ——, as the Trustees may reasonably require."

TRUST INSTRUMENT (Re-settlement) by FATHER and SON (NOT on MARRIAGE,(g) the SON taking the FIRST LIFE interest in part) of LAND and CAPITAL MONEY, where a JOINTRESS releases her JOINTURE RENTCHARGE and TERM TRUSTEES release a PORTIONS TERM and a NEW JOINTURE and PORTIONS TERM are limited.(h) (Equitable Interests.)

Parties.

THIS TRUST INSTRUMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Father), of the first part, C. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Son), of the 2nd part, Jane B., the wife of the said A. B. (hereinafter called the Jointress), of the third part, M., of, &c., and N., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Portion Trustees) (Trustees of Portions Term under old Settlement), of the 4th part, and S. T., of, &c., and W. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees (i)), of the 5th part, and divided for the purpose of convenient reference into a Preliminary and five other Parts: WHEREAS:—

PRELIMINARY PART.

Recitals relating to the Property Settled and other Matters.

Settlement.

(1) Under a Settlement (hereinafter called the Settlement of ——) dated, &c., and made, &c. (whereof the Trustees are the present Trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925), and by reason of the birth of the Son on the —— (date)

Stamp.

(g) The stamp imposed by Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74, will be payable: this may involve a valuation of the land; hence, if practicable, the execution of the re-settlement should be postponed as regards the land, if of any considerable value, till the son intends to marry. In the meantime the capital money and investments can be re-settled (see Prec. VIII, p. 340, infra), a draft re-settlement of the land (Prec. IX, p. 346, infra), can be prepared and agreed, and an Agreement (Prec. X, p. 350, infra) entered into.

(h) In this case the jointress and term trustees are, it is assumed, able to get rid of the old family charges, which are released and relimited, and the old settlement becomes obsolete, except possibly as to claims for duties which may have attached but which can be provided for by the new settlement. In such a case a new vesting deed can, if desired, be executed by the father in regard to the land retained by him; there must be a new vesting deed in regard to the land taken by the son, see next precedent. Compare Prec. VII, where the old family charges cannot be cleared off.

Continuation of the same trustees.

(i) If practicable, the S. L. Act trustees of the new settlement should be the same as those of the old to avoid the necessity of transferring the investments and altering the names of the persons named in the usual restriction if the land is registered. This may save some stamp duty as regards the personal estate.

Title to freeholds.

(being the eldest son of the Father) [and by virtue of divers dispositions to the uses or upon the trusts of the Settlement of ——], the freehold properties described in the Vesting Deed first hereinafter mentioned were, immediately before the commencement of the Settled Land Act, 1925, limited TO THE USE of the Father during his life with remainder TO THE USE that the Jointress, if she survived him, should receive a yearly rentcharge of £—— during the residue of her life [without power of anticipation during any coverture], and subject thereto, TO THE USE of the Portion Trustees for a term of 1,000 years without impeachment of waste, on trusts for raising certain portions for the younger children of the Father and their issue, and subject thereto, TO THE USE of the Son in tail male with divers remainders over :

Title to enfranchised lands.

(2) Under the Settlement of ——, and in the events aforesaid, the enfranchised lands described in the said Vesting Deed (formerly copyholds held of divers manors) were, at the date aforesaid, vested in the Trustees for a customary estate of inheritance UPON TRUSTS corresponding to the uses affecting the said freehold properties :

Title to leaseholds.

(3) Under the Settlement of ——, and in the events aforesaid, the leasehold properties (including certain perpetually renewable leaseholds now converted into leaseholds for long terms) described in the said Vesting Deed were, at the date aforesaid, vested in the Trustees UPON TRUSTS corresponding as nearly as might be To the uses affecting the said freehold properties :

Power to [release jointure and] surrender portions term.

(4) The Settlement of —— contained an express power [for the Jointress notwithstanding the said restraint on anticipation, to release the said jointure rentcharge and also] for the Portion Trustees to surrender the said term of 1,000 years in manner and on the terms therein mentioned :

[Vesting Deed pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, s. 13.]

[(5) Recite Vesting Deed (hereinafter called the First Vesting Deed) in favour of the Father, as in Prec. IV, p. 322 :]

Title to capital money.

(6) Under the Settlement of ——, and in the events aforesaid, the investments and capital money mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, standing in the names or under the control of the Trustees, were, at the date of the Disentailing Assurance hereinafter recited, held UPON TRUST for investment in land to be settled on the limitations affecting the said freehold properties :

Disentailing assurance conferring

(7) By a Deed (hereinafter called the Disentailing Assurance) dated, &c., and made between the Son of the 1st part, the Father of the 2nd part, and the Trustees of the 3rd part, the equitable interests of the Father and the Son in the lands, investments, capital money, properties and rights then by any means subject to the Settlement of ——, were conveyed and assigned to the Trustees (subject to the said jointure rentcharge, and the portions term of 1,000 years, but discharged from all entailed interests and otherwise as therein mentioned) Upon such trusts and for such purposes generally as the Father and Son should by any deed jointly appoint, and subject to any such appointment Upon the trusts therein mentioned:

joint power of appointment.

(8) Agreement for Settlement—Form No. 3, p. 246:

Agreement for release of old jointure and portions term.

(9) The Jointress and the Portion Trustees, being respectively satisfied with the yearly rentcharge and term hereinafter intended to be limited by way of substitution for the said rentcharge and term created by the Settlement of ——, have agreed to join herein for the purpose of releasing or surrendering the last-mentioned family charges:

Agreement to surrender life interest in part.

(10) The Father (as part of the terms of the intended Re-settlement (j)) has agreed to surrender his life interest in the freehold properties mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, so as wholly to extinguish his life interest in those properties within the meaning of section one hundred and five of the Settled Land Act, 1925 (as amended), in manner hereinafter appearing, and to give legal effect to such surrender by means of the Vesting Deed next hereinafter mentioned:

Vesting deed in favour of the son.(k)

(11) By a Deed (hereinafter called the Second Vesting Deed), bearing even date with, but intended to be executed immediately after this Re-settlement, and made between the Father of the 1st part, the Son of the 2nd part, and the Trustees of the 3rd part, pursuant to section seven of the Settled Land Act, 1925, the Father conveyed the freehold properties therein described (being the properties mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto), to the Son in fee simple, to be held by him Upon the trusts declared concerning the same by a trust instrument (meaning this Re-settlement), bearing even date with, but executed before the second Vesting Deed, or upon such other trusts as the same ought to be

---

(j) It saves estate duty if the father surrenders his life interest in part of the property and lives for three years, instead of limiting a rentcharge to the son during the joint lives.

Estate duty.

(k) See next Precedent. If all the old family charges are released this re-settlement becomes a new settlement in regard to the land taken by the son. If a new vesting deed is also to be executed by the father this should be recited and referred to as the "Third Vesting Deed."

It may also save stamp duty under Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74, except in so far as the son takes an immediate life interest.

No. VII.

TRUST INSTRUMENT (Re-settlement) by FATHER and SON (NOT on MARRIAGE) of LAND and CAPITAL MONEY, subject to a JOINTURE RENTCHARGE and PORTIONS TERM, which are not released.(w) (Equitable Interests.)

Parties.

THIS TRUST INSTRUMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Father), of the 1st part, C. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Son), of the 2nd part, and M., of, &c., and N., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees (x)), of the 3rd part, and divided for the purpose of convenient reference into a Preliminary and five other Parts: WHEREAS:—

PRELIMINARY PART.

Recitals relating to the Property Settled.

(1) to (3) (Recitals of Settlement, title to freeholds, enfranchised lands and leaseholds as in recitals (1) to (3) in Prec. VIA, save that "the Jointress" will be defined when reciting the Settlement. It is assumed that the portions term is vested in "the Trustees." It will have been converted into an equitable term by virtue of the vesting deed.)

(4) (Recite vesting deed in favour of the Father "hereinafter called the Vesting Deed," as in Prec. IV, p. 321.)

(5) and (6) (Recite title to capital money (y) and Disentailing Assurance as in recitals (6) and (7) in Prec. VIA, p. 330.)

(7) Agreement for Settlement—Form No. 3, p. 246.

Commencement of operative part—Form No. 4, p. 247.

Exercise of powers; restoration of life interest.

(w) This is the converse case to that in Prec. VIA, see notes thereto as to the stamps. Here the new settlement is made subject to the family charges under the old settlement, but whether or not the original life interest of the father is kept on foot (S. L. Act, 1925, s. 22), he and his successors in title will be able to over-ride them. Semble, it is safer to restore the life interest in view of declaration as to the exercise of powers in ib., s. 22 (2), though he would in any case be able to exercise the additional powers: Re Cowley S. E. (1926), W. N. 202. An instance of a case in which this Precedent is required is where a jointress under the old settlement is restrained from anticipation and has no power to release her rentcharge, cf. Form No. 31, p. 280. As the old settlement must remain, there is no object in surrendering the old portions term. The jointure and portions are relimited here by way of substitution, so as to enable the old ones to be released when the restraint comes off, i.e., on the death of the husband of the jointress, and thus reduce the number of the documents which constitute the settlement.

(x) The trustees of the re-settlement must be the same persons as the trustees of the old settlement.

(y) In this case the old settlement remains on foot; hence the capital money must remain as capital money arising under it.

First Part.

Appointment and Settlement of Land.

Appointment of land subject to old jointure and portions term.

Life estates without impeachment for waste.

1. Appointment of land referring to the "Vesting Deed"—Form No. 6, p. 248, saying "shall (subject to the said yearly jointure rentcharge of £——, limited by the Settlement of —— to the Jointress, if she survives the Father, and to the trusts of the said term of 1,000 years thereby also limited for securing the said portions) henceforth remain and be held Upon the trusts, &c. (continue Form No. 7, p. 249).

Joint power of appointment to father and son subject to the substituted jointure and portions term.

(1) Upon such trusts as father and son shall jointly appoint (z)—Form No. 19, p. 260, adding the following proviso (see note to same Form) :—

"Provided that the foregoing power shall not be capable of being exercised so as to prejudice either the yearly rentcharge of £——, hereinafter limited to the Jointress by way of substitution, so far as may be, for the like rentcharge limited in her favour by the Settlement of —— or the term of 1,000 years hereinafter limited for raising portions for the younger children of the Father and the Jointress in substitution, so far as may be, for the like term limited by the Settlement of ——, without the respective consents of the Jointress and of the trustees or trustee for the time being of the term hereby limited, and in default of and subject to any such appointment":

Substituted jointure rentcharge.(a)

(2) Substituted jointure rentcharge to the Jointress—Form No. 13, p. 254, restraining her from anticipation during coverture, and with the words in square brackets, and Form No. 13A, p. 254.

Substituted portions term.(a)

(3) Substituted Portions Term—Form No. 14, p. 255, with words in square brackets.

Rentcharge to son.

(4) Rentcharge to Son during joint lives of himself and Father—Form No. 9, p. 251.

Restoration of life interest to father.

(5) Re-limitation of Father's life interest under the old Settlement—Form No. 12, p. 252 (continue limitations to Son for life, &c., as in Prec. VIA).

Second Part.

Other limitations, trusts of term, powers of charging, &c., as in Prec. VIA.

(Trusts of Substituted Portions Term, Form No. 22, p. 264, powers of charging and powers to release rentcharges and surrender terms, as in Second Part of Prec. VIA, p. 334).

(z) This power enables the father and son to vary the settlement, but the proviso makes any such re-settlement take effect subject to the substituted jointure and portions term. This power may also save stamp duty.

(a) These limitations do not take the place of the old family charges. The new charges should correspond with or give better terms than the old ones.

THIRD PART.

Appointment and Settlement of Capital Money.

Appointment and settlement of capital money.

12. Appointment of investments and capital money in —— Schedule—Form No. 34, p. 282, omitting words in first set of square brackets, but using those in the second set and saying :—TO BE HELD by the Trustees, subject to the jointure rentcharge of £——, limited in favour of the Jointress by the Settlement of —— and to the trusts of the original Portions Term of 1,000 years thereby limited, and so subject Upon, &c. (add Form No. 36, p. 283).

13. Capital money to be paid to Trustees of Re-settlement on termination of old settlement—Form No. 38, p. 285.

Continue as in Prec. VIA, to the end, but add in Part V provision as to land acquired being made subject to compound Settlement—Form No. 62, p. 299.

IN WITNESS, &c.

(For schedules, see Form No. 72, p. 306.)

If by the vesting deed the land had been conveyed to the son as the tenant for life and the father and son were by the trust instrument given powers successively during their lives to appoint trustees, then this fact should be mentioned, for a new vesting instrument would not be required in the ordinary course till the death of the son. ---

(i) This is rather a complicated Precedent, but covers certain points which arise in practice; it shows how settled estates may be dealt with on a re-settlement where the old life estate is incumbered. If desired the personal estate can be dealt with by a deed of even date referring to the re-settlement. And see S. L. Act, 1925, s. 91, as to different incumbered estates settled on the same limitations.

Advowsons. Where an advowson is settled, any deed altering the ownership must be registered pursuant to the Benefices Act, 1898, within one month, but this Enfranchised lands. will generally be the vesting deed. Similarly in the case of enfranchised lands (hereinafter called the First Vesting Deed) dated, &c., and made, &c. (made in favour of the Father), the real estate and chattels real known as the P. and N. Estates, in the Counties of ——, &c., more particularly described in the First Schedule to the First Vesting Deed were vested in the Father (subject to mortgages for securing a total sum of £—— affecting the fee simple of parts of the said estates as mentioned in the —— Schedule to the First Vesting Deed), UPON TRUST (except as to advowsons) for securing payment to the said Jane B. during the joint lives of herself and the Father of the yearly sum of £—— by way of pin-money, without power of anticipation, and subject thereto, UPON TRUST (as to all the said estates) for the Father during his life, without impeachment of waste, with remainder, UPON TRUST (except as to advowsons) for securing payment of a yearly jointure rentcharge of £—— to the said Jane B. if she survived the Father during the residue of her life, and subject thereto, UPON TRUST for the Trustees for a term of 1,000 years, without impeachment of waste, UPON TRUSTS (in the events which have happened) for raising the sum of £—— after the death of the Father as portions for his younger children by the said Jane B., with certain interest and maintenance money, and subject to the said term, UPON TRUST for the Son (who was born (date)) in tail male, with divers remainders over: And the Settlement of —— contained a power for the Father if he re-married to appoint and charge a jointure rentcharge to an after-taken wife and portions for the younger children of a subsequent marriage and their issue as therein mentioned:

on trust for the father for life, subject to pin-money jointure and portions.

(2) At the date aforesaid the said life interest of the Father was (with the policies of assurance hereinafter mentioned and assigned) subject to the mortgages mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto:

Mortgages on life interest and policies.

(3) By a Deed (hereinafter called the Disentailing Assurance) dated, &c., and made between the Father of the 1st part, the Son of the 2nd part, and the Trustees of the 3rd part, the Son (with the consent of the Father as protector) conveyed, and the Father conveyed and released their respective equitable interests in the said estates unto the Trustees in fee simple or absolutely (subject to the mortgages mentioned in the —— Schedule to the First Vesting Deed) and subject (exclusively and in exoneration of the money and investments thereinafter mentioned and assigned, being certain cash and investments of small amount which were liable to be laid out in the purchase of lands to be settled on the subsisting limitations of the Settlement of ——) to the said pin-money and jointure rentcharge charged in favour of the said Jane B., and to the sum raisable for portions for the younger children of the Father by the said Jane B., and to the portion term aforesaid, but freed from the life estate of the father under the Settlement of —— and all powers of charging and other powers annexed to or exercisable during the continuance of such life estate, And also freed from the estate in tail male of the Son, and all other estates in tail male or in tail of the Son or the Father, and all estates, rights, interests and powers to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of such estates in tail male or in tail or any of them, Upon such trusts and in such manner generally as the Father and Son should from time to time by deed revocable or irrevocable jointly appoint, And in default of and until and subject to any such appointment, Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions which, immediately before the execution of the Disentailing Assurance, were subsisting with reference to the premises thereby conveyed:

Disentailing assurance.

Second vesting deed of further land.

(4) By a Deed (see last Precedent) (hereinafter called the Second Vesting Deed) bearing even date and intended to be executed contemporaneously herewith and made between the Father of the 1st part, the Son of the 2nd part, and the Trustees of the 3rd part, the Father (being then seised in fee simple in possession of the properties mentioned in the First Schedule thereto subject to the mortgages mentioned in the Second Schedule thereto, but otherwise free from incumbrances) as part of a family arrangement, at the request of the Son, declared that the properties mentioned in the First Schedule thereto were vested in the Father in fee simple (subject to the mortgages mentioned in the Second Schedule thereto), Upon the trusts declared concerning the same by a Trust Instrument (meaning this Re-settlement) of even date, or upon such other trusts as the same ought to be held from time to time, And it was thereby declared that the Trustees were the trustees of the Settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925, that certain additional or larger powers were conferred by the trust instrument in relation to the settled land (being the powers hereinafter mentioned) and that the power of appointing a new trustee or new trustees was vested in the Father during his life :

(5) The Father is entitled to the policies of assurance effected on his life mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, subject to the mortgages mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto :

(6) The Father and Son are desirous of making such Settlement as hereinafter contained, and in consideration thereof and of the increased jointure hereinafter limited to the said Jane B., she has agreed to join herein for the purpose of releasing the said jointure rentcharge of £—— limited to her by the Settlement of —— :

Provision as to costs.

(7) Upon the execution of the Disentailing Assurance it was agreed that the sum of cash and the investments conveyed by that deed, and then liable to be invested in the purchase of land to be settled upon the trusts of the Settlement of ——, should, with the consent of the said Jane B. (testified by her execution hereof), be received by the Son and the same cash and investments were accordingly disentailed by the said deed and limited to him absolutely, and it was agreed that thereout (so far as the same would extend) the costs and expenses of and incidental to the preparation and completion of the said deed, the Second Vesting Deed, and this Re-settlement should be paid by him, And it is intended that the said cash and investments shall be received by or transferred to the Son and applied by him accordingly, and that the surplus (if any) shall be retained by him for his own benefit, And that if the said cash and investments should not be sufficient to discharge all the said costs and expenses the balance should be discharged by the Father, and he has agreed to discharge the same accordingly.

Joint powers of appointment; registered land.

In the 21st edition a precedent of a transfer of registered land was given to cover the case where the donees of a joint over-riding power of appointment were to be registered as proprietors. This form is no longer available, for a power of appointment when exercised only creates an equitable interest (as was formerly the case in regard to personal estate), see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1. The register kept under the L. R. Act, 1925, is only concerned with legal estates: ib., s. 2; just as vesting instruments are, as respects unregistered land, only concerned with legal estates. A tenant for life is the legal owner and trustee of settled land, hence when the title is registered he must be registered as proprietor: L. R. Act, 1925, ss. 86 and 92. If donees of a power of appointment have been registered they are bound to transfer the land to the tenant for life: ib., s. 87 (3). If the donees were the registered proprietors on 1st January, 1926, the register can be rectified by registering the tenant for life without a transfer; no fee is charged: ib., s. 92, proviso.

Rectification of register in favour of tenant for life.

(l) The mere creation of these family charges converts the settlor into a tenant for life, though he retains the fee simple subject thereto: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 20. As to an absolute owner making title subject to family charges: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1. A stipulation that a person entitled to an equitable interest shall join is void if title can be made without such concurrence: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 42 (1).

Other means of termination of Settlements. Termination in lifetime of tenant for life. Partial discharge.

(m) As a general rule a settlement comes to an end on the death of a tenant for life; in this case his personal representatives will execute an absolute assent or an assent on trust for sale (as the case requires) in favour of the persons then entitled and no deed of discharge will be required: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 110 (5). A settlement may come to end during the lifetime of a tenant for life (see, e.g., last Precedent, and S. L. Act, 1925, s. 7), and then a deed of discharge will be required. As to the duration of settlements: ib., s. 3, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. If they have notice of a conveyance or assent on trust for sale it must refer to that. This may involve a further assurance by the estate owner of the legal estate.

If he is tenant for life in remainder with powers of charging jointures and portions which take effect in any event, see next Precedent. If he has a remote life interest in remainder and a power of charging jointures and portions which only become a lien if he becomes entitled in possession, see Prec. XVI, p. 375.

Notices.

It will save costs if the S. L. Act trustees agree to act as trustees of the portions term. If they are not parties, notice in writing must be given to them of the appointment and charge. A land charge cannot be registered: L. C. Act, 1925, s. 10, Class C (iii); the jointure is an interest arising under a settlement.

Statutory remedies.

(s) The rentcharge will have incident thereto the powers conferred by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 121, but as the jointress cannot have a legal rentcharge, she can only create an equitable term for raising arrears : ib., sub-s. (4) ; also ib., s. 8 (1), till legal effect is given to a mortgage by the estate owner ; as to this, see S. L. Act, 1925, s. 16.

Powers of appointment must regulate the form of the appointment.

The operative parts in this deed must depend upon the form of the power of appointment.

Overreaching joint power of appointment.

If the appointor has a general power of appointment which has priority over the powers to jointure and charge portions a declaration is usually added that this power shall not be exercised, "except subject and without prejudice to the Appointment and Charge hereby made."

As a rule, however, such a declaration would be unnecessary. In the case of conflicting powers that first exercised prevails.

Variations where settlor desires to retain the power to make provision for issue of a subsequent marriage.

(t) Where the settlor desires to retain the power to make provision for his issue by any subsequent marriage several courses are open to him :—

Charge of part of the land.

(1) He can charge part only of the land subject to the power. This enables him to deal with the excepted part on a future marriage (see variations in the text) ; but this may be of no use to him if he has already charged the maximum sum authorised.

Charge of part of the total amount raisable.

(2) He can charge part only of the aggregate amount raisable under the power, e.g., where the limit is £20,000, charge only £10,000 in favour of issue of the intended marriage.

Charge in favour of all issue by any marriage,

(3) He can exercise the power to the full extent, saying in clause 2 (2) in the text :—

If there shall be any child or children of the now intended or any subsequent marriage of the Husband, and adding the following proviso for the protection of the issue of the intended marriage :—

Provided that the aggregate amount of principal money distributable among the issue (if any) of the now intended marriage, whether under or in default of appointment, shall not, of 800 years to commence from the death of the Husband, without impeachment of waste, UPON TRUST that the Trustees shall if there shall be any child or children of the now intended marriage who (continue and adapt Form No. 22, p. 264, and refer to the "limitations of the Settlement" and "the premises subject to the limitations of the Settlement"). Add at the end of the trusts of the term the following sub-clause to authorise the Trustees to give a discharge without the concurrence of the Portioners :

"The trustees or trustee (u) for the time being of the said term shall have power to give valid receipts for all money raisable under the foregoing charge or the trusts of the said term."

3. (Add power for the Trustees to surrender the term—Form No. 32, p. 281.)

protecting issue of intended marriage.

if any child of the now intended marriage becomes capable of taking a vested interest in default of appointment, be less than the sum of £——.

(4) He can exercise the power as in the text, and reserve the following power :—

Power for Husband to appoint that children of a subsequent marriage shall share in portions.

(1) IF the Husband marries again he may by any deed or by his Will or codicil appoint that his children or issue by any such subsequent marriages (being issue capable of taking under the powers of charging conferred by the Settlement) shall share in the portions and other money hereby charged ; And in such case the foregoing provisions shall take effect in all respects as if such children or issue of any such subsequent marriages had been issue of the now intended marriage :

But in such case the children of a subsequent marriage not to take a larger proportion than children of intended marriage.

(2) PROVIDED that the part of the money hereby provided for portions to which the issue of any subsequent marriages shall become entitled under any appointment to be made by the Husband pursuant to the power for that purpose hereinbefore conferred on him as extended by this clause or otherwise shall not bear a greater proportion to that part of the money which the issue of the now intended marriage shall take between them than the number of children of such subsequent marriages capable of taking vested interests shall bear to the number of children of the now intended marriage capable of taking vested interests.

Number of trustees of portions terms.

(u) No restriction applies as to the number of trustees of an equitable portions term : T. Act, 1925, s. 34 (3) ; but to save expense it is usual to appoint the S. L. Act trustees to be trustees of portions terms. The restrictions as respects the giving of receipts (L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2), as re-enacted by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. ; and S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 94 and 95) only apply to trustees for sale and to S. L. Act trustees.

4. THE Husband during his life shall have power from time to time to appoint a new trustee or new trustees hereof. Power to appoint new trustees.

THIS RELEASE is made (date), BETWEEN Jane B., of, &c., Widow, of the one part, and A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Tenant for Life), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Compound settlement.

(1) Under the Will of the late —— [Settlement of 18—] and the other instruments mentioned in the Schedule hereto the Tenant for Life is now tenant for life in possession of certain estates in the Counties of —— and —— and [as appears from the Order of the Court mentioned in that Schedule] X. and Y. are

---

Family charges overreachable.

(y) In the 21st edition a Precedent was given of a deed authorising a tenant for life to overreach a jointure created by an instrument having priority to the settlement creating the life interest. This is no longer required, for in all cases the S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement will act: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1), hence all family charges will be overreachable.

Enrolment at Central Office.

(z) Arrangements should be made to enrol this deed at the Central Office. so that all the former purchasers may be able to inspect it.

Power for absolute owners to make title subject to family charges or freed therefrom.

The object of this deed is to free the land in the hands of the purchasers, or the persons deriving title under them, from the jointure. It is assumed that before 1926 the tenant for life had sold land subject to but indemnified against the jointure, not having obtained an appointment of S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement by the court. Under L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1, the purchasers, and the persons deriving title under them, can dispose of the land acquired subject to a family charge with the benefit of the indemnity, and L. P. Act, 1925, s. 42 (1), does not prevent this where the contract stipulates that the land is sold subject to the charge; still, the title is and always has been unsatisfactory, and where it is feasible to clear it this should be done. Nothing has been done to prevent the purchaser from making a title under a compound settlement, of which his conveyance would form part, freed from the charge, but this is not a course he would usually be advised to adopt. On the other hand, a tenant for life (not being an absolute owner) is not, after 1925, in a position to make a title to the settled land to a purchaser subject to a family charge, hence these indifferent titles will gradually become extinct.

Appointment by the court of trustees of a compound settlement.

When the court appoints trustees of a compound settlement it is only concerned with the instrument creating the settlement under which the applicant is tenant for life, it can ignore previous conveyances to purchasers forming parts of other settlements: Re Ogle (1926), W. N. 227.

the present trustees (a) of the said Compound Settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925:

Creation of jointure.

(2) By the said Will [the Settlement of ——] a yearly rentcharge of £—— was limited to the Jointress if (as happened) she survived her husband, the late F. B. (who died on ——), during the residue of her life and the said jointure rentcharge affects the estates aforesaid and also certain other properties which have been sold or otherwise disposed of as hereinafter mentioned:

Dispositions under the Re-settlement.

(3) Between the years 19— and 1926 the Tenant for Life sold, exchanged or otherwise disposed of, certain properties and rights as tenant for life in possession under the Re-settlement mentioned in the Schedule hereto and all capital money arising on those transactions was paid to the Trustees for the time being of the said Re-settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, there being at the respective dates of completion of the said transactions no trustees of the said Compound Settlement:

Dispositions subject to but indemnified against the rentcharge.

(4) On each of the said transactions the said properties and rights were conveyed subject to the said jointure rentcharge, but exonerated (so far as might be) by the other property charged therewith,(b) and the Tenant for Life entered into covenants for keeping the properties disposed of effectually indemnified against all claims in respect of the said rentcharge:

Agreement to release.

(5) The Jointress being satisfied that the property remaining undisposed of and affected by the said rentcharge is more than ample to secure the payment of the same has, at the request of the Tenant for Life, agreed to execute such release as is hereinafter contained:

NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement and in consideration of the premises, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Release of property disposed of.

1. THE Jointress, As Mortgagee, hereby releases ALL the properties and rights formerly subject to the limitations of the said Compound Settlement which, before the 1st January, 1926, have been disposed of to a purchaser, mortgagee or lessee, from

Order of court, when unnecessary.

(a) It is not necessary that there should have been an order of the court appointing trustees, for under L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. (amending S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31), the trustees of the Re-settlement under which the Vendor took his life interest (if there were such trustees), would, in default of an order, become the trustees of the Compound Settlement for the purposes of the S. L. Act, 1925.

Exoneration from charges.

(b) The power to exonerate land from a charge conferred by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 49 (1) (c), is new. It is only required now to exonerate land from a liability which cannot be overreached.

all claims and demands in respect of the said jointure rentcharge, but as regards mortgages, leases and tenancies only so far as may be necessary to confirm the same.

Shifting of the jointure.(c)

2. In exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by section sixty-nine of the Settled Land Act, 1925, and of all other powers, the Tenant for Life, at the request and with the consent of the Jointress, hereby declares that all the property and rights, including capital money and securities representing capital money now by any means subject to the limitations or trusts of the said Compound Settlement (other than advowsons and heirlooms or capital money arising from heirlooms), whether or not already charged with the payment of the said jointure rentcharge, shall henceforth stand charged therewith in exoneration of the premises hereinbefore released To the intent that the Jointress shall be in the same position in all respects and have the like rights as if the transactions hereinbefore referred to had been carried out after trustees of the said Compound Settlement had been appointed and all capital money arising on the said transactions had been paid to trustees of that Settlement.

Notices.

It saves costs if the trustees of the head settlement will agree to act as trustees of the derivative settlement. Unless they are parties, notice in writing must be given to the S. L. Act trustees of the head settlement of the execution of the appointment and of the trust instrument: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 137.

Effect of settling an interest in remainder.

This Precedent is given as an illustration of the different methods required when real estate is to be settled on limitations corresponding as nearly as possible with trusts usually employed in a personalty settlement, and also as an illustration of a settlement of an interest in remainder. It does not come on to the title to the real estate. An estate in remainder is an equitable interest: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1. After the death of the survivor of the father and mother the special personal representatives of the survivor will execute a vesting assent in favour of the tenant for life under this new settlement and will nominate the persons who are then the S. L. Act trustees thereof as the S. L. Act trustees. No deed of discharge will be required under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 17, for there will be a chain of settlements, though such a deed would be executed if a tenant for life surrendered. A settlement does not usually come to an end during the lifetime of a tenant for life.

Effect of conveying an interest in remainder on trust for sale.

If the settlement had been effected by means of a trust for sale, then the special personal representatives of the survivor of the father and mother would have assented to the property vesting in the trustees for sale on trust for sale, and the conveyance of the interest in remainder would not come on the title.

Agreement for Settlement.

(3) Agreement for Settlement—Form No. 2, p. 246:

NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement and in consideration of the said intended marriage, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Declaration of trust.

1. (1) THE Wife, as Settlor, with the concurrence of the Husband, hereby declares that (subject to the respective life interests of the Father and Mother), she will stand possessed of:

If the limitation to the children as tenants in common in tail takes effect such persons, if more than one, to take (subject to any trust for sale implied by statute) in the like shares as they would have taken under the general law in force before 1926 and applicable to freeholds on a devolution by descent from her:

in favour of more than one person, a trust for sale will be implied under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36. The former S. L. Act trustees will be the trustees for sale: ib. They will have the same overriding powers as the former tenant for life: ib., sub-s. (2), see also L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (3), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. They will also have any additional powers which were conferred on a tenant for life: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (1), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Overreaching powers of trustees for sale.

If two or more heirs take by purchase in undivided shares, the above remarks apply. If the land becomes vested in two or more joint tenants beneficially (not being tenants for life) a trust for sale is implied under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 36; that does not prevent the survivor who is solely and beneficially entitled from dealing with the land as if there were no trust for sale: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending s. 36, though a doubt on this point could not be justified.

Beneficiaries to be consulted, when?

Where the trust for sale is implied by statute, the trustees for sale must consult the beneficiaries in accordance with L. P. Act, 1925, s. 26 (3) as re-enacted in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Provided as follows—

(i) Any annuity or the income of any other real or personal property limited to or held in trust for the Wife for her life only, or for any term of years determinable by notice after her death, is to be treated as income, and until sale thereof (if any) is to be paid to her without power of anticipation during any coverture;

(ii) All property (not being a legal estate in land) vested in the Trustees pursuant to this covenant shall be held by them upon trust to sell or convert the same with such consents as are, by the Settled Land Act, 1925, made requisite to dealings with capital money and with power to postpone any such sale or conversion, and so that no reversionary interest be sold unless there is special reason for the sale, and until sale all income attributable to the premises shall, however invested, be treated and applied as income;

(iii) If the Wife becomes entitled to an equitable interest in land, and subsequently acquires a legal estate therein, she shall retain such legal estate and execute a Vesting Deed in respect thereof in manner hereinbefore mentioned, and the trust for sale shall not apply to the land;

(iv) For the purposes of this clause "land," "legal estate" and "equitable interest" have the same meanings as in the Law of Property Act, 1925 (as amended).(jj)

Indemnity to Trustees.

(2) The Trustees shall not be made accountable in respect of any real or personal property becoming subject to this clause unless and until the same shall have been expressly made subject to the trusts hereof or have been assigned, paid or transferred to the trustees Upon the trusts aforesaid, nor shall they be chargeable with breach of trust or made liable in any way for not taking any proceedings to get in the same real and personal property, or any part thereof, unless and until required in writing so to do by some person, or the guardian of some person, beneficially interested hereunder, and unless also due provision be made to the satisfaction of the Trustees for payment of the costs of any proceedings required to be taken.

Power to make Settlement on future marriage.

9. (1) If the Wife survives the Husband and marries again, and at the date of such remarriage there shall be in existence only one child of the now intended marriage, then, without prejudice to any appointment which may have already been made under the powers hereinbefore contained, she may either in contemplation of or after any subsequent marriage from time to time by deed, revocable or irrevocable, or by Will or Codicil—

If she is not restrained as respects her life interest in the perpetual rentcharges, the father and mother should surrender their life interests in a sufficient part, and thus avoid duty, instead of covenanting to pay an annual sum. To avoid estate duty they must, after a voluntary disposition, live three years: Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 59. If the life interests are surrendered then a vesting deed must be executed by the estate owner (the mother) in favour of the wife, pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, s. 7, see next Precedent.

a settlement is subsisting on 1st January, 1926, by reference to that settlement and any conveyance to the uses thereof, but, with that exception, not by reference to a disentailing deed or to a trust instrument: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 5 (2).

Simplicity of deeds relating to the legal estate.

It will be seen from the foregoing Precedents that a new vesting deed is not required where land is re-settled, and there is no consequential change in the legal ownership, and that all the documents relating to legal estates are of a simple character; in fact, they are based as far as possible on the idea of a simple transfer of stocks or shares.

(r) From some aspects this deed must be regarded as a luxury; in the normal case the facts stated in a vesting instrument are not brought up to date till there is a change in the legal ownership (e.g., by reason of the death of a tenant for life or the surrender of his life interest). But by setting out the new additional powers it complies with the letter of S. L. Act, 1925, s. 18, and there can be no question that it facilitates the making of title and general estate management. It will not usually be made unless some important transaction depending on a new additional power (see Re Cowley's S. E. (1926), W. N. 202) is contemplated. In all vesting instruments, the tenant for life is directed to hold the property on the trusts affecting it from time to time, but, independently of any express trust, he holds it on the trusts declared by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 16 (1) (i), all that is essential is that he should have notice of the trusts on which the land is to be held.

Giving effect to equitable interests and powers according to priorities.

THE additional or larger powers mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto (including those mentioned in the Principal Deed) are conferred by the Compound Settlement, or by one or more of the documents constituting that Settlement, in relation to the settled land and by virtue of the said Act operate and are exercisable as if thereby conferred on a tenant for life.

New trustees.

4. THE power to appoint a new Trustee or new Trustees of the Settlement is vested in the Estate Owner during his life [or otherwise as the case requires].

No. XXI.

POWERS DEED for conferring POWERS ADDITIONAL to those conferred by the S. L. Act, 1925, under a joint power of APPOINTMENT.(t) (Equitable Interests.)

Parties.

THIS POWERS DEED dated, &c., and made BETWEEN A. B., of, &c., and C. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Appointors), of the one part, and X., of, &c., and Y., of, &c., and Z., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Settlement, &c., conferring joint power.

(1) Under the Settlement, Vesting Deeds and other instruments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, certain freehold and leasehold properties in or arising in the County of —— are now vested in the said A. B. Upon such trusts and for such purposes generally as the Appointors shall (subject only to the family charges mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto) by deed revocable or irrevocable from time to time appoint, with certain trusts over in default of appointment; And under the instruments aforesaid [and by virtue of divers appointments of new trustees] certain capital money, investments and other personal estate are now vested in the Trustees UPON TRUSTS corresponding to the trusts affecting the said freehold and leasehold

Legal estates, when affecting

properties, the Trustees being the present trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925, of the Settlement aforesaid :

Desire to confer additional powers.

(2) The Appointors in the exercise of the general power of appointment conferred by [the Disentailing Deed] [the Settlement] mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto are desirous of conferring such powers in addition to those conferred by the said Act [as extended by the said Settlement] as are hereinafter referred to :

NOW, in exercise of the powers aforesaid and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Additional powers conferred.

1. The Appointors hereby appoint and direct that the said Settlement shall (without prejudice to the family charges aforesaid) henceforth be read and have effect as if the additional powers set forth in the —— Schedule hereto had been incorporated therein.

Powers relating to the settled land to be mentioned in the vesting deed.

2. Such of the said additional powers as relate to the settled land shall be mentioned in the principal vesting instrument for the time being in force or in a Vesting Instrument supplemental thereto, and in the meantime shall be endorsed on the Principal Vesting Instrument mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto and such endorsement shall be signed by the Trustees.

Family charges having priority to the power of appointment. (u)

3. The said powers shall be exercised so as not to affect prejudicially the family charges mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, but no purchaser, mortgagee, lessee or other person dealing in good faith for money or money's worth with the estate owner for the time being of the settled land, shall (subject to any order of the Court to the contrary) be concerned to see or enquire whether or not any dealing would affect prejudicially the said charges or any of them or the consent of the persons interested has been obtained to any transaction to be effected thereunder.

In witness, &c. [Add Schedules. As to the additional powers, see Sect. VIII, pp. 289–98, supra.]

Additional powers not to alter beneficial interests.

(u) See Re Cowley's S. E. (1926), W. N. 202 ; also S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 16 and 107. If there are any family charges paramount to the power of appointment, care must be taken that the new powers do not authorise the settled property to be dealt with so as to affect the family charges prejudicially. A clear distinction should be drawn between a power authorising a useful transaction to be carried out and a provision which in effect alters the beneficial limitations or trusts.

To C. D., of, &c., E. F., of, &c., and G. H., of, &c., the Trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925, of a Settlement dated, &c., and made, &c. ---

Notices under S. L. Act.

(a) These notices are seldom given where the trustees have to join in the transaction, for their concurrence operates as a waiver. In many cases the settlement dispenses with the notices, but in the case of compound settlements, it is conceived that any provision dispensing with notices should be given in the instrument under which the trustees are constituted, e.g., the instrument first in date or operation, or where the amendment in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., affecting S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31, applies, in the instrument whereby the life interest is created. Where no trustees are constituted by one of the instruments, but have been appointed by the court, it is conceived that no provision as to notices could well apply as respects such trustees or their successors in office.

The notice must be sent separately to each of the trustees in a registered letter (to be posted at least one month before the transaction is carried out or the contract for the option is made) addressed to his usual or last known place of abode in the United Kingdom, and also to the solicitor of the trustees if known to the tenant for life, addressed to his place of business: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 101.

There must be at least two trustees or a trust corporation to receive the notice, otherwise the notice is void: ib., sub-s. (1). The notice to make a sale, exchange, lease or grant of an option may be general in terms: ib., sub-s. (2). A person dealing in good faith with the tenant for life is not concerned to enquire respecting the notice: ib., sub-s. (5). The tenant for life must furnish reasonable information respecting sales, exchanges or leases effected or in progress or intended, when so required. Notices may be waived: ib., sub-s. (4).

Where a lease at the best rent does not exempt the lessee from punishment for waste, does not impose a fine, and does not create a term in excess of twenty-one years, no notice is required: ib., s. 42 (5); such a lease may be granted, though there are no S. L. Act trustees: ib., see also s. 110 (4).

(f) The additional powers conferred by a re-settlement or powers deed are exercisable by the tenant for life who is the estate owner: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 108; Re Cowley's S. E. (1926), W. N. 202; under ib., s. 18, the additional powers must be mentioned in the vesting instrument, but when no new vesting instrument is required, there being no change in the legal ownership (in every case the estate owner holds "Upon such trusts, &c., as the same ought to be held from time to time") the vesting instrument must be brought up-to-date by endorsement. Powers not existing at the time of execution cannot be mentioned therein in the first instance. To comply strictly with s. 18, it may be expedient to execute a short supplemental Vesting Deed (see Prec. THIS SUBSIDIARY VESTING DEED is made, &c., BETWEEN A. T., of, &c., and C. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), of the one part, and E. F., of, &c. (tenant for life) (hereinafter called the Estate Owner), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Principal vesting deed.

(1) Under a Deed (hereinafter called the Principal Vesting Deed) dated, &c., and made, &c., certain freehold property is now held by the Estate Owner on the trusts of a Deed dated, &c., and made, &c. Y. being then seised in fee simple in possession free from incumbrances of the property hereinafter described, conveyed the same to the use of the Trustees in fee simple by way of mortgage for securing payment to the Trustees on a day therein mentioned and long since passed of the principal sum of £——, with interest thereon as therein mentioned, and which principal sum was advanced by the Trustees by the direction of the Estate Owner out of capital money for the purposes of the Settlement which was then primarily liable to be laid out in the purchase of freehold land to be conveyed to the uses of that Settlement:

Conversion into long term.

(3) The right of redemption not having been barred on the 1st January, 1926, the said property became vested by virtue of Part VII of the First Schedule to the Law of Property Act, 1925, in the Trustees for a term of 3,000 years, without impeachment of waste, and subject to cesser on redemption under the Mortgage:

Reservation of easement.

(h) See also as to subsidiary vesting deeds: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 10, and 1st Sch., Form No. 4. In some cases where important easements are created de novo by a reservation and a duplicate of a conveyance is taken, a subsidiary vesting deed is used, but it is not essential.

[Mortgage debt not paid and Trustees acquired absolute title by adverse possession.

[(4) No part of the said Mortgage debt having been paid, the Trustees entered into possession of the said property in the year ——, and have ever since remained in uninterrupted possession thereof without ever having acknowledged the right of the said X. Y. or any other person to any right of redemption, and the Trustees accordingly became absolutely entitled to the said property discharged from all right of redemption previously existing therein :

Enlargement deed.]

(5) By an Enlargement Deed dated, &c., under the hands and seals of the Trustees, they, pursuant to sections eighty-eight and one hundred and fifty-three of the said Act, declared that the said term was enlarged into a fee simple, discharged from any legal mortgage defeated by the title so acquired, and that the fee simple was vested in them discharged as aforesaid :]

[Variation where foreclosure order has been obtained.]

[(4) By an Order of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice made on the —— day of ——, in a foreclosure action (19— T. No. —) in which the Trustees were Plaintiffs and the said X. Y. Defendant, the usual accounts were directed to be taken and it was ordered that if the said X. Y. should not on the day therein mentioned pay to the Trustees what should be certified to be due to them on taking such account, then the said X. Y. should thenceforth stand absolutely debarred and foreclosed from all right of redemption in the said property :]

[Master's certificate.]

[(5) The Master duly made his certificate dated the —— day of ——, and thereby certified that there was due from the said X. Y. to the Trustees the aggregate sum of £—— :]

[That Mortgagor made default.]

[(6) The said X. Y. made default in paying the said sum of £—— to the Trustees and on the —— day of —— the said Order was made absolute, and accordingly, by virtue of sub-section (2) of section eighty-eight of the said Act, the fee simple in the said property became vested in the Trustees, discharged from all right of redemption previously existing therein under the Mortgage :]

Request by tenant for life.

(6) or (7) The estate owner has, pursuant to sub-section (4) of section twenty-one of the said Act, requested the Trustees, in lieu of selling the property hereinafter described, to execute such subsidiary Vesting Deed as hereinafter appearing :

Additional powers.

3. The additional powers mentioned in the Principal Vesting Deed are applicable to the property hereby conveyed [and the following further powers have, since the date thereof, been conferred [by a Resettlement] [by a Powers Deed under the overriding power of appointment mentioned in that Vesting Deed] in relation to the settled land, namely (set out these powers, if any)].

New trustees.

4. The power of appointing a new trustee or new trustees of the Settlement is vested in the Estate Owner during his life.

PART IV.

DISENTAILING ASSURANCES.

PRELIMINARY NOTE.

Old powers of tenant in tail in possession or remainder.

BEFORE 1926 a tenant in tail in possession of freeholds might, under the F. & R. Act, 1833, s. 15, dispose of the fee simple or any less estate by a deed enrolled in the Central Office (in the case of copyholds on the court rolls); but if the estate tail was preceded by an estate for years determinable on the dropping of a life or lives, or any greater estate (not being a term of years), created by the same settlement, the tenant in tail, unless he was also tenant in fee simple in remainder expectant on his own estate tail, could not, without the consent of the person called by the Act "the protector of the settlement" (ss. 22, 34), create any larger estate than a base fee, i.e., an estate which would be a complete bar to his issue, but not to those in remainder or reversion, and during the continuance of such issue would devolve or be disposable by him as a fee simple.

Lunatic.

The estate tail of a lunatic could not be sold under the Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 120 (a), but his power to bar the entail was a power vested in him for his own benefit within s. 120, and might be exercised by his committee or receiver, with the leave of the court: Re E. D. S. [1914], 1 Ch. 618; 83 L. J. Ch. 505. As to re-settling a lunatic's estate: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 171 (2).

New law.

After 1925, the old law, above stated, applies subject to the following modifications:—

Enrolment.

(1) No disentailing assurance, &c., need be enrolled: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 133.

Property generally.

(2) Entailed interests, taking effect only as equitable interests, can be created in all property, real or personal: ib., s. 131.

Equitable interests.

Not capable of transferring a legal estate.

Operation of powers conferred.

(3) Disentailing assurances can only operate to transfer equitable interests: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 13 and 18, for a tenant in tail in possession is in the position of a tenant for life: ib., s. 20 (1) (i), while a tenant in tail in remainder can only have an equitable interest: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1. Thus, disentailing assurances are removed from the category of purchase deeds capable of creating or transferring a legal estate and are placed behind the curtain; indeed, they may form part of a compound settlement (trust instruments), and must not be referred to in vesting instruments: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 5 (2), save as part of a settlement subsisting on 1st January, 1926. All powers of appointment created thereby can only operate to transfer or create equitable interests: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1; but additional or larger powers can be thereby conferred which will be mentioned in the principal vesting instrument, and, when so mentioned, can be exercised in relation to the creation of legal estates: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 18.

Abolition of special protectors.

(4) Special protectors cannot be appointed after 1925: L. P. Act, 1925, 7th Sch., repealing s. 32 of the Act of 1833, as respects settlements coming into operation after 1925.

Repeals.

(5) The other repeals of the obsolete provisions of the Act of 1833 are contained in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1924, 10th Sch., see 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 122.

Copyholds.

Fee simple conditional.

(6) Copyholds have been enfranchised, leaving the manorial incidents to be extinguished, and any fee simple conditional on birth of issue in a copyhold interest, which has not become absolute (generally arising for want of a custom to entail in a manor), has been converted into an entailed interest: L. P. Act, 1922, 12th Sch. (8) (ii).

General rule as to the person who shall be protector.

The general rule is that the owner of the prior estate is protector: ss. 22–31; Re Dudson (1878), 8 Ch. D. 628; Re Ainslie (1884), 54 L. J. Ch. 8; the owner of the prior estate means the beneficial owner: Re Blandy Jenkins [1917], 1 Ch. 46; 86 L. J. Ch. 76.

Where there is a tenant in tail under a settlement and there is subsisting under the same settlement any estate for years determinable on the dropping of a life or lives, or any greater estate (not being a term of years), prior to the estate tail, then the owner of the prior estate, or the first of such prior estates, if more than one then subsisting under the same settlement, or who would have been so if no absolute disposition thereof had been made (the first of such prior estates, if more than one, being for all the purposes of the Act deemed the prior estate), is the protector of the settlement, and is to be deemed the owner of such prior estate, though the same may have been charged by the owner thereof, or by the settlor, or otherwise howsoever, and though the whole of the rents and profits be required for the payment of the charges thereon, and though such prior estate may have been absolutely disposed of by the owner thereof, or by reason of the bankruptcy or insolvency of such owner, or by any other act or default of such owner. If a tenant for life creates a discretionary trust to subsist during his lifetime this would not deprive him of the protectorship. Secus if a tenant in tail, never having been a protector, becomes one of the possible beneficiaries under a discretionary trust, in such a case a life interest should be limited to him and he should by a separate deed assign it to trustees on discretionary trusts. An estate by the curtesy in respect of the estate tail, or of any prior estate created by the same settlement, is to be deemed a prior estate under the same settlement. A husband of a tenant in tail may still, in certain cases, take an equitable interest by the curtesy: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130. Also co-parceners, as heirs of the body, can still inherit an entailed interest. An estate by way of resulting trust to or for the settlor, is also to be deemed an estate under the same settlement: F. & R. Act, 1833, s. 22. As to the effect of a restoration of a life interest: ib., s. 25.

Discretionary trusts.

Estate by the curtesy.

Parceners.

Restoration of life interest.

As to married woman protector.

Section 24 directs that where a married woman would, if single, be the protector of a settlement in respect of a prior estate which is not thereby settled or agreed or directed to be for her separate use, she and her husband together shall, in respect of such estate, be the protector; but if such prior estate shall, by such settlement, have been settled for her separate use, she alone shall be the protector; see also s. 45. A married woman is alone protector in respect of a life interest which is her separate property under the M. W. P. Act, 1882, see M. W. P. Act, 1907, s. 3; this section applies to disentailing assurances executed after 1882.

Persons excluded from being protectors.

Under s. 27 no woman in respect of her dower and (with a reservation in regard to a bare trustee under a settlement made before 1834) no bare trustee, heir, executor, administrator or assign, in respect of any estate taken by him as such trustee, heir, &c., will be protector, and see Re Hughes [1906], 2 Ch. 642; 75 L. J. Ch. 784.

Trustees.

A trustee who has no beneficial interest, whether or not he has duties to perform, is a "bare trustee" within s. 27: Re Blandy Jenkins [1917], 1 Ch. 46; 86 L. J. Ch. 76. Thus "statutory owners," when not entitled to any beneficial interest, would not be protectors.

Old power for settlor to appoint a protector.

The settlor might, before 1926, appoint any person or number of persons, not exceeding three, to be protectors in lieu of the person who would have been the protector if there had been no such appointment: s. 32 (now repealed).

Office of protector survived, and, if all

If two or three protectors were appointed, the office passed to the survivors and survivor: Bell v. Holtby (1873), L. R. 15 Eq. 178; 42 L. J. Ch. 266; notwithstanding the fact that the settlement contained a provision for the appointment of new protectors: Cohen v. Bayley-Worthington [1908], A. C. 97; appointed protectors died, tenant for life was protector.

77 L. J. Ch. 373. If all the protectors died, and the settlement contained no power to perpetuate the protectorship, or, there being such a power, it was not exercised, the tenant for life became protector: Clarke v. Chamberlin (1880), 16 Ch. D. 176.

Lunatic protector.

Where the protector is a lunatic, the Lord Chancellor or other person for the time being entrusted with the care of lunatics is the protector in the place of such lunatic: s. 33; see also Re Blewitt (1856), 6 De G. M. & G. 187; 25 L. J. Ch. 393; Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 180.

Consent of protector, how given.

Consent given after death of tenant in tail.

The consent of the protector must be given by the same assurance by which the disposition is effected, or by another deed executed on or before the day on which the assurance is made: s. 42; the protector cannot revoke his consent: s. 44. If the consent is given by a distinct deed, it is no longer necessary to enrol it: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 133. In Whitmore-Searle v. W.-S. [1907], 2 Ch. 332; 76 L. J. Ch. 576, it was held that the entail was effectually barred where a tenant in tail executed a disentailing assurance and died and the protector subsequently signified his consent by executing the assurance, which was enrolled within six months from the execution by the tenant in tail.

Prohibition void.

The barring of an estate tail cannot be prohibited: Dawkins v. Penrhyn (1878), 4 A. C. 51; 48 L. J. Ch. 304. The old law as to barring entails in real estate applies to barring entailed interests in personal estate: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130.

Enlargement of base fee.

Immediate reversion.

Rights of purchaser.

Base fee, &c., in possession.

A tenant in tail who has created a base fee, or an equivalent interest in personal estate, may convert such base fee or interest into a fee simple or absolute interest by deed, so soon as there ceases to be a protector of the settlement: s. 19; or during the protectorship with the protector's consent: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130. If the owner of a base fee, or an equivalent interest in personal estate, becomes entitled to the immediate reversion in fee simple or to the absolute interest, the estate is enlarged ipso facto: s. 39; L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130. The base fee will also be enlarged into a fee simple if on the determination of the prior estates the owner goes into possession and holds for twelve years: R. P. Lim. Act, 1874, s. 6. Semble, the same rule applies to an equivalent interest in personal estate, for the statutory provisions relating to estates tail in real property apply to entailed interests in personal property: 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 348–53. A purchaser of a base fee could call upon the vendor to bar the entail when his estate fell into possession if the vendor had covenanted for further assurance: Bankes v. Small (1887), 36 Ch. D. 716; 56 L. J. Ch. 832, but see Davis v. Tollemache (1856), 2 Jur. N. S. 1181; Sug., 14th ed., 468. An owner of a base fee in possession is a tenant for life within S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20, and must make title under that Act; the contract will extend to the legal fee simple: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 42 (4). A settlement of a base fee constitutes a trust instrument if and when the interest settled takes effect free from equitable interests under a prior settlement: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 9; when it so "takes effect" a vesting instrument must be made: ib. So long as the equitable interests under the prior settlement are subsisting the vesting instrument will extend to the interests comprised in the compound settlement.

"Entailed interest."

The expression "entailed interest" includes estates tail created before 1926: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130 (7); S. L. Act, 1925, s. 117 (1) (xxviii). This xpression will no doubt come into general use.

Disentailing deed bars all estates to take effect in defeasance of estate tail.

The effect of a disentailing deed is to bar not only the estate tail, but all estates to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of the estate tail: Milbank v. Vane [1893], 3 Ch. 79; 62 L. J. Ch. 629; Cardigan v. Curzon Howe [1901], 2 Ch. 479; 70 L. J. Ch. 763.

Where the tenant in tail is a married woman, her husband, under the old law, must concur. Before 1926 the deed had to be acknowledged by her: F. & R. Act, 1833, s. 40; unless she was married or acquired the estate tail after 1882, in either of which cases the husband's concurrence became unnecessary by reason of the M. W. P. Act, 1882; nor had the deed to be acknowledged by her: Re Drummond and Davie [1891], 1 Ch. 524; 60 L. J. Ch. 258.

Disentailing deeds by married woman.

The acknowledgment of the married woman might, under the old law, be taken subsequently to the enrolment of the deed, and after the expiration of the six months then limited for enrolment: Ex parte Taverner (1855), 1 Jur. N. S. 1194.

Acknowledgment.

After 1925 it is unnecessary for any deed to be acknowledged by a married woman: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 167. Where the court dispenses with the concurrence of the husband, it may declare that the deed shall take effect as if he had concurred. He is not a necessary party if the M. W. P. Act, 1882, applies: 1 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed., 424–5.

Declaration of trust.

A declaration of trust is not sufficient to bar an entailed interest: Green v. Paterson (1886), 32 Ch. D. 95; 56 L. J. Ch. 181.

Dower.

If the tenant in tail was married before 1834, the grantee took subject to any right to dower. No right to dower in respect of an entailed interest is reserved by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130 (4).

Voidable disposition in favour of a purchaser confirmed by subsequent disposition, but not against purchaser without notice.

If a tenant in tail creates a voidable interest in favour of a purchaser for valuable consideration, and afterwards, under the Act, makes a disposition of the same property, such disposition, whatever its object may be, has the effect of confirming the voidable interest to the extent to which the second deed is an effective disposition, except that if the second disposition is made to a purchaser for valuable consideration who has not express notice of the voidable interest, then the voidable interest is not confirmed as against such purchaser and the persons claiming under him: s. 38. This section is now confined to equitable interests.

Disposition of property of bankrupt tenant in tail.

Where a tenant in tail of property becomes bankrupt, the trustee appointed in the bankruptcy is empowered to deal with the property in the same manner as the bankrupt might have dealt with it: ss. 56 to 72; and see repeals in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1924, 10th Sch.

Retrospective effect of enrolment under old law.

The deed, under the old law, had to be enrolled within six months after its execution, and, if so enrolled, operated from the time of its execution, except as against any person claiming for valuable consideration under any subsequent deed duly enrolled before the enrolment of the first deed: s. 74; and see Cattell v. Corrall (1840), 4 Y. & C. 228; 9 L. J. Ex. Eq. 37. As to the effect, under the old law, of the want of enrolment: Morgan v. M. (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 99; 39 L. J. Ch. 493; but where title was made under S. L. Act, 1882, s. 58, enrolment was unnecessary, for a tenant in tail could make title. As to rectification: Hall-Dare v. H.-D. (1885), 31 Ch. D. 251; 55 L. J. Ch. 154; Meeking v. M. [1917], 1 Ch. 77; 86 L. J. Ch. 97.

Possession adverse to a tenant in tail runs against all whom he could have barred.

When the right of a tenant in tail to recover property has been barred by the Limitation Acts, all persons claiming any estate, interest, or right which such tenant in tail might lawfully have barred are barred also; and when time has begun to run against a tenant in tail it continues to run after his death against all persons whom he might have barred: R. P. Lim. Act, 1833, ss. 21, 22; ib., 1874, s. 9; semble, these enactments now apply to personal property which is entailed: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130 (1).

When time begins to run against remaindermen where issue only are barred.

If a tenant in tail makes an assurance, which is not effectual to bar the remainders over, and the person claiming by virtue of such assurance enters into possession or receipt of the profits, the remaindermen are barred at the end of twelve years from the time at which such assurance, if it had then been executed by the tenant in tail, would, without the consent of any other person, have operated to bar the remainders: R. P. Lim. Act, 1874, s. 6; Mills v. Capel (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 692; 44 L. J. Ch. 674.

But this only applies to assurances which are effectual to bar the issue: Penny v. Allen (1857), 7 D. M. & G. 409; Morgan v. M., supra.

Infants.

An order made under the T. Act, 1925, ss. 44, 49, 50 and 53, vesting or appointing a person to convey the estate of an infant tenant in tail in possession bars the entailed interest: Re Montagu [1896], 1 Ch. 549; 65 L. J. Ch. 372. Such an order no longer has to be enrolled: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 133 (2).

The court could not, before 1926, direct the execution of a disentailing assurance for effecting a mortgage of the equitable interest of an infant tenant in tail: Re Hambrough [1909], 2 Ch. 620; 79 L. J. Ch. 19, but this could, semble, be done under T. Act, 1925, s. 53, for the purposes of that section. No legal estate in land will after 1925 be vested in an infant. It will either be vested in personal representatives, or S. L. Act trustees as statutory owners, or in a co-tenant for life of full age, or in trustees for sale, or in a co-mortgagee of full age, or in the Public Trustee.

Capital money in court.

Capital money will not usually be paid out of court to a tenant in tail in possession until he disentails: Re Reynolds (1876), 3 Ch. D. 61; but a small sum was paid out in Stead v. Harper (1896), W. N. 46.

Effect of disentailing assurance where misconception of the estate limited.

Where a tenant for life, who was also contingently entitled to an entailed interest in remainder, disentailed under the impression that he was not tenant for life but tenant in tail in possession, the disentailing assurance operated to bar his entailed interest: Re Wilmer [1910], 2 Ch. 111; 79 L. J. Ch. 617.

Stamps.

A disentailing assurance which does not limit any new interest, other than an interest in fee simple in the person barring the entail, is exempt from the additional stamp duties imposed by the Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74. A disentailing assurance by a father and son limiting the property upon such trusts as they appoint and, subject thereto on the existing trusts, is also exempt. References to "uses" in documents before 1926, will be construed as references to "trusts": compare L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1 (9), which refers to directions to convey land to uses; as to savings of equitable interests which were formerly legal estates: ib., 1st Sch., Pt. I; 1 Wolst. and Cherry, 11th ed., 488.

References to "uses"; construction.

Tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct; statutory entails.

A tenant in tail, after possibility of issue extinct, cannot bar an entail; he is in the same position as a tenant in tail prohibited by statute from barring, both are treated as tenants for life: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20; save that if the land was purchased by money provided by Parliament for public services the tenant is not treated as a tenant for life, but the statutory powers are exercisable by the statutory owners under ib., s. 23, with his consent when he is of full age and capacity, though a purchaser is not concerned to see that the consent is given. The legal estate vests in the statutory owners under L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 5.

No. I.

DISENTAILING ASSURANCE by a TENANT in TAIL in POSSESSION of PROPERTY of all descriptions, creating Interests in Fee Simple and Absolute Interests. (Equitable Interests.)

Parties.

THIS DISENTAILING DEED is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (tenant in tail) (hereinafter called the Grantor), of the one part, and X. Y., of, &c. (grantee) (a) (hereinafter called the Trustee), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Settlement.(b)

(1) Under a Deed (hereinafter called the Settlement) dated, &c., and made, &c., and by reason of the deaths of F. B. (tenant for life) on the —— day of —— and of Jane B. (jointress) on the —— day of —— [and (c) of the satisfaction of all charges and powers of charging having priority over the interest in tail male of the Grantor], and by virtue of the Probate of the Will of the said F. B. having been granted on the (date) by the —— Probate Registry to R. T. and S. T. (hereinafter called the Settlement Trustees), specially limited to the land comprised in the Settlement, certain freehold and leasehold properties and rights (including enfranchised lands affected by manorial incidents) situated or arising in the Counties of ——, are now vested in the Settlement Trustees, IN TRUST [subject to the family charges mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto] for the Grantor, who was born on the —— day of —— (d), (the eldest [or elder or only] son of the said F. B.) in tail male, With remainders over: (e)

Probate, &c.

Execution by grantee.

Enrolment.

(a) It is not necessary for the grantee to execute: Re Dudson (1878), 8 Ch. D., at p. 631; Nelson v. Agnew (1871), Ir. R. 6 Eq. 232; though to prevent a disclaimer, he should always do so: Peacock v. Eastland (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 17; 39 L. J. Ch. 534. No enrolment is required: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 133.

Recitals in disentailing assurances.

(b) As recitals do not govern the operative parts of disentailing assurances (see F. & R. Act, 1833, s. 21; Dart, 7th ed., 545), they are sometimes omitted, but a short statement showing how the title is derived is desirable. Sometimes, in the case of a tenant in tail in remainder, he has no particulars of the property, or of the settlement, and recitals must be omitted.

Effect of the subsistence or absence of family charges.

(c) If there are any subsisting family charges the tenant in tail, though he bars the entail, can only call on the settlement trustees (as his father's personal representatives) to execute a vesting assent to transfer the legal estate in the land to him subject to nominating themselves, as the S. L. Act trustees of the settlement. Having thus acquired the legal estate he can raise money thereon for his own purposes under L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1, without its being paid in the first instance to the S. L. Act trustees. If there are no family charges he can call on the settlement trustees to make an absolute assent in his favour, when they are satisfied that proper provision is being made for payment of duties. In the meantime they can let him into possession without prejudice to their powers: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 43.

When an infant attains twenty-one.

(d) This shows that the tenant in tail has attained twenty-one. A person attains twenty-one the day before the anniversary of his twenty-first birthday: Blackstone's Com., Book I, ch. 17, para. 2; Salk. 44, 625. The same principle applies whatever the stated age may be: Re Shurey [1918], 1 Ch. 263, 87 L. J. Ch. 245; and see 34 L. Q. R. 225. A corporation may be a person "of full age": Re Carnarvon (1926), W. N. 242; 70 Sol. J. 901.

Notice.

Notice in writing of the disentailing deed must be given to the settlement trustees, who as special personal representatives hold the legal estate in the land.

Bar of estates pur autre vie

(e) If an estate pur autre vie was limited in the form of an estate tail, though

Title to capital money and heirlooms.

(2) Under the Settlement and in the events aforesaid and by virtue of divers appointments of new trustees thereof, certain capital money, investments and other personal estate (exclusive of heirlooms) are held by the Settlement Trustees, In trust [subject to the family charges aforesaid] for the Grantor in tail male, with divers remainder over [and certain chattels held as heirlooms are also vested in them, In trust (free from any family charges) for the Grantor [absolutely] [in tail male]. (If the Settlement was made after 1925 the heirlooms would generally be entailed)] :

Intention to disentail.

(3) The Grantor is desirous of executing such Disentailing Assurance as is hereinafter contained :

NOW, for effectuating the said desire, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

1. The Grantor hereby conveys and disposes of unto the Trustee :

Parcels.

Real estate and chattels real.

All and singular the manors or lordships and reputed manors or lordships, advowsons, rectories, messuages, lands, buildings, rents, tithes, rentcharges in lieu of tithes, easements, rights, privileges, and other real estate and chattels real whatsoever and wheresoever, and any interest therein to which the

it descended according to the terms of the limitation during its continuance, the quasi-tenant in tail in possession could bar the entail and the remainders over by any act inter vivos, without observing the formalities prescribed by the Act of 1833, but not by Will, and the existence of prior incumbrances created no impediment: Allen v. A. (1841), 2 Dr. & War. 327. The renewal by a quasi-tenant in tail in possession of a lease for lives barred the entail and the remainders over, and the result was the same though the surrendered lease might be vested in trustees and they did not concur in the surrender : Grey v. Mannock (1765), 2 Eden, 339 ; Blake v. B. (1786), 1 Cox, 266 ; Campbell v. Sandys (1803), 1 Sch. & Lef. 281 ; Doe v. Luxton (1795), 6 Term Rep. 289. If the quasi-entail was preceded by a life interest, the remainders over were not barred without the concurrence of the tenant for life : Wastneys v. Chappell (1714), 3 Bro. P. C. 50 ; though without such concurrence semble the quasi-tenant in tail in remainder could bar his own estate and those of his issue : Allen v. A., supra. See also Theobald, 7th ed., 518, et seq.

Perpetually renewable leases and leases for lives (new law).

Perpetually renewable copyholds have been converted into freeholds : L. P. Act, 1922, s. 135 ; copyholds for years have been converted into leaseholds : ib., s. 133 ; copyholds for lives (ib., s. 133) and other leases for lives at a rent or granted for a fine have been converted into terms of years, terminable by notice : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 149 (6) ; while perpetually renewable leases for lives have been converted into terms of 2,000 years : L. P. Act, 1922, 15th Sch. ; which schedule prohibits the granting of perpetually renewable leases, and renders void a contract to renew for more than sixty years. In these circumstances, after 1924, there will seldom, if ever, be any estate pur autre vie to be dealt with ; such interests cannot take effect as legal estates. A lease at a rent or for a fine must take effect within twenty-one years of the grant : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 149 (3).

Grantor is entitled [under the Settlement or any disposition [to the uses or], upon the trusts thereof, or under any subsidiary Vesting Deed or other like assurance (f)] for any estate in tail male or in tail in possession, or other entailed interest in possession :

Habendum.

To hold unto the Trustee, in fee simple, discharged from all estates in tail male or in tail, or other entailed interests of the Grantor [under the Settlement or any such disposition as aforesaid,(f)] and all estates, rights, interests and powers to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of such estates or interests in tail male or in tail or any of them, and so discharged In trust for the Grantor in fee simple or absolutely.(g)

Assignment of money and other pure personalty.(h)

2. The Grantor hereby conveys and disposes of unto the Trustee:

All and singular the money and investments mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto, And all other (if any) the money, investments and other personal estate (not being chattels real hereinbefore conveyed, but including any entailed chattels) which, or the proceeds of which, are or may be liable to be settled [Upon the trusts of the Settlement, or] on the Grantor

---

Variation where no recitals.

(f) The words in square brackets will come out if no recitals are used and it is intended to bar generally any estate tail to which the grantor may be entitled.

Stamp under Fin. Act, 1910.

(g) No new estate except a fee simple or a base fee must be created, otherwise the ad valorem stamp imposed by Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, will become payable.

Leaseholds for years.

Leaseholds for years, under the old practice, would have vested in the tenant in tail in possession of full age, and no disentailing assurance was required in regard to them, but they can now be entailed.

Money liable to be invested in land to be settled had to be disentailed (old law).

(h) Lands to be sold, where the money arising from the sale thereof was liable to be primarily invested in the purchase of land to be settled (so that any person, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein) and also money liable to be invested in the purchase of land to be settled (so that any person, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein) had to be disentailed under the old law, and they were, for that purpose, considered subject to the same estates as the lands to be purchased would, if purchased, have been actually subject to. But where the property consisted of leaseholds for years held on trust for sale, the proceeds to be invested in freeholds, or of money, such leaseholds or money were, if and when disentailed (in favour of the person for whose benefit the disentailing disposition was made) treated as personal estate: F. & R. Act, 1833, s. 71 ; and see Carson, 2nd ed., 313 ; but s. 71 did not convert disentailed money into personal estate for all purposes, but merely directed that the property should be treated as personal estate for the purposes of the form of a disentailing deed : Re Dickson's S. E. [1921], 2 Ch. 103 ; 90 L. J. Ch. 453. Now all personal estate which is entailed should (if so required) be disentailed ; it is on the same footing as real estate.

New law.

for any estate in tail male or in tail in possession, or other entailed interest in possession :

Habendum.

To HOLD unto the Trustee absolutely (i) discharged from all estates in tail male or in tail, or other entailed interests of the Grantor, [under the Settlement or any such disposition as aforesaid,(j)] and from all estates, rights, interests and powers to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of such estates in tail male or in tail or other entailed interests or any of them, And also discharged from all liability to investment in the purchase of lands and so discharged, IN TRUST for the Grantor absolutely as personal estate.

(i) If there are family charges these should be charged primarily on the land in exoneration of the personal estate.

(j) See note (f), supra.

Enfranchised lands.

(k) Only dealings with legal estates have to be produced to Stewards of Manors, under L. P. Act, 1922, s. 129, hence disentailing deeds need not be so produced, but any consequential assent must be produced within the six months.

Local Deeds Registries.

Though the land may be within the jurisdiction of the Middlesex or Yorkshire Registries a memorial will not be registered as no legal estate passes : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 11 ; though the consequential assent should be so registered.

Advowsons.

As neither a legal estate nor a beneficial interest passes, the deed merely operating to enlarge the entailed interests into fee simple or absolute interests, semble notwithstanding the definition "creating any . . . interest" in the Benefices Act, 1898, the deed need not as regards advowsons be registered within one month under that Act, though it may be safer to do so, but the assent, which will transfer a legal estate, should, when made, be so registered.

Dispositions by Will.

A tenant in tail in possession can dispose by Will of entailed interests which he could have disentailed : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 176, subject to complying with that section.

(l) See Preliminary Notes and notes to last Precedent.

As to leaseholds and heirlooms.

The leaseholds and heirlooms, if settled in accordance with the practice advocated in the 21st edition (see Forms Nos. 36 and 47, pp. 534 and 540,

F. B., of, &c. (tenant for life) (hereinafter called the Estate Owner), of the 1st part, A. B., of, &c. (tenant in tail) (hereinafter called the Grantor), the eldest [elder or only] son of the Estate Owner, of the 2nd part, and X., of, &c., and Y., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees),(m) of the 3rd part: WHEREAS:—

Settlement.

(1) By a Deed (hereinafter called the Settlement) dated, &c., and made between, &c. (whereof the Trustees are the present trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925), the manor, park and mansion of P., in the County of D., the advowson of T., the impropriate rectory of M., and other lands and real estate in the same county, were appointed and conveyed (subject to the incumbrances mentioned in the —— Schedule to the Settlement and affecting the premises or parts thereof) To the Use of the said C. G. (a term trustee) for the term of 1,000 years without impeachment of waste, upon certain trusts which have been satisfied, and subject thereto and to rentcharges limited to the Estate Owner during the joint lives of himself and his father, the said W. B. (who died on the —— day of ——), To the Use of the said D. F. (another term trustee) for the term of 100 years if the said W. B. should so long live, without impeachment of waste, upon certain trusts which have also been satisfied, and subject as aforesaid To the Use of the said W. B. during his life, with remainder (subject to a jointure rentcharge limited to the said Mary B. for her life if she should survive the said W. B., which has now ceased by reason of her death on the —— day of ——) To the Use of the Estate Owner during his life without impeachment of waste, with remainder To the Use of the first and other sons of the Estate Owner successively according to seniority in tail male, with remainders over: And the Settlement contained powers for the Estate Owner to appoint a jointure and charge portions for his younger children which in Settlements Real, Vol. II, 21st ed.), would vest in the tenant in tail absolutely subject to the prior life interest if all the freeholds were disentailed and limited to the tenant in tail in fee simple, but they are assigned here to give a power of appointment for effecting the re-settlement; subject to the exercise of this power, the original trusts are kept alive. Under the forms in use, before the scheme advocated in the 21st ed. came to be used, the leaseholds and heirlooms vested in the first tenant in tail who attained twenty-one. Thus, if he died without making a re-settlement it resulted in the leaseholds and heirlooms devolving in a different way to the freeholds.

Formerly vested in first tenant in tail of full age.

(m) The trustees of the settlement are made grantees as they are here given directions as to the future application of the capital money, leaseholds, &c. As disentailing deeds no longer have to be enrolled, there is not the same need for reducing the length of the recitals to the shortest compass, consistently with the story being made clear.

have been partially exercised in the manner appearing in the —— Schedule hereto in favour of Jane B., his present wife, and his younger children by her, and powers to create other charges on the said properties, including a power to raise money by mortgage to be applied in the purchase of land to be conveyed to the uses declared by the Settlement concerning the freehold property thereby settled: And certain properties then copyhold of the Manors of —— (to which the Trustees, as the present trustees of the Settlement, were admitted on the —— day of ——) were directed to be held upon trusts corresponding so far as might be with the limitations of the said freehold properties:

[Special trust settling leaseholds and heirlooms, former practice.]

[And certain leasehold properties held for years and chattels directed to be held as heirlooms, which were by the Settlement vested in the Trustees, were directed to be held on usual trusts to devolve with the said freehold properties, and it was thereby provided that the same should not vest absolutely in any person thereby made tenant in tail by purchase of the freehold premises (i) who died under the age of twenty-one years, or (ii) who died before he became entitled to the actual possession or the receipt of the rents and profits of the said heirlooms and leaseholds, or (iii) who died before the expiration of twenty-one years from the determination of all estates for life preceding his estate in tail male without in either of the two last-mentioned cases having with the consent of the protector of the Settlement (if any) either barred the entail in all the freehold properties for the time being subject to the limitations thereof or declared by deed that the said leasehold properties and heirlooms or any of them should (without prejudice to any prior estate, interest or charge) vest in him absolutely, but that on the death of any such person before attaining an absolutely vested interest in the said leaseholds and heirlooms the same should devolve as if they had been freehold of inheritance and included in the limitations of the freeholds thereinbefore contained(n)]:

Marriage of tenant for life.

Birth of tenant in tail.

(2) On the —— day of —— the Estate Owner married the said Jane B. (then Jane S., Spinster) and there has been issue of the said marriage an eldest son, the Grantor, who was born on the —— day of ——, and two other children:

Variations not required if leaseholds and chattels have vested in tenant in tail.

(n) The references to the leaseholds for years and heirlooms will be varied if they have become absolutely vested in the tenant in tail and a re-settlement is to be made forthwith on his marriage. In any case, however, it is expedient to make them subject to a joint power of appointment as this facilitates a re-settlement.

[Sale and payment into court.(o)]

[(3) In the year —— the Corporation of M., under an Act of Parliament enabling them and incorporating the Lands Clauses Acts, required and took for the purposes of their said Act certain lands, part of the freehold property comprised in the Settlement, and the purchase-money for the same, amounting to £——, was paid into Court under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and invested in Consolidated Stock, part of which has since been sold and the proceeds have been invested in the purchase of lands which have been made subject to the Settlement, and there is now in Court to the Credit of Ex parte, &c., a balance of £—— Consolidated £2 10s. per cent. Stock :]

Sales, &c.

(4) Divers sales and dispositions have been made under the powers conferred by the Settled Land Acts, and with the money arising thereby, and with money raised for the purpose under the power contained in the Settlement, other lands have been purchased and made subject to the Settlement, and there now remain in the hands of the Trustees the investments and money mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto liable to be invested in the purchase of land to be made subject to the Settlement :

Statutory vesting in tenant for life.

(5) By virtue of the First Schedule to the Law of Property Act, 1925, all the real estate and chattels real subject to the limitations of the Settlement became vested in the Estate Owner upon the trusts of that Settlement :

Principal vesting deed.

(6) By a Vesting Deed dated, &c., and made between the Trustees of the one part and the Estate Owner of the other part, it was declared that the said real estate and chattels real were vested in the Estate Owner on the trusts of the Settlement and the Trustees were thereby declared to be the trustees of the Settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925 :

Subsidiary vesting deeds.

(7) Since the date of the said Vesting Deed other real estate and chattels real have been acquired with capital money held on the trusts of the Settlement and by Subsidiary Vesting Deeds have been conveyed to the Estate Owner to be held on the trusts of the Settlement :

Desire to disentail.

(8) The Estate Owner and the Grantor are desirous of executing such Disentailing Assurance as is hereinafter contained :

Payments into court.

(o) Compensation money on a compulsory purchase will seldom be paid into court after 1924 : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 42 (7) ; and see S. L. Act, 1925, s. 76, as to money in court.

NOW, in consideration of the premises, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Conveyance.

1. THE Grantor (with the consent of the Estate Owner, as protector of the Settlement, testified by his execution hereof) hereby conveys and disposes of, and the Estate Owner as to his life interest in the property hereby also (p) conveys, releases and confirms unto the Trustees :

Parcels, entailed real estate and chattels real.

ALL the manors or lordships, reputed manors or lordships, advowsons, rectories, messuages, lands, minerals, rents, tithes, rentcharges in lieu of tithes, easements, rights, privileges, and other real estate (including enfranchised lands) and chattels real or any interest therein (q) comprised in or expressed to be assured by the Settlement or by any vesting instrument made in relation thereto and now remaining unsold, or which by purchase, exchange, allotment or by any other means have become and are now subject to the subsisting limitations or trusts of the Settlement :

Habendum.

Exoneration.

TO HOLD unto the Trustees in fee simple or absolutely SUBJECT [(exclusively and in exoneration of the money and investments hereinafter mentioned and assigned (r))] to the family charges

---

(p) The tenant for life should convey in order that the joint power of appointment may overreach the life interest which, subject to any exercise of the power, is restored.

Creation of entailed interests in leaseholds acquired with capital money.

Where, after 1925, capital money is laid out in the purchase of leaseholds, the subsidiary vesting deed will declare that they are to be held on the same trusts as the land comprised in the principal vesting deed ; though this may include leaseholds, which have become vested absolutely in the tenant in tail subject to the life interest, still if the capital money was entailed as arising from or being primarily liable to be laid out in the purchase of freeholds (S. L. Act, 1925, s. 75 (5)) or was held on the same trusts as if it had arisen from freeholds : ib., s. 78 (4), semble, the tenant in tail will (L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130 (3)) take an entailed interest and not an absolute interest in the leaseholds. The point does not arise where the settlement is made after 1925, and all the land (leasehold as well as freehold) is entailed.

Parcels in disentailing deeds.

(q) A disentailing deed need not contain any specific description of the property ; in fact it is better omitted, as useful information is given facilitating loans to the son on his reversion without the consent of the father.

Advowsons.

No estate is created in any advowson, hence the deed need not be registered under the Benefices Act, 1898.

Stamp ; Fin. Act, 1910.

On no account must any new estate (except a fee simple) be created by a disentailing deed, otherwise an ad valorem stamp will be required under Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74. The joint power of appointment does not create a new estate.

When the family charges should be charged primarily on the land.

(r) If the estates are large and personal funds small, this exoneration enables the court and the trustees to part with these funds safely and properly notwithstanding the charge of jointure and portions, the duties, if any, being commuted. Where the capital money is disentailed, to be held in trust for the tenant in tail absolutely, these words are required, but not, as mentioned in the —— Schedule hereto and also SUBJECT to such of the legal incumbrances mentioned in the —— Schedule to the Settlement [to the Vesting Deed of even date with the Settlement] as now remain undischarged and to the legal incumbrances created under the statutory powers [as extended by the Settlement] and now subsisting, BUT freed from the life interest of the Estate Owner under the Settlement and all powers of charging and other powers annexed to or exercisable during the continuance of such life interest, AND ALSO freed from the interest in tail male of the Grantor, under the Settlement, and all other interests in tail male or in tail (if any) of the Grantor, or the Estate Owner, and all estates, interests, rights and powers to take effect after the determination or in defeasance of such entailed interests or any of them, and so subject and freed :

Incumbrances.

(3) AND in default of and until and subject to any such appointment, Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions which immediately before the execution hereof were subsisting with respect to the premises hereby expressed to be conveyed and so as to restore the same.(t)

(s) The power of appointment for the survivor will only be required when a re-settlement of the land is postponed till the son's marriage, the capital money only being settled in the first instance.

(t) This restoration trust takes effect under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 22 (1). No new interest is created. The effect is that the old interests remain on foot subject to letting in the new powers of appointment. The word " restoration " is not very apt, for the old interests are never destroyed ; compare Parr v. A.-G. [1926], A. C. 239, in regard to the old law and article in 69 Sol. J. 207.

As to leaseholds and heirlooms.

(w) No declaration as to the leaseholds and heirlooms will be required if they have absolutely vested in the tenant in tail or if they were entailed under the new law.

Effect if freeholds limited to tenant in tail in fee simple.

If instead of taking a power of appointment all the freeholds are, subject to the life estate, limited to the tenant in tail in fee simple, then this would operate under the special trusts recommended in Vol. II of the 21st ed. of this book, without any declaration, to vest the leaseholds and heirlooms in the tenant in tail, subject to the life interest.

Entailed leaseholds and heirlooms.

If the leaseholds and heirlooms are entailed (as would usually be the case where the settlement is made after 1925) then the entailed interests should be barred, the leaseholds will be included in clause 1 with the other land, and the heirlooms will be included in clause 2 with other entailed personal estate.

When a base fee or an equivalent interest in land has been enlarged, the owner must obtain the legal estate in the land from the representatives of the deceased tenant for life. They will, if there are no subsisting family charges, execute an absolute assent, subject to being satisfied that the duties will be provided for. But if (cf. S. L. Act, 1925, s. 17) they have notice of an equitable charge, they will see that legal effect is given thereto, or that it is protected by registration of a land charge, or by deposit of documents, or that the chargee consents to the assent being made. If they have notice of a derivative settlement they will see that legal effect is given thereto by assenting to the land vesting in the tenant for life or statutory owner on the requisite trusts. If they have notice of a trust for sale they will assent to the land vesting in the trustees upon trust for sale. If, on the other hand, any family charges remain on foot under the original settlement, they will execute a vesting assent, nominating the S. L. Act trustees, unless the settlement has come to an end by reason of the creation of a trust for sale, in which case the assent will be to the trustees on trust for sale. If the trustees for sale have been approved by the court, or are a trust corporation, they will be able to overreach the family charges. There is no need for the trustees for sale to be approved by the court, or for a trust corporation to be appointed, if the trustees for sale were the former S. L. Act trustees; they ipso facto obtain the overreaching powers: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36 (2); L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926; Sch., amending L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (3).

DIVISION III.

APPOINTMENTS OF NEW OR ADDITIONAL TRUSTEES, DISCLAIMERS BY EXECUTORS AND TRUSTEES, DISCHARGES OF TRUSTEES (WHERE NEW TRUSTEES ARE NOT APPOINTED), ASSENTS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS RELATING TO THE WINDING UP OF TRUSTS AND ESTATES.

Section I.

APPOINTMENTS OF NEW OR ADDITIONAL TRUSTEES.

Preliminary Note.

Precautions to be taken by trustees before accepting office.

Before new trustees accept office they should require to be furnished with a copy of the instrument creating the trust and an account showing the dealings with the funds. If a re-settlement of land has been made in which additional powers are conferred, it may be expedient to ask for a supplemental vesting instrument to be made to bring the story up-to-date in regard to the land, so as to comply with S. L. Act, 1925, s. 18. The intending trustees should satisfy themselves that everything is in order, otherwise, after their appointment, they may find that breaches of trust have been committed by their predecessors in office, necessitating proceedings for the protection of the new trustees. It is also advisable for new trustees to retain a copy of the trust instrument (if any) for purposes of reference—e.g., when a change of investment is requested, for ascertaining whether the particular investment is authorised.

Preparation of appointments of new trustees.

It is the practice to make appointments of new trustees supplemental to the instrument (if any) creating the trust and any previous appointments, and to avoid lengthy recitals so far as possible. In many cases it is found advisable to show by schedules the previous dealings with the trust property (e.g., where proper accounts have not been kept and it is desired to place them on record, especially in the case of the first appointment of new trustees of a Will); in the case of subsequent appointments the story will be taken up from the last appointment. Reference should be made, by the use of schedules or otherwise, to the actual state of the property at the date of the appointment, this, however, may be useless in the case of realty settlements and Wills, for the appointment does not come on the title.

Separate instruments when required.

Trusts for sale.

Memorandum.

If land is held on trust for sale and the trusts of the proceeds are not declared by the instrument creating the trust for sale, there must be two instruments, first, the appointment of new trustees of the conveyance or assent on trust for sale, and secondly, of the settlement, will or other instrument declaring the trusts of the proceeds of sale and of the rents and profits until sale: T. Act, 1925, s. 35 (1), but the same persons must be appointed to be trustees of the conveyance or assent as become the trustees of the proceeds of sale: ib. A purchaser is not, however, concerned to see that the proper persons are appointed trustees of the conveyance or assent: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 24. A memorandum of the appointment must be endorsed on the conveyance or assent on trust for sale: T. Act, 1925, s. 35 (3). If the trusts of the proceeds are declared by the same instrument as that which creates the trust for sale (e.g., where the trust for sale is implied by law owing to the land being conveyed to persons beneficially as joint tenants or as tenants in common) then only one deed of appointment will be required. Where there are two deeds, only that which relates to the trust for sale becomes a title deed, the other relates to equitable interests. But a purchaser is not concerned with the trusts affecting the proceeds of sale or the rents, whether or not those trusts are declared by the instrument whereby the trust for sale is created: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27. Again, in the case of settled land, there must be two instruments, first, the appointment of new S. L. Act trustees of the will, deed, or other instruments creating the settlement or compound settlement (this relates to equitable interests or trust instruments), and secondly, a deed supplemental to the last or only principal vesting instrument declaring that the persons therein named (being the S. L. Act trustees of the trust instrument, e.g., in the case of a compound settlement of that settlement) are the S. L. Act trustees of the settlement: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 35 (1) and (2). Also, a memorandum of the names and addresses of the persons who are for the time being the S. L. Act trustees must be endorsed on the last or only principal vesting instrument in accordance with T. Act, 1925, s. 35 (2).

Memorandum

Persons to make the appointment (express powers).

If the settlement or Will contains an express power of appointment, it should be recited, and the appointment expressed to be made in exercise of it. If certain persons are merely nominated to appoint new trustees, the appointment will be made by them under the statutory power: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1) (a); unless it is necessary to apply to the court under s. 41 of that Act or s. 34 of the S. L. Act, 1925. A simple power for a named person to appoint new trustees brings s. 36 of the T. Act, 1925, into force, though the power may also operate as a substantive power.

Additional statutory powers to appoint or constitute new trustees.

In addition to the powers to appoint new or additional trustees conferred by T. Act, 1925, ss. 36 and 37, the following special powers are conferred:—

Undivided shares in proceeds.

(1) Persons absolutely entitled in undivided shares to proceeds of sale of land may require the land to be conveyed to not more than four of themselves on trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3 (1) (ii) proviso.

Infants under a partition.

(2) Trustees for sale, when effecting a partition, can constitute themselves trustees for sale of land retained for an infant: ib., s. 28 (4).

Dispositions in undivided shares or to joint tenants.

(3) Dispositions of land in undivided shares or to joint tenants (not holding the land as settled or charity land) create trusts for sale: ib., ss. 34–36 (of these ss. 35 and 36 are amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.); 1st Sch., Pt. IV (as amended in regard to para. 1 (4) (iii) and by inserting a new para. 4 by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.), and S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36.

Parents or guardians of infant beneficiary may appoint, when.

(4) Where a legal estate formerly vested in an infant and other persons or another person of full age, becomes vested in one person as trustee, and no other person is able or willing to do so, the parents or guardians of the infant may appoint an additional trustee: L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. III, para. 2. See also S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 3 (1) (iv) (appointment of S. L. Act trustees in place of Public Trustee).

Infant former trustee or mortgagee (Public Trustee).

(5) Where a legal estate held by an infant as a trustee or personal representative or mortgagee vests in the Public Trustee, and no other person is able or willing to make the appointment, the parents or guardians may appoint new trustees in place of the Public Trustee: L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. III, para. 3 (i).

Infant's trust or mortgage estate (vesting in co-owner).

(6) Where an infant's trust or mortgage estate becomes vested in a sole co-trustee or co-mortgagee, and no other person is able and willing to make the appointment, the parents or guardians may appoint new trustees in place of the infant: ib., para. 4, proviso. Mortgage terms are not held on trust for sale: ib., s. 34 (2) proviso.

Settled land (held in shares)

(7) Where settled land comes to be held in undivided shares, and vests, in the absence of S. L. Act trustees, in the Public Trustee, the persons having vesting in Public Trustee.

power under the settlement to appoint new trustees can appoint trustees who will displace the Public Trustee: ib., Pt. IV, para. 3 (v). In view of the amendment to S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31 (L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Schedule), this can seldom happen, save where trustees disclaim.

In place of Public Trustee (undivided shares generally).

(8) In other cases where land, held in undivided shares, vested in the Public Trustee, the persons interested (e.g., trustees for sale of a share, see Darlington v. D. (1926), W. N. 192) in more than an undivided moiety of the land or of the income thereof may appoint new trustees in place of the Public Trustee, with the consent of any incumbrancers of undivided shares: ib., para. 4 (iii).

Infant entitled under a Will or intestacy (personal representatives).

(9) Where under a Will or an intestacy an infant becomes beneficially entitled to an interest in property, not given to trustees, then the personal representatives may appoint a trust corporation, or two or more individuals not exceeding four, to be trustees of the property: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 42.

Number of trustees to be appointed.

Not more than four trustees of land held in trust for sale (not including charity land), nor more than four S. L. Act trustees can be appointed after 1925; those appointed before 1926 can continue to act, but the number must not be increased: T. Act, 1925, s. 34. Subject to this vacancies may be filled up either by appointing, e.g., three new trustees in place of three, or two in place of three, and the number may be increased up to four or separate trustees appointed in respect of particular funds. A trustee cannot be discharged unless there will be at least two trustees or a trust corporation left to perform the trust: T. Act, 1925, s. 39. That Act does not authorise the appointment of a sole trustee, not being a trust corporation, where the trustee would not (see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2) as amended; S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 18 (1) (c), 94, 95), when appointed be able to give valid receipts for capital: T. Act, 1925, s. 37 (2).

Vesting declaration (implied).

Separate transfers.

It must be considered whether the implied vesting declaration should be negatived: T. Act, 1925, s. 40. This depends on the class of property. As a rule it should not be negatived. The legal estates or interests in land held by way of mortgage as an investment or a leasehold interest which would, for want of licence to assign, be forfeited, or shares, stocks, &c., transferable only in books kept by a company or other body or in manner directed by statute, are not capable of being vested by a vesting declaration and must be separately transferred: ib., s. 40 (4).

Vesting of property without the aid of a trustee abroad or a lunatic.

A vesting declaration operates like a legal power of appointment under the old law enabling the appointors, &c., to vest property which stands in the names of others: the operation thereof is saved: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 9. This is of particular use when the trustee who is discharged is out of the United Kingdom or a lunatic. A vesting declaration (express or implied) is necessary in the case of things in action, e.g., where the instrument creating the trust contains a covenant to settle after-acquired property, as it passes the legal right to sue. In the case of a strict settlement it will seldom be required save in connexion with things in action and heirlooms, for the land will be held by the tenant for life.

Appointment of S. L. Act trustees who are statutory owners.

But where S. L. Act trustees are acting as statutory owners (S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 23 and 26) the legal estate in the settled land would be vested in them. Hence, when a new trustee is appointed or a trustee is discharged, it must be seen that the legal estate is conveyed by a vesting deed to the trustees who are to act. In such cases the power to appoint new trustees will generally be vested in the surviving or continuing trustees or their representatives (T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1) (b)), but if it is vested in a named person, then, when he appoints new S. L. Act trustees, the implied vesting declaration should be negatived as respects the settled land if a separate conveyance of the legal estate can be effected by a vesting deed. It should be similarly negatived when the surviving trustees make the appointment.

Vesting orders.

The Court has power to make vesting orders under T. Act, 1925, ss. 44–46; on an application by summons: O. 55, r. 14A; such orders can now be made though the new trustees have been appointed out of court: ib., ss. 44 (i), 51 (1) (i); thus meeting the decision in Re Dewhirst (1886), 33 Ch. D. 416; 55 L. J. Ch. 842. For other powers to make vesting orders, see L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 3 (5) (giving legal effect to equitable interests), 9 (legal effect of vesting orders), 30 (when trustees for sale refuse to act), 50 (on discharge of incumbrances), 90 and 91 (on sale of mortgaged property), 133 (as disentailing assurance on behalf of infant), 146 (4) (relief against forfeiture), 171 (1) (lunatic's settlement), 181 (on dissolution of corporation); S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 12 (of settled land or land formerly settled), 16 (giving effect to equitable interests); Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 43 (as against personal representatives). The power to re-create a legal estate when a corporation is dissolved is required where it was a trust estate.

Declaration of trust seldom added to an appointment of new trustees.

In some cases a declaration of trust on the part of the new trustees is inserted. The effect of this is to make them specialty debtors in the event of a breach of trust being committed, thus extending the time from six to twenty years within which proceedings can be instituted against them: T. Act, 1888, s. 8. Hence, a declaration of trust should only be inserted where its effect will be to place the new trustees on the same footing as their predecessors. In the case of an appointment of new trustees of a Will it should not be added, for there the former trustees were never bound by executing a deed. In the case of a settlement, if the former trustees executed, it may be added if desired, but is generally omitted.

Execution of express powers.

Where an appointment is made under an express power it should be seen that all the prescribed formalities are complied with. In some old settlements the attestation of two witnesses is required.

Stamps.

By the Stamp Act, 1891, an appointment of a new trustee is made liable to a stamp duty of 10*s.*, and s. 62 provides that every instrument and every decree or order of any court or of any commissioners whereby any property on any occasion, except a sale or mortgage, is transferred to or vested in any person, is chargeable with duty as a conveyance or transfer of property subject to a proviso that a conveyance or transfer made for effectuating the appointment of a new trustee is not to be charged with any higher duty than 10*s.*, see Massereene v. I. R. Commissioners [1900], 2 Ir. R. 138. By the Finance Act, 1902, s. 9, this provision is made to apply to a conveyance or transfer for effectuating the retirement of a trustee, though no new trustee is appointed.

Notice of trust on transfer of mortgage.

Under the L. P. Act, 1925, s. 112, the fact that a transfer of a mortgage bears a 10*s.* stamp does not give notice of a trust, though, if the transfer had been for value, the stamp would have exceeded 10*s.*, e.g., where the mortgage debt transferred exceeds £2,000. It is difficult to see how Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74, could be properly applied to a transfer of a mortgage. Actual notice of the trust is no longer material apart from fraud: ib., s. 113. If an instrument contains an appointment of a new trustee, and also a conveyance of the trust property, it requires two stamps of 10*s.* each: Hadgett v. I. R. Commissioners (1877), 3 Ex. D. 46.

Stamp.

A vesting declaration (T. Act, 1925, s. 40) similarly attracts an additional stamp of 10*s.*, though at present the Inland Revenue do not claim a stamp for an implied vesting declaration.

Evidence as to vacancy in a trust.

Certain recitals in appointments of new trustees are made conclusive evidence in favour of a purchaser of a legal estate: T. Act, 1925, s. 38; similar statements in a deed declaring who are the S. L. Act Trustees are made conclusive evidence in favour of a purchaser of a legal estate: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 35 (3).

Married woman trustee.

The objections against a married woman being appointed to be a trustee have been removed: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 170.

New law as to trustees.

Generally, as to the new law relating to trustees, see Chap. I, supra.

Power for appointors to appoint themselves as new trustees on a vacancy.

(a) See T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1), which gives power for the persons nominated for the purpose, or if none or no person is able and willing to act, for the surviving or continuing trustees or the personal representatives of the last surviving or continuing trustee, by writing, to appoint one or more other persons (whether or not being the persons exercising the power) to be trustees in the place of the trustee dying, remaining out of the United Kingdom, desiring to be discharged, refusing or being unfit, or being incapable, or being an infant. This is old law, save that the appointors can now appoint themselves and can make appointments in place of infants. As to infants being unable to act as trustees or personal representatives: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 20; 1st Sch., paras. 3 and 4 (vesting of trust and mortgage estates of infants); Jud. Act, 1925, s. 165 (power to grant probate to an infant only after he attains twenty-one).

In place of infants.

Additional trustees; there being no vacancy.

T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (6), gives power to appoint additional trustees though there may be no vacancy, semble, the appointors may not be able to appoint themselves to be additional trustees: Re Sampson [1906], 1 Ch. 435; the number may not be increased beyond four. The power to appoint additional trustees is optional save where the trust instrument or a statute (see, e.g., S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30 (3)) requires an additional trustee to be appointed. Though under s. 36 (6) the donees may not be able to appoint themselves this does not apply to an appointment "in place of" the Public Trustee, see L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (4) (iii), as amended.

Evidence of vacancy.

As to evidence of a vacancy in the trust: T. Act, 1925, s. 38, also S. L. Act, 1925, s. 35.

Appointment in place of a lunatic or defective.

If an appointment is made in the place of a lunatic or defective who has some beneficial interest in the property, then leave to make the appointment by a continuing trustee must be obtained in lunacy: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (9). As to a statement that he was not entitled to a beneficial interest: ib., s. 38 (1).

Retirement of a trustee.

(c) Where a trustee retires and a new trustee is appointed in his place, all that is necessary is a recital of the desire to retire, the retiring trustee being made a party to be bound by the recital; where, however, a trustee is discharged and no new trustee appointed, then the retirement must be effected in the operative part: T. Act, 1925, ss. 39, 40 (2), with the concurrence of the other parties. In order that a retiring trustee should obtain a good discharge the rule is (apart from ss. 39 and 40) that a new trustee should be appointed in his place.

As to retaining a vacancy.

(d) If it is desired to retain a vacancy in the trust, then the new trustees may be appointed in the place of the retiring trustee only instead of the deceased and retiring trustee. In this case the retiring trustee would not, it seems, be discharged unless a new trustee were appointed in his place. It is no longer essential to retain a vacancy with a view to a future appointment, for an additional trustee can be appointed: T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (6).

The Appointors (g) hereby declare that all chattels and also the right to recover and receive all debts and other things in action subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed (other than the mortgage debts mentioned in the Schedule hereto which are to be separately transferred as aforesaid) shall forthwith vest in the said C. (f) If the settlement contains an express power, the appointment should be made under it. If the power merely nominates persons to exercise the statutory powers, the Act may be referred to as well.

Implied vesting declaration.

(ff) The vesting declaration is required to pass the legal right to sue on the covenant for the settlement of after-acquired property. It is conceived that the words in brackets relating to the mortgage debts are not essential, as the recital shows that the mortgage debts are to be separately transferred. It is safer to allow the vesting declaration to be implied under s. 40, as this avoids any question as to its being made by the right parties or in the right form. An express Declaration is given to show what form would be applicable. An additional stamp of 10*s*. is required for an express vesting declaration; the Inland Revenue do not claim a stamp for an implied declaration.

Who make the express vesting declaration.

(g) Where no new or additional trustee is appointed, then the vesting declaration must be made by the persons having the power to appoint new trustees, by the continuing trustees, and by the trustee who is discharged: T. Act, 1925, s. 40 (2); the expression "new" trustee includes an additional trustee: ib., s. 68 (17), hence, in other cases, the persons having power to appoint new or additional trustees alone make the declaration: ib., s. 40 (1).

Trustee abroad.

Bankrupt trustee.

A bankrupt is a person "unfit to act" within the T. Act, 1925, s. 36: Re Barker (1875), 1 Ch. D. 43; 45 L. J. Ch. 52; Re Adams (1879), 12 Ch. D. 634; 48 L. J. Ch. 613; Re Hopkins (1881), 19 Ch. D. 61, 63; and see Re Wheeler and De Rochow [1896], 1 Ch. 315; 65 L. J. Ch. 219, disapproved of but followed in Re Sichel [1916], 1 Ch. 358; 85 L. J. Ch. 285. The court can appoint a trustee in place of a bankrupt under s. 41, see first two mentioned cases: Re Betts (1897), 41 Sol. J. 209; Re Fitzherbert (1898), W. N. 58; Re Dawson (1899), W. N. 134. The legal estate or interest in the trust property remains in the bankrupt, but can be transferred to the new trustees by vesting declaration, express or implied, or by vesting order, ib., ss. 44 and 51.

Lunatic trustee.

A lunatic is a person "incapable of acting" within the meaning of T. Act, 1925, s. 36: Re Lemann (1883), 22 Ch. D. 633; 52 L. J. Ch. 560; Re Blake (1887), W. N. 173; Re Cutler (1895), 39 Sol. J. 484; and a vesting declaration can be made. Under ss. 128 and 129 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, the Judge in Lunacy can authorise the committee of a lunatic to exercise a power of appointing new trustees on behalf of a lunatic, and a vesting order formerly could be made under s. 129 of the same Act: Re Shortridge [1895], 1 Ch. 278; 64 L. J. Ch. 191. Under T. Act, 1925, s. 54 (replacing and amending Lunacy Act, 1922, s. 2 (3)–(5)), where the High Court has power to make orders under that Act in relation to lunatics and defectives who are trustees, the Judge or Master in Lunacy is not to have power to make the order, save that in the four cases mentioned in that section the court or the Judge or Master in Lunacy may have concurrent jurisdiction under the L. C.'s rules. The four cases are (1) Where the lunatic has become a trustee by reason of payment off of a mortgage; (2) An order in lunacy is made authorising a power to appoint a trustee to be exercised; (3) Or an order is made for giving effect to a contract by a lunatic; (4) Or the lunatic is entitled to some beneficial interest. See 2 Wolst. & Cherry, 11th ed.

Concurrent jurisdiction.

Repeals.

The Lunacy Act, 1890, ss. 135 to 138, so far as they relate to lunatic trustees, except where concurrent jurisdiction is given as above, and Lunacy Act, 1911, s. 1, have been repealed: T. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch.

Vesting orders in lunacy.

Applications in lunacy for vesting orders should be made by summons, unless a petition is directed to be presented by the Judge or Master: Lunacy Rule of 29th October, 1900, see W. N. 1900, Part II, 298. The above remarks apply in cases where a lunatic is so found or not.

Receiver to act in place of committee.

An order may be made under Lunacy Act, 1908, s. 1, authorising the receiver of a lunatic not so found to do any act which the committee of a lunatic so found could have done.

Purchase of land out of Husband's Trust Fund under a power.(j)

(4) The sum of £——, being money forming part of the Husband's Trust Fund, has been invested, with the consent of the Appointor [and F. B.], in the purchase and in paying the costs of the purchase of a messuage and property situated at, &c., and which by a Deed (hereinafter called the Conveyance) dated, &c., and made, &c., were conveyed to the then trustees of the Principal Deed in fee simple upon trust for sale, the net proceeds to be held upon the trusts declared by the Principal Deed of money forming part of the Husband's Trust Fund:

State of residue of investments originally representing Husband's Trust Fund.

(5) The residue of the investments originally settled upon the trusts of the Husband's Trust Fund is now represented by the investments mentioned in the first part of the First Schedule hereto, which are standing in the joint names of the said A. T. and C. T.:

Purchase of land in breach of trust and intention to vest it in the new and continuing Trustees.

(j) (4) The sum of £——, being money forming part of the Husband's Trust Fund, has been invested at the request of the Appointor [and F. B.], but in breach of trust, in the purchase and in paying the costs of the purchase of a messuage and property situated at, &c., and which by a Deed (hereinafter called the Conveyance) dated, &c., and made, &c., were conveyed to the then trustees of the Principal Deed on trust for sale without disclosing any trust of the proceeds of sale, and it is intended that the same messuage and property shall by an Appointment already prepared and intended to bear even date herewith be vested in the said C. T., and the New Trustees, in fee simple and as joint tenants upon the trusts of the Conveyance, and that the New Trustees shall be appointed to be new trustees of the Conveyance to act jointly with the said C. T. for the purposes thereof (see Prec. IV, p. 443, and note thereto).

Separate appointment to keep the trusts of the proceeds off the title to the land.

Where the land is not originally conveyed on trust for sale.

If the land was simply conveyed to the trustees in fee simple, and not on trust for sale, without any trusts being disclosed or declared, the position would be the same as the trustees would hold on trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 36.

Effect of trust for sale as regards death duties.

When land is conveyed on trust for sale a purchaser does not require evidence of payment of duties on the death of a trustee dying before 1926. As to the protection of purchasers from a charge for death duties arising on a death after 1925, unless a land charge is registered: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 17; L. R. Act, 1925, s. 73.

Effect of purchase in breach of trust.

Continuation of trust for sale.

Under the old law, if land were purchased in breach of trust, without the concurrence of all the beneficiaries, a trust for sale was implied. In favour of a purchaser the trust for sale, whenever created, continues until the land has been conveyed to or under the direction of the persons interested in the proceeds of sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 23; cf. Re Tweedie and Miles (1884), 27 Ch. D. 315; 54 L. J. Ch. 71. But the survivor being solely and beneficially

(7) The investments originally settled upon the trusts of the Wife's Trust Fund are now represented by the mortgage debts mentioned in the first part of the Second Schedule hereto standing in the joint names of the said A. T. and C. T.:

interested can make a title as if there were no trust for sale: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending L. P. Act, 1925, s. 36.

Defective power to purchase land.

Trust "to retain or sell."

If a personalty settlement contains a mere power to purchase lands, freehold ground rents, &c., without stating that they shall be held on trust for sale, with power to postpone, or declaring trusts of the rents till sale, then L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32, as regards settlements coming into operation after 1911 supplies the deficiency; and see Re Crips (1906), 95 L. T. 865, where it was held that a trust "to retain or sell" created a trust for, and not a power of sale; also Re Gent [1905], 1 Ch. 386; 74 L. J. Ch. 333; Re Pope [1911] 2 Ch. 442; 80 L. J. Ch. 692; Re Thursby [1910] 2 Ch. 181; 79 L. J. Ch. 538; Re Johnson [1915] 1 Ch. 435. Per contra, Re Hotchkys (1886), 32 Ch. D. 408. A trust either to retain or sell created after 1925 is construed as a trust for sale with power to postpone: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 25 (4).

Statutory trust for sale.

Section 32 removes the doubt whether the land is subject to a mere power of sale (in which case the tenant for life would make title after a vesting deed had been executed under the S. L. Act) or to a trust for sale (in which case title is made by the persons holding on trust for sale). It also removes the difficulties which existed in case of deaths before 1926 (if the land is not held under an implied trust for sale) by reason of the beneficial trusts being applicable only to personal estate, e.g., absence of words sufficient to transfer the fee simple. The decision in Re Leigh's S. E. (1926), 70 Sol. J. 758, relating to S. L. Act, 1925, s. 20 (1) (viii), is no longer law, for trusts for sale have been taken out of the S. L. Act, 1925, by the amendments made to ss. 1 and 3 by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.; the result is that the words "or until sale of the land" have in effect been repealed. Moreover, all immediate trusts for sale are now "binding" trusts for sale within Leigh's Case: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended; every trust for sale is sufficient subject, where necessary, to the subsequent approval of the trustees, it is no longer necessary that the trust should be created ad hoc, though this can still be done.

Trusts for sale ad hoc.

Intention to appoint new trustees.

(11) The Appointor is desirous of appointing the New Trustees to be trustees of the Principal Deed in the place of the said D. T. (deceased) and A. T., who is abroad as aforesaid :

Intention to transfer mortgage debts and other investments.

(12) It is intended that the said mortgage debts (k) and the interest thereon and the securities for the same shall as soon as practicable be transferred, with the other investments mentioned in the Schedules hereto, into the joint names of the said C. T. and the New Trustees :

Intention to appoint new trustees of Conveyance on trust for sale.(l)

(13) It is also intended that by a Deed bearing even date herewith, and made between the same parties and in the same order as the parties hereto, the New Trustees shall under a power for that purpose conferred by the Conveyance be appointed trustees thereof in the place of the said D. T. and A. T., and that the said Deed of even date shall contain a proper declaration (express or implied) for vesting in the said C. T. and the New Trustees the messuage and property comprised in the Conveyance upon the trusts declared by the Conveyance :

NOW, for effectuating the said desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Principal Deed [by the Trustee Act, 1925], and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appointment of new trustees.

1. THE Appointor hereby appoints the New Trustees to be trustees of the Principal Deed in the place of the said D. T. (deceased) and of the said A. T., who is abroad as aforesaid, and to act jointly with the said C. T. for all the purposes of the Principal Deed.

Implied vesting declaration.

2. THE requisite vesting declaration shall be implied, but this shall not extend to the mortgage debts mentioned in the Second

---

Where separate appointment of new trustees of the mortgage deeds or transfers are required.

(k) If the mortgage debts were created in favour of or assigned to the trustees at the time of the marriage, then the new trustees must, by a separate instrument (see Prec. VI, p. 448), be appointed trustees of the mortgage deed or transfer of mortgage. Before the appointment of new trustees is prepared arrangements must be made with the trustee abroad for the execution of the transfers. Otherwise, if he refuses to execute, it will be necessary to obtain a vesting order from the court : Re Struve (1912), 56 Sol. J. 551. It is no longer necessary, in order to bring the jurisdiction of the court into play, that the appointment of new trustees should be made by the court : T. Act, 1925, ss. 44 and 51.

Separate transfers of investments and mortgage debts.

Appointment of trustees for sale of land.

(l) See Prec. IV, p. 443. The new trustees of the conveyance must not be appointed by this deed : T. Act, 1925, s. 35. The persons having power to appoint trustees of the conveyance on trust for sale are bound to appoint as trustees thereof the same persons who are trustees of the settlement declaring the trusts of the proceeds of sale : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 24 ; but a purchaser is not concerned to see that the proper persons have been appointed to be trustees of the conveyance on trust for sale.

Schedule hereto (to be separately transferred as aforesaid) nor to the land to be comprised in the intended Appointment of even date herewith.

[Express vesting declaration of reversionary interest and other things in action.]

[Or 2. THE Appointor hereby declares that the right to receive the reversionary interest settled by F. B. in the Principal Deed and all chattels, and also the right to recover and receive all debts and other things in action (except the mortgage debts intended to be separately transferred as aforesaid) subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed, shall forthwith vest in the said C. T. and the New Trustees for all the estate or interest formerly vested in the said A. T. and C. THIS APPOINTMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN C. T., of, &c. (the continuing Trustee), of the one part, and N. T., of, &c., and N. N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustees), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Settlement.

(1) This Deed is supplemental to a Settlement (hereinafter called the Principal Deed) dated, &c., and made between A. B., of, &c. (since deceased), of the 1st part, F. A., Spinster (since deceased, afterwards and hereinafter called F. B.), of the 2nd part, and X. T., Y. T., and Z. "Continuing trustee."

(m) See T. Act, 1925, s. 36. A continuing trustee is one who is to continue to act after the appointment is executed: Re Coates to Parsons (1887), 34 Ch. D. 370; 56 L. J. Ch. 242.

Who have power to appoint trustees and who may be appointed.

(n) The words in s. 36, "person or persons nominated for the purpose of appointing new trustees by the instrument creating the trust," refer to the persons nominated either generally or for the purpose of appointing new trustees in the particular event which has happened: Re Wheeler and De Rochow [1896], 1 Ch. 315; 65 L. J. Ch. 219; Re Sichel [1916], 1 Ch. 358; 85 L. J. Ch. 285. Hence, where persons are nominated to appoint in particular instances and the instance in question is not covered by the instrument, but is so covered by the T. Act, 1925, the appointment must be made by the trustees under the statutory power, and not by the persons nominated: S. C. The donees of the statutory power of appointment can appoint themselves under sub-s. (1) to be new trustees, but not, it seems, under sub-s. (6) to be additional trustees, though, if they refuse to make any appointment, there is nothing to prevent the trustees for the time being from appointing the named donees to be additional trustees.

Trustee nominated dying before testator. Executor intending to renounce.

(o) See T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (8). The words "nominated trustee but dying before the testator" in this sub-section do not enable the personal representatives of a person nominated trustee but dying before the testator to appoint under sub-s. (1): Nicholson v. Field [1893], 2 Ch. 511; 62 L. J. Ch. 1015. But an executor intending to renounce probate, can, before renunciation, appoint new trustees, without thereby accepting the office of executor: ib., s. 36 (5).

(p) This recital will be omitted if the appointment is made on other grounds, in which case it will be recited, e.g., that the donees of the power are unwilling to act. They should then be made parties to admit the statement; this recital is not made conclusive evidence by T. Act, 1925, s. 38.

Indefeasible interests.

(q) If all the children have attained indefeasible vested interests, their shares will be distributed and no appointment will be required, except in the case of land which it is desired to sell under a trust for sale to avoid a partition under L. Appointment of new trustees where the surviving trustee continues to act.

NOW, for effectuating the aforesaid desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

1. THE said C. T. hereby appoints the New Trustees to be trustees of the Principal Deed in the place of the said D. T. and D. D. T. (both deceased) and to act jointly with the said C. T. for all the purposes of the Principal Deed [or if the surviving Trustee retires, say " in the place of the said D. T. (deceased) and of the said C. T. Variation where the surviving trustee retires.

Vesting declaration negatived.

2. NO vesting declaration shall be implied herein. [This assumes that there are no things in action such as reversionary interests, covenants or chattels comprised in the settlement, but that the only property and rights to be transferred will be the scheduled investments. As the vesting declaration is negatived, the appointment clearly will only carry a 10*s. stamp. As to vesting declarations being implied unless the deed contains " an express provision to the contrary " : T. Act*, 1925, s. 40 (2) (b).]

Retiring trustee.

(t) Here, as the surviving trustee retires, he must appoint a trustee in his place : T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1). A trustee can only be discharged under ib., s. 39, without appointing a trustee in his place, where, after the discharge, there will be either a trust corporation (compare Pub. T. Act, 1906, s. 5) or at least two individuals to act as trustees to perform the trust.

Vesting declaration.

(u) It is assumed here that the settlement only comprises investments, and that a vesting declaration is accordingly not required. If it is required, see last two Precedents. As a rule it should not be negatived.

Separate appointments obligatory.

(v) To comply with T. Act, 1925, s. 35 (1), the new trustees of the conveyance and settlement must be appointed by separate instruments. If there are several conveyances the appointment may be made supplemental to them all. A purchaser of a legal estate is not affected by notice of the trusts of the proceeds of sale or of the rents and profits until sale, even if those trusts are declared by the instrument whereby the trust for sale is created: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (1).

Notice to be endorsed on conveyance or assent on trust for sale.

Pursuant to T. Act, 1925, s. 35 (3), notice must be endorsed on the conveyance or assent on trust for sale of a legal estate in land where new or additional trustees thereof have been appointed. The notice will state who are for the time being the trustees for sale, thus—

(Date) TAKE NOTICE that X. T., of, &c., Y. T., of, &c., and Z. T., of, &c., are the present trustees for sale for the purposes

Where an assent on trust for sale is made after 1925, whether for giving effect to a trust for sale under a Will or implied on an intestacy (Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 33), the memorandum must be endorsed on the assent, not on the probate or letters of administration.

Where there is no separate declaration of trust of the proceeds.

In a few cases the trusts of the proceeds of sale may be declared by the instrument creating the trust for sale, e.g., where the trustees for sale are the beneficial owners and are entitled to the proceeds either jointly or in shares. In such cases there will be only one deed appointing new trustees, namely, of the conveyance.

Variation on purchase under a power.

(w) Where the land has been purchased under a power in a personalty settlement, substitute the following recital:—

Conveyance on trust for sale where land purchased under a power in a personalty settlement.

(1) This deed is supplemental to a Conveyance (hereinafter called the Principal Deed) dated, &c., and made between X. (the Vendor) of the 1st part, the Appointors of the 2nd part, and D. T., D. D. T., and C. T., of the 3rd part, whereby a messuage and certain properties situated at, &c. (describe the parcels shortly), were conveyed to the said D. T., D. D. T., and C. T. in fee simple Upon trust for sale as therein mentioned, and it was thereby provided that the Appointors during their joint lives should have power to appoint new trustees thereof.

(x) If the land is affected by manorial incidents this appointment must be sent to the steward of the manor for endorsement within six months: L. P. Act, 1922, s. 129.

Middlesex and Yorkshire.

If the land is in Middlesex or Yorkshire the deed must be registered in the local deeds registry as affecting a legal estate: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 11. For the purposes of such registration the appointors are deemed to be the conveying parties: T. Act, 1925, s. 40 (5).

Registered land.

If the title to the land held on trust for sale is registered under the L. R. Act, 1925, the heading (i.e., District ——, Title No. ——, and Property ——) should be referred to in the deed; on production of the deed containing the vesting declaration (express or implied) the registrar will enter the names of the new and continuing trustees as proprietors: ib., s. 47. In all cases where land is held on trust for sale, the trustees for sale will be registered as proprietors: ib., s. 94. If the only land held on trust for sale is registered, the incidents) [and certain leasehold properties comprised in the Leases therein mentioned] situated or arising in the County of —— were conveyed to the said D. T., D. D. T. and C. T. [as to the freehold properties (including enfranchised lands)] in fee simple [and as to the said leasehold properties for the residue of the respective terms for which the same were held] UPON TRUST [as to all the properties] to sell the same as therein mentioned,(y) and to stand possessed of the net proceeds of sale and of the rents and profits until sale Upon the trusts declared concerning the same by a deed of even date therein referred to; And by the Principal Deed power was given to the Appointors during their joint lives to appoint new trustees thereof:

Death of two trustees.

(2) The said D. T. died on the —— day of —— and the said D. D. T. died on the —— day of ——:

Desire to appoint new trustees.

(3) The Appointors are desirous of appointing the New Trustees to be trustees in the place of the said D. T. and D. D. T.: NOW, for effectuating the said desire and in exercise of the powers for this purpose conferred by the Principal Deed [by the Trustee Act, 1925] and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Appointment of new trustees.

1. THE Appointors hereby appoint the New Trustees to be trustees of the Principal Deed in the place of the said D. T. and D. D. T. (both deceased) and to act jointly with the said C. T. for all the purposes of the Principal Deed.

2. THE requisite vesting declaration shall be implied under section forty of the Trustee Act, 1925.

[Express vesting declaration of land held on trust for sale.]

[Or 2. THE Appointors, with the assent of the said C. T., hereby declare that ALL the properties and rights now subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed shall forthwith vest in the said C. T. and the New Trustees (for the estates, terms and interests formerly vested in the said C. T. or which ought to be vested in them as trustees of the Principal Deed), and as joint tenants for the purposes and upon the trusts thereof.]

trust for sale may be inserted in the instrument whereby the trusts of the proceeds of sale are declared; in such a case there will be only one deed appointing new trustees.

Power to postpone sale implied.

(y) In every trust for sale of land a power to postpone will be implied unless a contrary intention appears: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 25.

Mortgages.

(z) The legal estate in any land can be vested by declaration, except land conveyed by way of mortgage for securing money subject to the trust: T. Act, 1925, s. 40 (4) (a); thus mortgage terms and charges by way of legal mortgage must be transferred separately. But the section does apply to land conveyed on trust for securing debentures or debenture stock ; hence, when new trustees are appointed of the Trust Deed securing the debentures or stock, the mortgage terms or charges by way of legal mortgage taking effect (L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 85 (3), 86 (3), 87, 1st Sch., Pt. VII, para. 5, Pt. VIII, para. 7) thereunder can be transferred by a vesting declaration.

Purchase of land in breach of trust.

If land has been purchased in breach of trust and conveyed on trust for sale, then this Precedent will apply as if the land had been purchased under a power. If the land is not conveyed on trust for sale, then the next Precedent (No. V) will be applicable.

Bare trusts.

A vesting declaration may be employed though the only trust may be to convey to some person absolutely interested : London, &c., Banking Co. v. Goddard [1897], 1 Ch. 642 ; 66 L. J. Ch. 261.

Precedent only applicable if there is no express trust for sale.

(a) This Precedent is only applicable where the conveyance to the original trustees does not contain a trust for sale ; if there is a trust for sale, see last Precedent. This is the Precedent of the deed referred to in the recital of the purchase of land in breach of trust contained in the note to Prec. II, p. 433, supra. It only carries out the law that land acquired in breach of trust is held on an implied trust for sale, see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 23 (duration of an implied trust for sale). On a sale the purchaser should be made to take these recitals as conclusive evidence. It is assumed that the new trustees have been separately appointed : Prec. II.

(b) This shows that no duties are payable, see note to Prec. II, "Effect of trust for sale as regards death duties," p. 435, supra. Whether the persons nominated to appoint new trustees of the personalty settlement could appoint new trustees of a conveyance of land acquired with trust money in breach of trust has not been decided ; semble, there would be no objection to their doing so, e.g., where one of the trustees had gone abroad or had become a lunatic.

NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement and in consideration of the premises, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

1. The said C. T., As Trustee, hereby conveys unto the New Trustees and the said C. T.: (c)

Habendum on trust for sale.

All the properties and rights comprised in or expressed to be conveyed by the Principal Deed:

To hold unto the said C. T. and the New Trustees, as joint tenants [as to the freehold properties] in fee simple [and as to the leasehold properties for the residue of the respective terms of years for which the same are held] Upon trust that the said C. T. and the New Trustees (hereinafter together called the Trustees) shall, at the discretion of the Trustees, sell the said properties, and shall stand possessed of the net money to arise from any such sale after payment of the costs incidental thereto, and all other capital money arising under the powers conferred by section twenty-eight of the Law of Property Act, 1925, Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions which, under a Deed, dated &c. (being a Settlement made in consideration of the marriage shortly afterwards solemnised between the said A. B. and F. B.), are now subsisting with respect to money forming part of the Trust Fund [or the Husband's Trust Fund, or the Wife's Trust Fund, as the case may be] thereby settled, (d) whereof the parties hereto of the 4th part are the present trustees.

Covenants for title with self and others.

(c) For the effect of covenants by a person with himself and others: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 82; as to conveyances to self and others or to self alone: ib., s. 72.

Provisions taking the place of the S. E. Act, 1877.

(d) In editions before 1926, reliance was placed on S. E. Act, 1877, s. 46, see Re Laing (1866), L. R. 1 Eq. 416; 35 L. J. Ch. 282; cf. Taylor v. T. (1876), 3 Ch. D. 145; 45 L. J. Ch. 848, which gave a power for tenants for life of the proceeds of sale to grant leases for twenty-one years independently of any order made under S. L. Act, 1884, s. 7. The place of the Act of 1877 is taken by S. L. Act, 1925, and L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28. Instead of obtaining orders under S. L. Act, 1884, s. 7 (also repealed), if the trustees for sale refuse to act or delegate their powers, application should be made for an order under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 30.

Money arising under trust for sale.

Money arising under a trust for sale of land is, after 1925, liable to be laid out in the purchase (see S. L. Act, 1925, s. 73) of land which, when acquired, must be conveyed on trust for sale: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28.

It is assumed that A. B. and F. B. have successive life interests under the personalty settlement. In this case it is conceived that the usual declaration as to the rents and profits should be omitted (it is not supplied by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32, for the settlement ex hypothesi does not contain power to purchase land), and that if a loss is likely to arise in connexion with the breach of trust a scheme for accumulating them as an indemnity fund for the trustees should APPOINTMENT of New Trustees of a Mortgage Debt (settled by a Transfer of even Date with a Personalty Settlement) and Transfer of the Debt and Securities.(f) Variations where the Mortgage was created in favour of Trustees in Consideration of the Marriage. (Legal Estate.)

Parties.

THIS APPOINTMENT AND TRANSFER is made, &c., Between A. B., of, &c., and F. B., his wife (hereinafter called the Appointors), of the 1st part, R. T., of, &c. (retiring Trustee), of the 2nd part, C. Transfer of Mortgage on the marriage.

(1) This Deed is supplemental to a Transfer of Mortgage (hereinafter called the Principal Deed) dated, &c., and made between the said A. B. of the 1st part, the said F. B. (then F. H., Spinster), of the 2nd part, and D. T. and the said R. T. and C. be arranged; in any case the trustees will probably require some indemnity if the land is not to be sold at once. Though consent by the husband and wife may be required to a change of investment the trust for sale should, apart from an indemnity, remain exercisable at the discretion of the trustees.

Defective power to purchase land.

A defective power to purchase land in a personalty settlement coming into operation after 1911 is cured by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 32; the land, when purchased, will be held on trust for sale, with power to postpone and the usual trust of the net rents and profits is implied: ib.

Trust to retain or sell.

By the joint effect of ss. 28 and 32 the number of cases, in which land will be acquired in breach of trust, will be much reduced. Further, as regards settlements made after 1925, as a trust to "retain or sell" is to be construed as a trust for sale: ib., s. 25 (4), there will, in future, be less trouble in ascertaining whether land ought to be treated as "settled land," as in Re Hotchkys (1886), 32 Ch. D. 408; 55 L. J. Ch. 546, or as held on trust for sale, as in Re Crips (1906), 95 L. T. 865; Re Johnson [1915], 1 Ch. 435.

(e) This power should follow the words of the like power in the money settlement.

(4) The said R. T. is desirous of being discharged from the trusts of the Principal Deed, and the Appointors are desirous of appointing the New Trustees to be trustees thereof in his place [and in the place of the said D. T. (deceased) (h)] : NOW, for effectuating the aforesaid desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Principal Deed, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appointment of new trustees.

1. THE Appointors hereby appoint the New Trustees to be trustees of the Principal Deed in the place of the said R. T. (who retires from the trust) [and of the said D. T. (deceased)] and to act jointly with the said C. T. for all the purposes of the Principal Deed.

Variation where mortgage was created in favour of the trustees in consideration of the marriage.

(g) If, in consideration of the marriage, a mortgage was created in favour of the trustees, then this appointment will be made supplemental to the mortgage. In either case the trusts of the mortgage debt will be declared by reference to the personalty settlement of even date, and a power will be given to appoint new trustees.

Keeping open vacancies.

(h) As T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (6), gives power to appoint additional trustees, although there may be no vacancy in the trust, the object of retaining a vacancy is gone unless the donees of the power contemplate appointing themselves to be new trustees.

(i) Notice of this assignment should be given to the mortgagor; for the form and effect of the transfer: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 114; 1st Sch., Form No. 1. As to the covenants implied by conveying to self and others: ib., s. 82.

TRANSFER of a MORTGAGE on the APPOINTMENT of NEW TRUSTEES where the MORTGAGE DEBT has been acquired AFTER the Date of the SETTLEMENT.(k) (Legal Estate.)

Parties.

THIS TRANSFER is made, &c., BETWEEN R. T., of, &c. (retiring Trustee), and C. T., of, &c. (continuing Trustee) (hereinafter called the Mortgagees), of the one part, and the said C. T., N. T., of, &c., and N. N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Transferees), of the other part: WHEREAS :—

Mortgage.

(1) This deed is supplemental to a Mortgage (hereinafter called the Principal Deed) dated, &c., and made between X. of the one part, and D. T. (since deceased) and the said R. T. and

---

Stamp.

(j) The stamp will be 10*s*. It will not be necessary to have the stamp adjudicated, for, on the face of the deed, the transfer is made for effectuating the appointment of new trustees.

Transfer of mortgage held as trust property.

(k) In this case the mortgage debt represents an investment by the trustees, and, if properly drawn, the mortgage will have been made to them without any reference to the settlement. The new trustees will be appointed by the instrument appointing trustees of the personalty settlement.

Trusts not disclosed.

It should only be stated that the transferees (i.e., the new and continuing trustees) are entitled to the mortgage debt on a joint account. This does not give a purchaser notice of any trust: Re Harman and Uxbridge, &c., Ry. (1883), 24 Ch. D. 720; 52 L. J. Ch. 808. Even if the trusts are accidentally disclosed, a purchaser may, after 1925, disregard them: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 113. If, before 1926, a purchaser had express notice that the mortgage debt was trust property, a fact which was sometimes disclosed in answering requisitions, he was entitled to evidence that the mortgagees were duly appointed trustees, notwithstanding the statutory joint account clause: Re Blaiberg and Abrahams [1899], 2 Ch. 340; 68 L. J. Ch. 578; and see Re Chafer & Randall [1916], 2 Ch. 8; 85 L. J. Ch. 435; Re Soden & Alexander [1918], 2 Ch. 258; 87 L. J. Ch. 529. Now as regards dealings after 1925, a purchaser, when dealing with the mortgagee, has only to act in good faith, he is not concerned to investigate the equitable title to the mortgage debt, or the appointment or discharge of trustees.

Stamp.

Even if the mortgage debt exceeds £2,000 (i.e., the amount covered by a 10*s*. stamp), a stamp of 10*s*. will not give notice of the trust: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 112, but the stamp must be adjudicated if the debt exceeds £2,000.

Transfer to one of selves and another.

As to the covenants implied by transferring to one of themselves and others: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 82. Though this section only speaks of a covenant "by a person with himself and one or more other persons" it must, having regard to sub-s. (2) and to the Inter. Act, 1889, s. 1 (1), be read as referring to covenants by two or more persons, with any one or more of themselves and any other persons, see also L. P. Act, 1925, s. 83.

C. T. of the other part, being a mortgage of the fee simple of certain properties at, &c., for securing payment to the said D. T., R. T. and C. T. of the principal sum of £——, with interest thereon, which mortgage estate has, by virtue of the Law of Property Act, 1925, been converted into a term of 3,000 years without impeachment of waste subject to cesser on redemption under the Principal Deed :

(2) The said D. T. died on the —— day of —— :

(3) The said sum of £——, with the current interest thereon, is still due on the security of the Principal Deed, and now belongs to the Transferees on a joint account :

Money still due on the mortgage and belongs to the Transferees.

NOW THIS DEED WITNESSETH that, in consideration of the premises, the Mortgagees, As Mortgagees, hereby convey and transfer unto the Transferees the benefit of the Principal Deed.

Transfer of mortgage.

Realisation and investment of residuary estate.

(3) The Original Trustees sold all the real estate of the Testator (except such parts thereof as are mentioned in the Assent hereinafter recited), and converted so much of his personal estate as did not consist of ready money or of authorised investments, and thereout and out of his ready money paid his funeral and testamentary expenses and debts and legacies and the death duties payable out of capital on his death, and invested the residue of the proceeds of such sales and conversion and of his ready money in manner directed by his said Will :

Assent on trust for sale.(ll)

(4) By an Assent dated (date), the Original Trustees, as the personal representatives of the Testator, assented to the real estate and chattels real therein described vesting in themselves on trust for sale the net proceeds of sale and the rents and profits until sale to be held on the trusts declared concerning the same by the said Will ; And thereby declared that the Appointor had power during his life to appoint new trustees of the said Assent :

Desire to appoint new trustees.

(7) The Appointor is desirous of appointing the New Trustees to be trustees of the recited Will in the place of the said D. T. and D. D. T. (both deceased) :

Reference to statutory power.

(l) If the Will merely says that the statutory power shall be vested in the donee, or gives to him a general power to appoint trustees, the effect is practically the same, but in the former case the T. Act, 1925, may also be referred to in the operative part.

(ll) Personal representatives may assent under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 36, though the testator or intestate died before 1926.

Appointment of trustees of the assent.

(8) By an Appointment, bearing even date with but intended to be executed immediately after this deed and made between the same parties and in the same order, the New Trustees were appointed to be trustees of the recited Assent, and the real estate and chattels real therein comprised were vested in the said C. T. and the New Trustees on the trusts of the said Assent :

Intention to transfer investments.

(9) It is intended that so soon as practicable the investments mentioned in the Schedule hereto shall (after raising and paying thereout the costs of and incidental to the preparation and execution of this Appointment and the said Appointment of even date) be transferred into the joint names of the said C. T. and the New Trustees :

NOW, for effectuating the aforesaid desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the recited Will [and the Trustee Act, 1925],(m) and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appointment of new trustees.

1. THE Appointor hereby appoints the New Trustees to be trustees of the recited Will in the place of the said D. T. and D. D. T. (both deceased), and to act jointly with the said C. T. for all the purposes thereof.

Implied vesting declaration.

When the declaration should extend to land.

(n) This express declaration is inserted to show the effect of the implied declaration ; it is safer to rely on implied vesting declarations. As to separate transfers of mortgages, see last Group of Precedents. If on 1st January, 1926, the real estate and chattels real were vested in trustees for sale under the Will (the executors as such having previously divested themselves of the legal estate) then the vesting declaration (express or implied) contained in the appointment of trustees of the Will should extend thereto and particulars of the land unsold should be scheduled to this appointment, see Vol. II, 21st ed., pp. 695–97 ; for an assent on trust for sale can only be made by executors or administrators (whenever the testator or intestate died) if the land was vested in them as such : Ad. of E. Separate appointments.

Where the legal estate passes by an assent and the trusts of the proceeds of sale are declared by another instrument (e.g., a Will), separate instruments must be employed to appoint new or additional trustees: T. --- (v) It is assumed that there is no property to which a vesting declaration would apply, but it may be safer to allow a declaration to be implied.

Appointment by a trustee.

When a trustee appoints a new trustee he should communicate with the beneficiaries: O'Reilly v. Alderson (1849), 8 Hare, 101.

(w) See first note to Prec. IA. It is assumed here that one legacy was settled on certain trusts and the residue on others, and that a new trustee is appointed in respect of each fund while the surviving trustee continues to act in regard to both funds.

Appointments of separate sets of trustees for a part without appointing trustees of other parts.

T. Act, 1925, s. 37, is rather wider than the enactments which it replaces, for it authorises separate sets of trustees (in the case of land not exceeding four) for any part of the property held on trusts distinct from those relating to any other part, notwithstanding that no new or additional trustees are appointed for other parts. Any existing trustee may be appointed or remain one of the separate set. One trustee or one separate trustee may be appointed where a sole trustee was originally appointed, save that the Act does not authorise the appointment of a sole trustee (not being a trust corporation) where the trustee, when appointed, would not (ib., s. 14, as amended) be able to give valid receipts for capital.

Appointment of a sole trustee, when authorised.

Filling up of vacancies.

Discharge of trustee on an appointment.

The same principle applies to the filling up of vacancies; a sole trustee (where a sole trustee was originally appointed) can be discharged from the trust when a sole trustee is appointed in his place, provided that the new trustee can give valid receipts for all capital. In other cases the trustee cannot be discharged by reason of the appointment unless there will be a trust corporation or at least two trustees to perform the trust.

Discharge of trustee where no appointment is made.

On the other hand, where no new trustee is appointed, a trustee cannot be discharged under s. 39 unless there will be a trust corporation or at least two trustees left to perform the trust, even though a sole trustee (individual) might have given valid receipts for capital.

Desire to appoint new trustee of Will and separate trustee of Settled Legacy.

Intention to transfer investments.

(8) It is intended that (after raising and paying in proper proportions out of the investments mentioned in both Schedules hereto, the costs of and incidental to the preparation and execution hereof) as soon as practicable, the investments mentioned in the First Schedule hereto (representing the residuary estate) shall be transferred into the joint names of the said C. T. and N. T., and that the investments mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto (representing the Settled Legacy) shall be transferred into the joint names of the said C. T. and N. APPOINTMENT of NEW TRUSTEES of an ASSENT on TRUST for SALE made on an INTESTACY by the PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES.(y) (Legal Estate.)

THIS APPOINTMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN R. T., of., &c. (retiring Trustee), of the one part, and N. T., of, &c., and N. N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustees), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Parties.

(1) By an Assent dated, &c., and made between L. P. and L. L. P. (hereinafter called the Administrators) of the one part, and D. T. and the said R. T. (hereinafter called the Original Assent on trust for sale by Administrators.

(x) It is assumed in this Precedent that there is no property to which a vesting declaration would apply, but it may be expedient to omit this clause.

Vesting declaration.

(y) An intestate's estate is held on trust for sale when he dies after 1925: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 33; the administrators can assent to the land vesting in themselves on trust for sale, but such an assent would usually be postponed till they could make over the property. If an appropriation of land were made by them (quâ trustees for sale) under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28 (4), see ib., s. 33, for the benefit of an infant, it would be held on trust for sale, but they would usually retain the land as administrators till the infant attained twenty-one. They might (as in the text) assent to land vesting in not more than four of the intestate's children on trust for sale who had become entitled in undivided shares under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46 (see also L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3 (1) (ii) proviso). This could be done during the lifetime of the spouse entitled to a life interest in a moiety if an appropriation were made under ib., s. 41.

Assents on trust for sale by administrators.

Appropriation.

Again, a person absolutely entitled under the intestacy might have conveyed his equitable interest to trustees on trust for sale; they could, when administration was sufficiently advanced, call on the administrators to assent to the land vesting in them on trust for sale. Joint tenants will generally hold on trust for sale.

Derivative title.

Trustees) of the other part, the Administrators (as the personal representatives of the late X. T., who died intestate on —— and to whom Letters of Administration were granted on —— by the —— Probate Registry), assented to the freehold and leasehold properties therein described vesting in the Original Trustees, UPON TRUST to sell the same (with power to postpone the sale) and to stand possessed of the net proceeds of sale and other money applicable as capital and of the net rents and profits until sale, upon the trusts therein referred to [These can be by reference to an Appropriation Deed or a Settlement, or if the Original Trustees were solely and beneficially entitled, a trust can be declared for them in the Assent itself, according to their interests, and additional powers can be conferred on the trustees]; And by the said Assent it was declared that the statutory power to appoint new trustees was applicable thereto :

Power to appoint.

Death of trustee.

(2) The said D. T. died on (date) :

Desire to appoint.

(3) The said R. T. is desirous of retiring (z) from the trusts of the recited Assent and of appointing the New Trustees to be trustees thereof in place of himself and the said D. T., deceased : NOW, for effectuating the said desire and in exercise of the powers for this purpose conferred by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appointment of new trustees.

1. THE said R. T. hereby appoints the New Trustees to be trustees of the recited Assent in the place of the said R. T. (who retires from the trust) and of the said D. T., deceased, for all the subsisting purposes of the said Assent.

Vesting declaration.

2. THE requisite vesting declaration shall be implied herein pursuant to section forty of the said Act.

IN WITNESS, &c.(a)

Reason for retiring.

(z) He may, if he were a beneficiary, have sold his undivided share in the proceeds of sale, hence his desire to retire. In any case, at least two individuals or a trust corporation are required to execute the trust for sale or exercise the statutory powers for the purposes of any transaction in which capital arises : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2), as amended.

Misconception of position of absolute owners who hold on trust for sale.

(a) There is nothing in the new legislation which prevents absolute owners holding on trust for sale, whether they are beneficially entitled to the proceeds as joint tenants or as tenants in common, from raising money on mortgage of the land for their own purposes, or doing anything else they think fit with it, provided they do not vest the legal estate in more than four trustees and do not purport to create undivided shares in the land.

Reason for giving additional powers.

The reason why, in such cases, it is expedient to give the trustees for sale powers in addition to those conferred by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28, is that the trustees may not always remain the sole beneficial owners of the proceeds of sale, for instance, one of them may die, or assign or charge his beneficial interest in the proceeds of sale, then the trustees for the time being will still be able to exercise the additional powers without disclosing the dealings with the equitable interests.

---

Rights of persons absolutely entitled to the proceeds of sale.

Again, if the beneficial interests in the proceeds of sale are vested absolutely in persons sui juris, though they or some of them do not happen to be the trustees for sale, they can, subject to the above restrictions, do what they think fit. For instance, by a powers deed, they can confer any additional powers which may be thought expedient on the persons who hold the legal estate on trust for sale.

Object of trust for sale.

The object of a trust for sale is not to fetter dealings, but to give over-reaching powers to the trustees and to secure that dealings with undivided shares should take place behind the trust for sale.

Rights of beneficiaries.

The trustees for sale are bound to give effect to the equitable interests in accordance with L. P. Act, 1925, s. 3, provided that they have notice of them. It was unnecessary to amend L. P. Act, 1925, s. 36 (see L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.), by declaring that a surviving trustee for sale who was absolutely entitled to the proceeds of sale could deal with the land as if it were not subject to a trust for sale; he was in a position to terminate the trust for sale at any time. Still the amendment removed a doubt, however unfounded.

Rights of purchasers of legal estates.

A purchaser, for his own "safety and protection," has a right to assume that a trust for sale of land is subsisting till the land is conveyed to or under the direction of the persons interested in the proceeds: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 23; this has been the law since 1911, and probably only confirmed the general law.

Right to keep the equitable interests off the title.

Again, under s. 42, a purchaser has a right to require title to be made under a trust for sale or under the powers given to trustees for sale if the transaction can, in this way, be effected without bringing the equitable interests on the title, but the Acts do not give a purchaser a right to refuse a title because, in order to carry out the transaction, equitable interests must be brought on the title, though it is true that this will seldom happen.

(b) This sub-section, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, runs thus:—

Special trust for sale.

"(2) Where the legal estate affected is subject to a trust for sale, then, if at the date of a conveyance made after the commencement of this Act, under the trust for sale or the powers conferred on the trustees for sale, the trustees (whether original or substituted) are either—

(a) two or more individuals approved or appointed by the court or the successors in office of the individuals so approved or appointed; or one part, and the X. Bank Limited, whose registered office is at — (hereinafter called the Bank), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Seisin of joint tenants on the statutory trusts.

(1) The Appointors, under a Deed dated, &c. (hereinafter called the Conveyance) [or otherwise refer to the instrument of acquisition if any] are beneficially seised of the properties mentioned in the First Schedule hereto as joint tenants in fee simple, subject to the equitable interests mentioned in the

(b) a trust corporation;

any equitable interest or power having priority to the trust for sale shall, notwithstanding any stipulation to the contrary, be overreached by the conveyance, and shall, according to its priority, take effect as if created or arising by means of a primary trust affecting the proceeds of sale and the income of the land until sale."

Non-over-reachable interests.

General equitable charge is over-reachable.

The equitable interests so capable of being over-reached are cut down by sub-s. (3), they do not include a mortgage by deposit, a restrictive covenant, an equitable easement, an estate contract, or an interest registered under the L. C. Act, 1925, other than an annuity or a limited owner's or a general equitable charge. A general equitable charge does not include a charge arising or affecting an interest arising under a trust for sale or a settlement: ib., s. 10, Class C (iii); hence charges affecting the proceeds of sale cannot be effectively registered.

No longer confined to trusts for sale ad hoc.

It is no longer correct to refer to s. 2 (2) as merely authorising a trust for sale ad hoc to be created; this can still be done, but the sub-section now applies to any trust for sale created subject to an equitable interest which it is desired to overreach, and which can be overreached when the requirements are complied with.

Undivided shares.

Family charges.

Public Trustee.

Vesting in S. L. Act trustees after 1925, on trust for sale.

Where under L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, the entirety of land vests in trustees, personal representatives, or S. L. Act trustees on trust for sale, this trust takes effect in priority to incumbrances formerly affecting the undivided shares. Moreover, para. 1 (3) has been amended to make it clear that the trust for sale on which the S. L. Act trustees hold the land will take effect free from any interests, powers and charges subsisting under the settlement which had priority to the interests of the tenants in common. It follows that when the Public Trustee takes under para. 1 (4) his trust for sale will have the same overreaching effect; trustees for sale appointed in his place are in the same position.

Where L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), need not be complied with.

Where land, formerly settled, becomes subject to a trust for sale by reason of a trust for persons in undivided shares, then under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 36 (2), the trust for sale takes effect free from the interests, powers and charges subsisting under the settlement which had priority to the interests of the tenants in common.

The result is that, in the above cases, it is not necessary that the trustees should be appointed or approved by the court; it is sufficient if L. P. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2), as amended, is complied with, to enable the equitable interest to be overreached.

Giving effect to interests which are overreached.

The trustees for sale have to give effect, by means of the proceeds of sale, &c., to the interests which are overreached, provided they have notice of them, whether they were created before or after the trust for sale, according to their priorities: ib., s. 3 (1) (b) (i).

Second Schedule hereto,(c) but otherwise free from incumbrances, and hold the said properties on the statutory trusts.

Desire to appoint trust corporation to be new trustee.

(2) In order to comply with sub-section (2) of section two of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (as amended), the Appointors are desirous of retiring from the said statutory trusts and of appointing the Bank to be a trustee thereof in their place:

NOW, in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

1. THE Appointors hereby appoint the Bank to be a Trustee of the Conveyance for the purposes of the said statutory trusts in relation to the properties mentioned in the First Schedule hereto and in relation to any other lands so held by the Appointors, subject to the equitable interests mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto or to any of such interests, and in place of the Appointors, who retire from the said trusts.

Vesting declaration.

2. THE requisite vesting declaration shall be implied herein pursuant to section forty of the Trustee Act, 1925.

(To contain these particulars.)

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

Particulars of the Equitable Interests affecting the properties mentioned in the First Schedule or parts thereof.

Trust for sale puts an end to a "settlement" and the land ceases to be "settled land."

(c) Unless an express trust for sale has been created, it must be seen that the equitable interests are not family charges within S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1) (v), for then the estate owners would be in the position of tenants for life: ib., s. 20 (1) (ix), also the equitable interests must not be within the exceptions in L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (3). It is assumed that the land became subject to a trust for sale under ib., s. 36 (1) (beneficial joint tenants), that does not subject "settled land" to a trust for sale, but if the absolute owners convey land, subject to family charges, to trustees for sale, that puts an end to the "settlement" and the land ceases to be "settled land"; see next Precedent and notes thereto. Settled land, whether held by two or more owners, is excepted from the operation of s. 36.

THIS CONVEYANCE is made, &c., Between A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Estate Owner), of the one part, and the X. Bank Limited, whose registered office is at —— (hereinafter called the Bank), of the other part: Whereas:—

Conveyance before 1926 subject to family charges.

(1) By a Deed (hereinafter called the Conveyance) dated, &c., and made, &c., in consideration of the sum of £——, the freehold properties mentioned in the Schedule hereto (with other properties) were conveyed to the Estate Owner in fee simple, subject to the family charges mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto, but otherwise free from incumbrances; And the Conveyance contained a covenant by the said —— (the vendor) with the Estate Owner to keep him and the persons deriving title under him and the properties thereby conveyed effectually indemnified against all claims in respect of the said family charges:(f)

Indemnity.

Desire to create special trust for sale.

(2) In order to comply with sub-section (2) of section two of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (as amended), the Estate Owner is desirous of vesting the said properties in the Bank on the trusts hereinafter appearing:

NOW, in consideration of the premises, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Conveyance on trust for sale.

1. The Estate Owner, As Settlor, hereby conveys unto the Bank:

All the properties and rights mentioned in the First Schedule hereto; Together with the benefit of the covenant for indemnity contained in the Conveyance so far as it affects the premises:

(e) This Conveyance complies with the requirements of L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended, see notes to last Precedent; hence the trust corporation will be able to over-reach the family charges. The settlement terminates when the land is made subject to a trust for sale: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 and 3.

S. L. Act trustees of compound settlement made unnecessary.

The creation of a special trust for sale renders it unnecessary for the estate owner to apply to the court for the appointment of S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement, consisting of the instruments creating the original settlement and the conveyance on sale to him; only so much of the land as is intended to be sold, &c., need be made subject to the trust for sale. The stamp will be 10*s.*; no beneficial interest is created or transferred.

Stamp.

Rights of absolute owner subject to family charges.

(Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1; he can convey the legal estate on trust for sale subject to the family charges: ib.

To hold unto the Bank in fee simple, Upon trust, with the consent of the Estate Owner during his life and after his death, at the discretion of the Bank to sell the premises, with power to postpone the sale of the whole or any part thereof.

Trusts of proceeds of sale.

2. (1) The Bank shall stand possessed of the net proceeds of sale and any other capital money arising under the statutory powers affecting the premises and of the net rents and profits until sale, Upon such trusts (if any) as may be requisite for giving effect to the Family Charges mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto according to their priorities, having regard to the indemnity aforesaid, until the same shall cease or be discharged and in exoneration so far as may be of the other properties comprised in the Conveyance, and subject as aforesaid, In trust for the Estate Owner absolutely :

(2) Provided that until any claim shall be made in respect of the said Family Charges the net proceeds and other capital money aforesaid shall be invested and dealt with generally in accordance with the directions of the Estate Owner or the persons deriving title under him, and the net rents, profits, and income shall (without prejudice to the said Family Charges) be paid to him or them.

[(3) Add power for the Bank to charge remuneration in accordance with their form.]

Power to remove and appoint trustees.(g)

3. (1) The Estate Owner during his life shall have power by deed to remove any trustee hereof :

Provided that so long as the said Family Charges, or any of them, remain subsisting, a trustee shall not be removed under this power save for the purpose of appointing a trust corporation or two or more individuals approved by the court to be trustees hereof.

NO. I.

APPOINTMENT by a sole PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE of an ADDITIONAL S. L. ACT TRUSTEE to act with him pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30 (3), and of TRUSTEES of an INFANT'S property. (Equitable Interests.)(a)

Parties.

THIS APPOINTMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN P. R., of, &c. (the executor or administrator) (hereinafter called the Appointor), of the one part, and N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustee), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

Will devising land to an infant before 1926.

(1) X. Y., late of, &c. (hereinafter called the Testator), duly made his Will dated, &c., and thereby, after appointing the Appointor to be his executor (but without expressly appointing any trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, or otherwise) devised his freehold estate known as —— in the County of —— to his infant son, John Y. (who was born on ——) in fee simple (being the only real estate of the Testator) and after bequeathing certain legacies (which have been discharged) bequeathed his residuary personal estate (which did not include any chattels real) to the said John Y. absolutely:(b)

(a) The legal estate in the settled land must be transferred by a Vesting Assent, after the appointment is made, to the tenant for life, or during a minority, to the statutory owners, who will be the appointor, and the new trustee.

Infants entitled under intestacies.

An infant cannot become entitled under an intestacy to land as "settled land," where the intestate dies after 1925, see notes to next precedent; but where the infant's title accrued before 1926, then S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (2), applies, and the letters of administration become the "settlement." The administrators (if any) become the S. L. Act trustees: ib., s. 30 (3), and also the "statutory owners": ib., s. 26. If the legal estate was vested in the administrators it will remain in them. If, on 1st January, 1926, the legal estate was vested in the infant, it will be transferred to the administrators, if any: L. P. Act, 1925, 1st. Sch., Pt. II, para. 5; Pt. III, para. 1; S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 3. If there is only one administrator he must appoint another trustee before he assents. If there are no administrators then the legal estate vests in the Public Trustee till new trustees are appointed in his place, see Prec. IIIA, infra.

Power to appoint trustees of infant's property.

(b) This brings into force Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 42, as no trustees were interposed. This section also authorises the appointment of S. L. Act trustees, and the personal representative may appoint himself. There must be not less than two trustees or a trust corporation to act. The trustees must not exceed four in number.

(2) The Testator died, &c. (before 1926) without having revoked or altered his said Will, which was on —— duly proved by the Appointor at the —— Probate Registry :

Death and probate.

[(1) X. Y., late of, &c. (hereinafter called the Intestate) being at his death entitled to certain freehold properties in the County of —— died a Widower on —— (before 1926) intestate, leaving his infant son John Y. (who was born ——) his heir-at-law and sole next-of-kin :

(3) All the debts, funeral and testamentary [administration] expenses (including death duties) of the Testator [Intestate] have been duly discharged, and his estate is now represented by the said freehold properties and the chattels, money and investments mentioned in the Schedule hereto :

Payment of debts, &c.

(4) The Appointor is desirous of appointing the New Trustee to be a trustee of the said estate to act with himself for the purposes hereinafter mentioned :

Desire to appoint a trustee.

(5) By a Vesting Assent bearing even date with but intended to be executed immediately after this Appointment, and made between the same parties and in the same order, the Appointor assented to the said freehold properties vesting in himself and the New Trustee in fee simple as statutory owners Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions upon and subject to which the same ought to be held from time to time by virtue of the recited Will or otherwise [or by virtue of the settlement which under sub-section (2) of section one of the Settled Land Act, 1925, is deemed to have been made by the Intestate or otherwise]; And it was thereby declared that the Appointor and the New Trustee were the trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925 :

Vesting assent in favour of statutory owners.

(6) It is intended that the Appointor shall, as soon as possible after discharging thereout the costs of and incidental to this Appointment and the recited Vesting Assent, transfer the balance of the investments and money mentioned in the Schedule hereto into the joint names of the Appointor and the New Trustee :

Intention to transfer investments.

NOW, pursuant to sub-section (3) of section thirty of the Settled Land Act, 1925, and in exercise of the powers for this purpose conferred by section forty-two of the Administration of Estates

Act, 1925, and by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Purposes of vesting declaration.

(e) The vesting declaration will only be required in regard to chattels and things in action. All land should be included in the Vesting Assent. Any mortgages should be transferred separately.

The personal representatives cannot appoint trustees under s. 42 unless the infant is absolutely entitled, but when they become trustees for sale (administration being completed), semble, T. Act. 1925, ss. 36 and 37, apply. They can appropriate land or other property in or towards satisfaction of an infant's share: ib., s. 41; this does not discharge the trust for sale: ib., sub-s. Act, 1925, s. 28 (3), (4)) to partition land among persons entitled to the proceeds of sale is exercisable by personal representatives holding on trust for sale: ib., s. 33; where land is retained for an infant it will be held on trust for sale: ib., s. 28 (4).

Desire to retire and appoint new trustee.

(5) The Retiring Trustee is desirous of retiring from the trusts aforesaid, and the Appointors (h) are desirous, with the consent of the said Jane R. (which has been given under her hand), of appointing the New Trustee in his place in manner hereinafter appearing:

APPOINTMENT of NEW TRUSTEES by PARENTS in place of the PUBLIC TRUSTEE in whom the LEGAL ESTATE of an INFANT has become vested.(j) (Legal Estate.)

THIS APPOINTMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c., and Jane B., his wife (hereinafter called the Appointors), of the one part, and X. T., of, &c., and Y. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustees), of the other part : WHEREAS :— Parties.

(1) By a Deed (hereinafter called the Settlement) dated, &c. (date before 1926), and made, &c., the freehold properties mentioned in the Schedule hereto were limited TO THE USE of R. B. (who died ——, date before 1926) during his life with remainder TO THE USE of John B., an infant (who was born Settlement.

(i) If there are no things in action subject to the trust besides the investments and mortgages intended to be separately transferred the vesting declaration can be negatived, but this is not recommended.

(j) In default of S. L. Act trustees the legal estate of an infant, to which he was beneficially entitled on 1st January, 1926 (the estate not being vested in personal representatives), vests in the Public Trustee till trustees of the settlement are appointed in his place by the parents or parent or testamentary or other guardian ; they may request him to act as S. These vesting provisions are explained by L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. III, para. 1, see also Pt. II, para. 5. The vesting provisions (compare L. P. Act, 1925, s. 7 (1)) apply though the estate of the infant may be liable in equity to be cut down by Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 51 (3), to an entailed interest, see the words " at the commencement of this Act," in S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 3 (1). This paragraph applies where infants are entitled jointly, but not where an infant is entitled jointly with a person of full age, nor where, if he was of full age, he would be a co-tenant for life with a person of full age : ib., para. 3 (5) and (6). PRINCIPAL VESTING DEED consequential on the APPOINTMENT of S. L. Act trustees in respect of an INFANT'S Estate.(n) (Legal Estate.)

Supplemental to appointment of trustees for an infant.

THIS VESTING DEED made, &c. (date), By X. T., of &c., and Y. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), supplemental to an Appointment of New Trustees (hereinafter called the Principal Deed), of even date herewith, made between A. B. and Jane B., his wife of the one part, and the Trustees of the other part (being an appointment in respect of a legal estate formerly vested in John B., an infant, who was born ——, in the freehold and leasehold properties mentioned in the Schedule hereto), and for giving effect to the requirements of the Deaths of parents, recital.

---

(m) If the father or mother or both are dead or are unable or unwilling to make the appointment, this must be recited; the recital will be conclusive evidence in favour of a purchaser; the appointment will then be made by the guardian. It is assumed that there is no express power to appoint new trustees which is available. As to the appointment of S. L. Act trustees, see T. Act, 1925, s. 64.

Vesting declaration.

Enfranchised land.

A vesting declaration is required in this case, though if the court makes the order appointing new trustees, para. 3 of the 2nd Sch. to the S. L. Act, 1925, will operate to vest the land. It is unlikely that an infant would have been admitted to copyholds (now enfranchised) when the Act took effect If this did happen the deed of appointment must be produced to the steward and the fines, &c., paid: L. P. Act, 1922, s. 129; to save these it might in some cases be worth while to obtain an order of the court; no legal estate is vested in an infant: L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 7 (g).

Intestacies.

It seems most unlikely that a legal estate acquired by an infant under an intestacy before 1926 should vest in the Public Trustee; it will generally vest in the administrators, who will be the S. L. Act trustees: S. L. Act, 1925, ss. 1 (2), 30 (3), or else in persons appointed under S. L. Act, 1882, s. 60.

(n) This vesting deed is made pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 3 (4), for giving effect to the requirements of that schedule, see also ib., s. 13.

Variations if the Public Trustee acts.

If the Public Trustee is requested to act and accepts the trust, the parents or guardian will be made parties. the material facts relating to the title will be recited (see last Precedent), and it will be recited that they have requested the Public Trustee to accept the trust and execute the requisite vesting deed. This will refer to the settlement or Will creating the trust.

Settled Land Act, 1925, WITNESSETH and it is hereby declared as follows:—

1. THE Trustees, As Trustees, hereby declare that—

Vesting in statutory owners.

ALL AND SINGULAR the freehold and leasehold properties and rights respectively mentioned in the first and second parts of the Schedule hereto, and all other (if any) the properties and rights capable of being vested by this declaration which are now by any means subject to the limitations of the Settlement referred to in the Principal Deed, are vested in the Trustees as statutory owners as to the said freehold properties in fee simple, and as to the said leasehold properties for the residue of the terms of years for which the same are held.

Declaration of trust.

2. THE Trustees shall stand possessed of the premises Upon the trusts and subject to the powers and provisions upon and subject to which under the Settlement referred to in the Principal Deed, or otherwise the same ought to be held from time to time.

S. L. Act trustees.

3. THE Trustees are the trustees of the Settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925.

Additional powers.

4. NO additional powers are conferred in relation to the settled land.

New trustees.

5. THE statutory power to appoint new trustees is applicable.

Declaration of beneficial trusts.

(t) As presumably the trusts of the Will are to be wound up at once it is expedient to re-declare the trusts; it will not then be necessary to appoint new trustees of the Will; it will be sufficient, when so required, to appoint new trustees of the assent.

Extension of powers.

As the beneficiaries are together absolutely entitled they can give the trustees any additional powers which may be desired. This will increase the number of transactions which can be carried out by the trustees without joining the other beneficiaries or without executing an additional powers deed. The additional powers may be useful if a beneficiary dies or deals with his share.

Secret trusts.

(u) Though the amendment in L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch. of L. P. Act, BETWEEN A. B., of, &c., C. D., of, &c., E. F., of, &c., and G. H., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Syndicate), of the 1st part, C. T. (hereinafter called the Original Trustee) of the 2nd part, and N. T., of, &c., and N. N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustees), of the 3rd part: WHEREAS:—

Supplemental to conveyances.

(1) This Memorandum is supplemental to the Conveyances (hereinafter called the Principal Deeds) mentioned in the Schedule hereto (being conveyances of divers properties to the Original Trustee) and as appears from that Schedule the purchase money in each case was provided by members of the Syndicate in the amounts or proportions mentioned in that Schedule; and accordingly the said properties were, immediately before the commencement of the Law of Property Act, 1925, held by the Original Trustee in trust for the members of the Syndicate in shares corresponding to the amounts provided by them respectively:

Implied trust for sale.

(2) By virtue of that Act the said properties became subject in the hands of the Original Trustee to a trust for sale:

Agreement to appoint trustees.

(3) The Original Trustee,(v) by the direction of the Syndicate, has agreed to appoint the New Trustees as additional trustees of the said properties on the terms hereinafter appearing: NOW, in exercise of the powers for this purpose conferred by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, IT IS HEREBY DECLARED as follows:—

Implied trust for sale, undivided shares.

Two trustees required to make title.

1925, 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 3, enables A, a trustee for B (a single individual or company), to make a title as beneficial owner to a purchaser without notice, notwithstanding that the legal estate may have vested in B, it does not cover the case where A (a sole trustee) holds in trust for two or more persons entitled in undivided shares. Here the land remains vested in A, but is subjected to a trust for sale: ib., 1st Sch., Pt. IV. To make title to land held on trust for sale there must be either a trust corporation or not less than two trustees to give valid receipts: ib., s. 27 (2), as amended, hence new trustees must be appointed. In such a case the legal estate would pass under a conveyance by the original trustee to the purchaser, and if the purchaser had no notice of the trust he would not be made answerable for any misapplication of the purchase money.

Joint beneficial owners.

If the contributories were entitled beneficially as joint tenants, though the legal estate would vest in them under 1st Sch., Pt. II, and be subjected to a trust for sale: ib., s. 36, still the amendment would apply and the original trustee could make a title to a purchaser without notice.

Invalidation of trusts.

Paragraph 7 (i) of Pt. II of the 1st Sch. provides that the statutory vesting is not to invalidate a trust; where A holds in trust for B and the estate is transferred to B, that does not invalidate the trust but gives effect to it.

Deed not required to appoint new trustees.

(v) New or additional trustees can be appointed by writing under T. Act, 1925, s. 36; only when a vesting declaration or conveyance is to be used will a deed be required.

1. THE Original Trustee, by the direction of the Syndicate, hereby appoints the New Trustees to be additional trustees of the Principal Deeds in relation to the said properties and to act with the Original Trustee for all the purposes of the said trust for sale.

Appointment of additional trustees.

2. (1) THE Original Trustee shall, by a Conveyance of even date herewith, convey the said properties to himself and the New Trustees UPON TRUST to sell the same (with power to postpone the sale) and to stand possessed of the net proceeds of sale, and of any capital money arising under the statutory powers (as extended as hereinafter mentioned), and of the net rents and profits until sale Upon the trusts to be declared concerning the same by the Declaration of Trust hereinafter mentioned.

Conveyance on trust for sale to be executed.

(2) THE said Conveyance shall, in addition to the powers conferred by section twenty-eight of the Law of Property Act, 1925, contain the following powers to be exercisable by the trustees from time to time thereof, namely—

Additional powers.

(a) Power, &c. (see the additional powers in Forms Settlements (Personal) and (Real), supra, pp. 159, 289, et seq).

(3) THE statutory power to appoint new trustees shall apply to the said Conveyance and shall be exercised in accordance with the directions of the members from time to time of the Syndicate, but no reference shall be made to the Syndicate, and a purchaser or other person dealing for money or money's worth with the trustees for the time being shall not be concerned to see that the directions (if any) have been complied with.

New trustees.

3. (1) A DECLARATION of Trust of even date herewith shall be signed by the Original Trustee and the New Trustees (w) agreeing to stand possessed of the said net proceeds of sale, capital money, rents and profits Upon the trusts declared concerning the same by a Memorandum of even date therewith (meaning this Appointment) or such other trusts as the same ought from time to time to be held.

Declaration of Trust.

(2) THE trusts are those requisite for giving effect from time to time to the rights of the members of the Syndicate having regard to the contributions aforesaid and of the persons respectively deriving title under them or any of them.

AS WITNESS, &c.

(w) As the members of the syndicate will not be parties to the declaration of trust, the reference thereto in the conveyance will give no clue as to the beneficial ownership.

APPOINTMENT of ADDITIONAL TRUSTEE for sale where a LEGAL ESTATE was, before 1*st January*, 1926, vested in an INFANT and a PERSON of FULL AGE absolutely and beneficially.(a) (Legal Estate.)

Parties.

THIS APPOINTMENT is made (date), BETWEEN Jane B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Appointor), of the 1st part, R. G., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Guardian), of the 2nd part, N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustee), of the 3rd part, and the Appointor and the New Trustee of the 4th part: WHEREAS:—

Voluntary settlement.

(1) By a Conveyance dated, &c., and made between A. B. (hereinafter called the Settlor), of the one part, and the Appointor and Mary B., an infant (who was born ——), of the other part, in consideration of his natural love and affection for his two daughters (the Appointor and the said Mary B.), the Settlor conveyed to them in fee simple the freehold properties mentioned in the Schedule hereto:

Death of settlor and appointment of guardian.

(2) The Settlor (being a Widower) died on ——, having by his Will dated, &c., appointed the Guardian to be his sole executor and guardian of his infant children, and on the —— (date) the Guardian proved the said Will at the —— Probate Registry:

Statutory vesting in the appointor.

(3) By virtue of paragraph 2 of Part III of the First Schedule to the Law of Property Act, 1925, the said freehold properties became vested in the Appointor (who was born ——) in fee simple upon the statutory trusts:

Desire to appoint.

(4) The Appointor and the Guardian are desirous of making such appointment as is hereinafter contained:

Infant's estates when held on trust for sale.

(a) This deed is made pursuant to L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. III, para. 3, which vests the legal estate in the joint tenant of full age on trust for sale (i.e., on the statutory trusts: ib., s. 35); see also ib., s. 19 (2); S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 3 (5). Had the joint tenants been given life interests, the co-owner of full age would have taken the entirety as settled land, without prejudice to the infant's beneficial interest: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 19 (3), 2nd Sch., para. 3 (6); L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. II, para. 5. In that case the S. L. Act trustees would execute a principal vesting deed in favour of the tenant for life of full age in accordance with S. L. Act, 1925, s. 13, and 2nd Sch.

When settled land.

Persons having power to appoint.

The sole trustee can, it seems, make the appointment under T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (6) (b), unless the power given by para. 3 to the parents or guardian "if no other person is able and willing to do so" operates as a nomination of persons to appoint new trustees "by the instrument, if any, creating the trust," for in the T. Act, 1925, "instrument" includes an Act of Parliament: ib., s. 68 (5). To avoid question the guardian or parents should concur in the appointment.

NOW, in exercise of the powers for this purpose conferred by paragraph two aforesaid and by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH that the Appointor hereby appoints and the Guardian (for purposes of confirmation) hereby also appoints the New Trustee to be an additional trustee of the recited Conveyance for the purposes of the said statutory trusts and to act jointly with the Appointor for those purposes, TO THE INTENT that the legal estate (b) in the said freehold properties shall vest in the parties hereto of the 4th part as joint tenants in fee simple in accordance with the said paragraph.

Appointment of additional trustee.

No. IX.

APPOINTMENT by Disclaiming Trustees of New Trustees of a Compound Settlement in the place of the Public Trustee, the property before 1*st January,* 1926, being vested in tenants in tail in undivided shares in possession. (Legal Estate.) (f)

THIS APPOINTMENT is made, &c., Between R. T., of, &c., and S. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Appointors), of the 1st part, Mary B., of, &c., and Elizabeth B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Tenants in Tail), of the 2nd part, and N. T., of, &c., and N. N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustees), of the 3rd part: Whereas:— Parties.

(1) As appears from the documents and facts mentioned in the First Schedule hereto the freehold properties mentioned in the first part of the Second Schedule hereto vested in the Public Trustee, by virtue of paragraph 1 (3) of the fourth part of the First Schedule to the Law of Property Act, 1925 (pending the appointment of new trustees of the Re-settlement (g) mentioned in the First Schedule hereto). Title in First Schedule to freeholds.

(2) The enfranchised lands and leasehold properties mentioned in the second and third parts of the Second Schedule hereto were, Title to enfranchised lands and leaseholds.

(f) The freeholds were "settled land" immediately before 1st January, 1926, hence come within L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (3), and vest in the Public Trustee for want of S. L. Act trustees. The copyholds and leaseholds would presumably have been vested in trustees (not the disclaiming trustees), hence would be held by them on the statutory trusts: ib., para. 1 (1). It would obviously be convenient to appoint those trustees to be trustees of the freeholds. Enfranchised lands and leaseholds vested in trustees.

Though para. 1 (3) speaks of "one and the same settlement," the expression "settlement" means a "compound settlement," if there is one: ib., s. 1. A "settlement" may consist of two or more instruments. Meaning of "settlement."

In either case the land vests free from the jointure (unless within para. 1 (1) it is secured by a legal term, which would be unlikely). Paragraph 1 (3), as amended, only saves legal mortgages.

Where, before 1st January, 1926, tenants for life were entitled in shares and, after the cesser of their interests in the income, the entirety of the land is settled to devolve together (not in undivided shares), they are treated as joint tenants for life, no trust for sale is implied, but a vesting deed in favour of the tenants for life will be required: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, by adding a new paragraph. Tenants for life entitled in shares to the income remainders over of the entirety.

(g) The tenants in tail would have had the powers of a tenant for life: S. L. Act, 1882, s. 58. Had there been a tenant for life under an instrument the trustees thereof would have been S. L. Act trustees of the compound settlement: amendment of S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31, in the L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926.

But the whole settlement comes to an end by reason of the trust for sale and the jointure is overreachable by the trustees for sale.

on the 1st January, 1926, and still are, legally vested in the New Trustees and accordingly are, by virtue of paragraph 1 (1) of the fourth part of the First Schedule, held by them on the statutory trusts requisite for giving effect to the rights of the jointress and the Tenants in Tail:

Public Trustee not requested to act.

(3) The Public Trustee has not been requested to act for the purposes of the statutory trusts connected with the premises nor have the Tenants in Tail incumbered or otherwise dealt with their undivided shares therein:

Desire to appoint trustees of the Re-settlement.

(4) The Appointors (who, as appears from the First Schedule hereto, were appointed to be the trustees of the Re-settlement therein mentioned for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, but refused to act), are desirous, at the request of the Tenants in Tail, of appointing the New Trustees to be trustees of the said Re-settlement in manner hereinafter appearing:

NOW, in exercise of the power for this purpose (h) conferred by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Appointment of trustees of the Re-settlement.

1. THE Appointors hereby appoint the New Trustees to be trustees of the Re-settlement mentioned in the First Schedule hereto in the place of the Appointors who have refused to act as aforesaid: TO THE INTENT that the said freehold properties and rights shall, by virtue of the Law of Property Act, 1925, vest (free, as in Part IV of the First Schedule to that Act is mentioned) in the New Trustees as joint tenants Upon the statutory trusts in accordance with paragraph 1 (3) (iv) of Part IV aforesaid.

Confirmatory appointment by the tenants in tail.

2. Leases of shares for different terms, &c. Shares held partly freehold and partly leasehold. Powers of the court to authorise special transactions. Power to partition land held on the statutory trusts.

(p) Difficult problems arise where leases of distinct undivided shares have been granted for different terms or subject to different covenants; or where the owner held a share in the land as freeholder and other shares as lessee; in such cases the entirety would vest in the Public Trustee. The proper course would be to re-arrange the beneficial interests, and then apply to the Court under T. Act, 1925, s. 57, and L. P. Act, 1925, s. 66, for an order directing and authorising the Public Trustee, or any trustees for sale appointed in his place, to execute such assurances as may be required for giving legal effect to the scheme. The Public Trustee or other trustees for sale may have power to partition under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 28, and under ib., s. 30, the court may direct the partition to be carried out or make a vesting order; see also as to vesting orders: T. Act, 1925, ss. 44–56.

New trustee must be appointed in place of a lunatic. Recital negativing beneficial interest. Tenants in common or joint tenants.

(q) A new trustee must be appointed in place of a lunatic holding on trust for sale before the legal estate can be dealt with: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 22 (2). The appointment can be made, under T. Act, 1925, s. 36 (1), in his place as being a person unfit or incapable of acting, but where he is entitled in possession to some beneficial interest in the trust property a trustee cannot be appointed in his place by the continuing trustee unless leave has been given by the Judge or Master in Lunacy: ib., sub-s. (9).

Where the lunatic has no beneficial interest in possession, the appointment of a new trustee in his place must contain a statement that he has no such interest; in favour of a purchaser of a legal estate, such a statement will be conclusive evidence of the fact: ib., s. 38.

He might have a beneficial interest in possession if the land vested in him and other co-tenants in common on trust for sale under L. P. Act, 1925, 1st Sch., Pt. IV, para. 1 (2), or was subjected to a trust for sale by ib., s. 34 (2) and (3) (undivided shares expressed to be created after 1925), or s. 36 (beneficial joint tenancies).

&c., and N. N. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the New Trustees), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

(1) Immediately before the 1st January, 1926, the freehold properties mentioned in the First Schedule hereto were (subject to the legal mortgages mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto which affected the entirety or parts thereof), vested in the Appointor, and C. B., his brother, in fee simple beneficially, as tenants in common in equal shares, free from incumbrances affecting their respective shares: Title of tenants in common before 1926.

(2) By virtue of paragraph 1 (2) of Part IV of the First Schedule to the Law of Property Act, 1925, the said properties became vested (subject to the legal mortgages aforesaid which were converted into mortgages for terms of 3,000 years) in the Appointor and the said C. B., in fee simple, on the statutory trusts for sale: Vesting on trust for sale.

(3) By an Order dated (date), In the matter, &c. (recite the order appointing a receiver of the property of C. B.): Order appointing receiver in lunacy.

(4) By an Order made (date), In the matter aforesaid, and In the matter of the Trustee Act, 1925, section thirty-six, leave was given to the Appointor to appoint the New Trustees to be trustees of the properties mentioned in the Schedule to the said Order (being the properties mentioned in the First Schedule hereto), in the place of the said C. B., and to act jointly with the Appointor for the purposes of the statutory trusts: Order authorising new trustees to be appointed.

NOW, in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers and pursuant to the last recited order, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

1. THE Appointor hereby appoints the New Trustees to be trustees of the properties mentioned in the First Schedule hereto [and of any other real estate and chattels real, formerly held by the Appointor and the said C. B., as tenants in common as aforesaid], in the place of the said C. B., and to act jointly with the Appointor for the purposes of the statutory trusts affecting the premises. Appointment of new trustees in place of lunatic.

2. THE requisite vesting declaration shall be implied pursuant to section forty of the Trustee Act, 1925. Vesting declaration.

T. and the New Trustees :

NOW, in exercise of the powers for this purpose conferred by the Settlement and by section sixty-four of the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appointment of new trustees of the settlement and for S. L. Act purposes.

1. THE Appointor hereby appoints the New Trustees—

(i) To be trustees of the Settlement in the place of the said D. T. (deceased) and to act jointly with the said C. T. for all the purposes for which the Original Trustees were appointed trustees by the Settlement :

(ii) To be trustees of the Settlement in the place of the said D. T. (deceased) for all the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925 [including the powers of management given by section one hundred and two of that Act and the statutory powers of maintenance and accumulation applicable during a minority and for any other purposes mentioned in the recited Order (i)] and to act jointly with the Continuing Trustee for those purposes.

Implied vesting declaration.

Maintenance and accumulations under realty settlements made before 1926.

(i) Conv. Act, 1881, ss. 42 and 43, were kept alive by L. P. Act, 1925, 7th Sch., so far as they related to instruments coming into operation before 1926. The T. Act, 1925, s. 31 (maintenance and accumulation), does not apply where the instrument came into operation before 1926 : ib., sub-s. (5). But by s. 70 (repeal of enactments in 2nd Sch.), Conv. Act, 1881, s. 42 (4) and (5), were repealed ; nothing in the repeal affects an appointment made under s. 42, and a reference to s. 42, semble, will be construed as a reference to s. 31, which replaces it : ib., s. 70. In any case, during a minority, the legal estate in the land will be vested in trustees so that Conv. Act, 1881, s. 43, will be applicable. Powers might be given by the court to the statutory owners under S. L. Act, 1925, s. 64. Under that Act, s. 119, 7th Sch., sub-ss. (1), (2), (3) and (7) of s. 42 of Conv. Act, 1881, are repealed, for s. 102 takes their place.

Registered land.

(j) If the settled land is registered under the L. R. Act, 1925, there should be an application by A. B. and C. T. to modify the restriction by substituting the names of N. T. and N. N. T. for C. T., see form at end of Prec. IA, supra.

Endorsement on vesting deed.

The consequential endorsement on the principal vesting deed to be signed on behalf of the trustees will be as follows:—

(Date.) TAKE NOTICE that C. T., of, &c., N. T., of, &c., and N. N. T., of, &c., are the present trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925, of the Settlement referred to in the [within] [above] written Vesting Instrument.

Trustees under last instrument.

(k) This assumes that there were no S. L. Act trustees of any of the instruments prior to the re-settlement: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., amending S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31.

possession of the properties therein referred to under the Re-settlement mentioned in that Schedule (hereinafter called the Re-settlement), whereof the Continuing Trustee and X. Y. (hereinafter together called the Original Trustees) are the present trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925, and has power during his life to appoint new trustees of the Re-settlement :

No S. L. Act trustees of instruments prior to the re-settlement.

(2) As also appears from that Schedule, there are no trustees for the purposes of that Act of any of the instruments constituting the Compound Settlement referred to in that Schedule which are prior in date to the Re-settlement, and accordingly the Original Trustees are now the trustees of the said Compound Settlement :(l)

Heirlooms and capital money.

(3) Certain chattels directed to be held as heirlooms, along with the freehold properties comprised in the Settlement, are vested in the Original Trustees as trustees of the Re-settlement, and the investments and money mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto (representing capital money for the purposes of the said Act) are also standing in their names :

Disability of trustee.

(4) The said X. Y. has remained outside the United Kingdom for more than twelve months [or otherwise state the disability : S. L. Act, 1925, s. 35 (3)] :

Desire to appoint.

(5) The Appointor is desirous of appointing the New Trustees to be trustees of the Re-settlement in the place of the said X. Y. and to act jointly with the Continuing Trustee :

Deed of declaration.

(6) By a Deed of Declaration (as in recital (5) of Prec. IA) (supplemental to the Principal Vesting Deed mentioned in the First Schedule hereto) it was declared that the Continuing Trustee and the New Trustees were the trustees of the Compound Settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925 :

(7) (As in recital (6) *of Prec. I*A) :(m)

Construction of amendment of s. 31.

(l) It is conceived that if three instruments (A., B., & C.), constitute a settlement, and if there are no S. L. Act trustees of A., but there are S. L. Act trustees of B., then the latter, as being trustees of B. & C., by virtue of S. L. Act, 1925, s. 31, would also become trustees of the compound settlement consisting of A., B. and C. ; the persons having power to appoint trustees of B. would be the proper persons to appoint trustees, who would, till displaced, act as trustees of the compound settlement. The expression "the instrument" in the amendment of s. 31 can be properly construed as "the instruments," and the tenant for life becomes tenant for life thereunder, though for the purposes of working the Act (see s. 1), the trustees of A., B. and C. will be the persons to be named in the vesting instrument as the S. L. Act trustees.

Endorsement

(m) For form of endorsement see note to Prec. IIA.

Intended vesting order.

(8) It is intended that (unless other arrangements can be made) an application shall be made to the court under the Trustee Act, 1925, for a vesting order,(n) or an order appointing a person to transfer or join in transferring, in the name of the said X. Y., the investments and money mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto into the joint names of the Continuing Trustee and the New Trustees, and that the costs of and incidental to this Appointment, the said Deed of Declaration and Memorandum and of the said application, shall be discharged thereout :
NOW, in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by the Re-settlement and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appointment in place of trustee unable to act.

1. THE Appointor hereby appoints the New Trustees to be trustees of the Re-settlement in the place of the said X. Y. and to act jointly with the Continuing Trustee for all the subsisting purposes of the Re-settlement and to the intent that (until trustees are appointed in their place) the Continuing Trustee and the New Trustees shall also act as trustees of the Compound Settlement mentioned in the First Schedule hereto for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925.

Implied vesting declaration.

(hereinafter called the New Trustee), of the 2nd part, and the within-named C. T. No. V.

APPOINTMENT of a NEW TRUSTEE of a JOINTURE TERM. (Equitable Interest.)(r)

Parties.

THIS APPOINTMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN C. T., of, &c. (Continuing Trustee of term), of the one part, and N. T., of, &c.

Different trustees of portions term.

(p) It is supposed that by the settlement different trustees are appointed for the term of years to those appointed for general purposes. The modern practice is for portions terms, &c., to be limited to the general trustees, in which case see Prec. IA of this Group. The term would take effect in equity after the Vesting Deed was made: S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 1 (6).

(q) This vesting declaration implied under T. Act, 1925, s. 40, can be negatived; this is not recommended.

Jointure terms not necessary since 1881.

(r) In settlements made after 1882 it is unusual to find limitations of terms for securing jointures. Under L. P. Act, 1925. s. 121 (replacing Conv. Act, 1881, s. 44, with amendments), the person entitled to an annual sum charged on land can limit a term to trustees on usual trusts for raising arrears. After 1925 a jointress, being entitled to an equitable rentcharge (only perpetual rentcharges or rents for terms of years absolute can take effect as legal estates), can only appoint an equitable term. She or her term trustees must enforce their remedies against the estate owner of the settled land under S. L. Act, Modes of raising arrears after 1925.

(hereinafter called the New Trustee) of the other part: WHEREAS :—

Settlement creating rentcharge.

(1) Under a Deed (hereinafter called the Settlement) dated, &c., and made, &c., being a settlement of certain freehold properties in the County of ——, a yearly rentcharge of £—— was limited out of the said properties TO THE USE of the said Jane B. in the event (which happened) of her surviving her husband, the said A. B., during the residue of her life :

Rentcharge fell into arrear and term limited under statutory power.

(2) In the year —— the said rentcharge fell into arrear and accordingly by an Appointment (hereinafter called the Principal Deed) dated, &c., and made between the said Jane B. of the one part and D. T. (a deceased Trustee) and the said C. T. of the other part, the said Jane B., in exercise of the power for that purpose conferred on her by section forty-four (rr) of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, limited all the properties by the Settlement charged with the payment of the said rentcharge TO THE USE of the said D. T. and C. T. for the term of —— years without impeachment for waste upon the usual trusts for raising the arrears and securing payment of the said rentcharge :

Legal mortgage of jointure term by sub-demise.

(3) By a Mortgage dated, &c., and made between the said D. T. and C. T. of the one part, and X. (Mortgagee) of the other part, the said D. T. and C. T. demised the properties mentioned in the Schedule thereto (being part of the properties comprised in the said term of —— years) to the said X. for the residue of the said term, except the last day thereof, by way of mortgage for securing payment to the said X. of the principal sum of £—— and further advances, with interest thereon as therein mentioned :

Death of trustee.

(4) The said D. T. died on the —— day of —— :

Vesting Deed.

(5) By a Vesting Deed dated, &c., and made, &c., and by virtue of the Law of Property Act, 1925, the legal estate in fee simple in the said properties became vested in C. B. (a son of Mortgage term remains a legal term.

(rr) Though S. L. Act, 1925, 2nd Sch., para. 1 (6), speaks of interests "thereby limited," i.e., by "settlements" subsisting on 1st January, 1926, still, in view of the meaning given to settlements by s. 1, this must include an appointment creating a term in exercise of a power in a settlement, hence, when the vesting deed was made, this converted the legal jointure term into an equitable term. This does not apply to the sub-term created by the mortgage (see recital (3)), for this was disposed of for raising money and remains a legal term: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., explaining para. 1 (6) of the 2nd Sch. to the S. L. Act, 1925.

the said A. B., deceased), on the trusts of the Settlement and the term created by the Principal Deed was, by virtue of the Second Schedule to the Settled Land Act, 1925, converted into an equitable term, but without prejudice to the legal sub-term vested in the said X. under the recited Mortgage:

Desire to appoint a new trustee.

(6) The said C. T., as such surviving trustee as aforesaid, is desirous of appointing the New Trustee to be a trustee of the Principal Deed in the place of the said D. T. (deceased): NOW, for effectuating the aforesaid desire and in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred on him by the Trustee Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

Appointment of new trustee.

1. THE said C. T. hereby appoints the New Trustee to be a trustee of the Principal Deed in the place of the said D. T. (deceased) and to act jointly with the said C. T. for all the purposes of that Deed.

Vesting declaration of term (subject to the Mortgage).

2. THE said C. T. hereby declares that the implied vesting declaration shall extend to all the properties which are now comprised in the said term limited by the Principal Deed, but subject to the recited Mortgage and to the legal sub-term thereby created so far as it affects the premises.(s)

Family charges. Optional methods of making title.

(z) Family charges within S. L. Act, 1925, s. 1 (1) (v), are not within s. 21; the existence of such charges creates a settlement, and see ib., s. 20 (1) (ix), also L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1, giving an absolute owner, entitled subject to a charge, an option to make title either in right of his estate subject to the charge, which would be done if he were raising money for his own purposes, unless the transaction could be brought within S. L. Act, 1925, s. 16 (2), see also ib., s. 95; or he can make title under his statutory powers, and override the charge. This amendment is not intended to encourage the making of second class titles, whenever practicable the statutory powers should be exercised.

The option extends to an owner who has made a special settlement under s. 21, for the land is thereby made "settled land," and in effect the charge operates as if created by the settlement.

Special trust for sale.

For the alternative method of a special trust for sale, see L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.; any trust for sale can be converted into an overriding trust for sale by obtaining the approval of the trustees or by the appointment of a trust corporation.

Vesting assent takes the place of vesting deed, when.

Where the settlement is made by a testator who dies after 1925, a vesting assent by the executors takes the place of a vesting deed: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 6; 2nd Sch., para. 1. The executors, in default of other S. L. Act trustees, become the trustees of the settlement: ib., s. 30 (3).

GROUP A.—DISCLAIMERS BY EXECUTORS AND TRUSTEES.

No. I.

DISCLAIMER of the Trusteeship of a WILL by ONE of two or more TRUSTEES.(e) (Equitable Interest.)

THIS DEED OF DISCLAIMER is made this (date), BY A. B., of, &c. (disclaiming party): WHEREAS :—

Will and appointment of executors.

(1) G. H. (hereinafter called the Testator), by his Will dated, &c., after appointing the said A. B. and C. D. to be his executors and trustees, devised and bequeathed all his real and personal estate to his trustees upon the trusts therein mentioned:

Death and probate.

(2) The Testator died on, &c., without having revoked or altered his said Will, which was duly proved in the —— Probate Registry on the (date) by the said C. D. alone, the said A. B. having renounced probate:

Desire to disclaim.

(3) The said A. B. has never acted in the trusts of the said Will and is desirous of executing such disclaimer as is hereinafter contained:

Disclaimer by trustee.

NOW THIS DEED WITNESSETH that the said A. B. hereby disclaims the office of trustee under the said Will, and all real and personal estate and things in action whatsoever and wheresoever devised or bequeathed to him by the said Will (f) as one of the persons named as a trustee thereof, or as devolving on him as one of the persons therein named as one of the trustees and executors (g) thereof, and also all estates and powers thereby expressed to be given to him as such trustee or executor.

Stamp.

(e) Under the Stamp Act, 1891, a disclaimer deed, not being expressly mentioned in the schedule thereto, is liable to a 10*s.* stamp duty. So far as the deed relates to the trusteeship, it affects an equitable interest; so far as it operates as a renunciation of probate, it affects a legal estate if the testator had a legal estate in land.

(f) The trustee should simply disclaim and not profess to convey the property limited to him in trust: Nicloson v. Wordsworth (1818), 2 Swanst. 365. General words are implied under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 62, in the case of deeds of disclaimer: Theobald, 7th ed., 436; Re Fisher and Haslett (1884), 13 L. R. Ir. 546.

DISCLAIMER by TRUSTEE of WILL (without recitals).

BY THIS DEED OF DISCLAIMER made this (date), I, A. B., of, &c. (disclaiming party), hereby disclaim the office of trustee under the Will dated the —— day of —— of G. H. (who died on the —— day of ——, 19—), and all estates and powers thereby given to or vested in me as a trustee, or devolving on me as one of the persons named as executors of the said Will.(h)

DISCLAIMER by a TRUSTEE of a PERSONALTY SETTLEMENT.(i)

THIS DEED OF DISCLAIMER is made this (date), BY A. B., of, &c. (the disclaiming party): WHEREAS :—

Settlement appointing disclaiming trustee one of the trustees.

they sold, all who had not renounced or disclaimed had to convey: Re Pawley [1900], 1 Ch. 58; 69 L. J. Ch. 6. This was first rectified by Conv. Act, 1911, s. 12, now re-enacted and amplified by Ad. of E. Act, 1925, ss. 2 (2), 8 and 24. It was never necessary for special executors of property in a foreign country to concur: Re Cohen & L. C. C. [1902], 1 Ch. 187; 71 L. J. Ch. 164. Disclaimer is more efficient than renunciation of probate, as the executor renouncing may subsequently be allowed to prove: In b., Stiles [1898], P. 12; 67 L. J. P. 23; Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 6; but the subsequent probate takes effect without prejudice to the previous acts and dealings of and notices to the representatives who had previously proved or obtained administration: ib.

Renunciation by S. L. Act trustees, when land ceases to be settled.

The former S. L. Act trustees have the first right as respects land formerly settled to the grant of probate or letters of administration specially limited to that land: ib., s. 22; Jud. Act, 1925, ss. 155 and 162, then if by reason of the death the land ceases to be settled land, it may be expedient that the S. L. Act trustees should renounce their rights. If they have capital money and investments in their hands available for payment of duty, it may, in some cases, be desirable that they should take the grant.

(h) See notes to last Precedent.

Effect of disclaimer on beneficial interests.

(i) See note to Prec. I of this Group. A disclaimer will not (except in the case of a disentailing assurance) affect the interests of the beneficiaries; hence a voluntary settlement is not rendered inoperative by the disclaimer of the sole trustee: Mallott v. Wilson [1903], 2 Ch. 494; 72 L. J. Ch. 664.

Disclaimer of trusteeship under a conveyance on trust for sale.

It is more correct, where land has been expressed to be conveyed on trust for sale, that there should be a separate disclaimer of that trust, for in that case the deed relates to a legal estate, see next Precedent.

(2) The said A. B. has not executed the Settlement [or the Conveyance] nor in any manner acted in the trusts thereof :

NOW THIS DEED WITNESSETH that the said A. B. hereby disclaims and renounces the office of trustee of the Settlement [and of the Conveyance] and all estate and interest in the property thereby [assigned or] conveyed [or settled], and all powers and trusts created by the Settlement [and the Conveyance] and thereby expressed to be made exercisable by the said A. BY THIS DEED OF DISCLAIMER made this (date), I, A. B., of, &c. (who am named as a party to and trustee of the above-written Deed), hereby declare that I have not accepted the trusteeship nor acted in any manner in the trusts thereof : And I disclaim the said trusteeship and all estates, interests and powers by the said Deed expressed to be vested in me [either solely or jointly with any other person]. Disclaimer by trustee.

SECTION III.

INSTRUMENTS RELATING TO THE WINDING UP OF TRUSTS AND ESTATES.

PRELIMINARY NOTE.

Releases when required.

PERSONAL representatives and trustees are entitled to have their accounts examined and settled before they hand over the balance to the beneficiaries, and it is usual and proper in such case for the beneficiaries to execute a formal deed of release. But if a trust is declared of a specified fund in favour of a specified person, so that there are, in fact, no accounts to be settled, and the trustee merely hands over the fund in its original state, in strict accordance with the declared trust, he is not entitled to require a release under seal: Chadwick v. Heatley (1845), 2 Coll. 137; King v. Mullins (1852), 1 Drew. 308.

How releases ought to be drawn.

Releases should be drawn so as to show on the face of the deed that the releasors are fully aware of all the circumstances connected with the subject of the release, of their own rights and position, and of the position of the intended releasees as to breaches of trust, liability, &c., and they should also explicitly state the claims to be released. Releases will be generally governed by the recitals, so that where the words of the release are general, but the recitals refer only to a particular matter, the release will be construed to relate only to the matter recited: Ramsden v. Hylton (1751), 2 Ves. Sen. 304; Pritt v. Clay (1843), 6 Beav. 503.

Indemnity.

The releasing parties generally execute a covenant for indemnity as well as a release, but this is not essential except where there are other persons than the releasors who can be interested in or may have claims on the matter or property to which the release relates.

Releases extend to past acts, but indemnities may extend to the past or future. Where a liability has been incurred (e.g., the acceptance of a mining lease) which cannot be discharged forthwith, a covenant for indemnity ought to be given.

Protection against rent and covenants.

But under T. Act, 1925, s. 26 (as amended), where a trustee or personal representative, liable for rent, whether under a lease or fee farm grant or for a covenant thereunder or for an indemnity given in respect thereof, satisfies all liabilities under the lease or grant accrued and claimed up to the date of the conveyance made for winding up the trust and where necessary sets apart a fund to answer a future claim in respect of "any fixed and ascertained sum" agreed to be laid out on the property, he may convey the property to a purchaser or to a beneficiary or other person entitled to call for a conveyance and may distribute the estate or trust fund among the persons entitled, without any further appropriation, if any. He will not be personally liable for future claims.

Fixed and ascertained sum.

Protection by advertisements.

Protection by advertising for claims can now be obtained by trustees as well as by personal representatives: T. Act, 1925, s. 27, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch.

Protection in regard to notice.

A trustee or personal representative having notice by acting in another trust will be protected in the absence of fraud by ib., s. 28.

Setting aside indemnity fund.

Unless there is a privity of estate between executors and a lessor, the court will not set aside assets to indemnify them against possible liabilities which may arise in respect of leases formerly held by their testator: Re Nixon [1904], 1 Ch. 638; 73 L. J. Ch. 446; see also Re King [1907], 1 Ch. 72; 76 L. J. Ch. 44.

Releases by trustees to trustees.

Where trust money is handed over by the trustees of one settlement to the trustees of another settlement a release is frequently given, but, semble, cannot be insisted upon: Re Cater (1858), 25 Beav. 366. In any such case no indemnity can be required from trustees who are giving a release or receipt. Trustees for sale and personal representatives can give releases under T. Act, 1925, s. 15; they also have the powers to make compromises, &c., given to tenants for life by S. L. Act, 1925, s. 58.

Power to give releases, &c.

Qualified covenants.

A qualified covenant by trustees such as "but not so as to create any personal liability" was held not to relieve them in Watling v. Lewis [1911], 1 Ch. 414; 80 L. J. Ch. 242; but this case has been practically overruled by Buckley, L.J., in Re Robinson, 1912, 1 Ch. 717, 728; 81 L. J. Ch. 393.

Power to transfer share in proceeds to S. L. Act trustees.

Under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 35, as amended by L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, Sch., trustees for sale holding on the "statutory trusts" consequential on land being formerly held in undivided shares, may, after a sale of the entirety, hand over a proper proportion of the proceeds of sale to the S. L. Act trustees of a subsisting settlement to be held as capital money, semble, they could similarly hand over a share to trustees formerly holding a share on trust for sale as being the best mode of giving effect to the beneficial interests.

Cases in which retiring trustees are entitled to a release.

Retiring trustees are not, as a general rule, entitled to a release from the beneficiaries, but sometimes it is expressly stipulated that they shall have one, e.g., where the dealings with the trust funds have not been regular, and the irregularities have been committed at the instance of the beneficiaries, who are sui juris, and see T. Act, 1925, s. 62. Again, if, besides the appointment of new trustees, some alteration is made in the trusts with the consent of the beneficiaries, such an arrangement may properly be treated as a winding up of the old trust and the creation of a new one, and it would be proper to give the retiring trustees a release. If a trustee retires with a view to enable a breach of trust to be committed, he may be held liable for the breach: see Head v. Gould [1898], 2 Ch. 250.

Stamp.

The stamp on releases of trustees is 10*s*.

On the other hand, releases on a sale or mortgage are liable to ad valorem duty. As to whether a release amounts to a sale, see G. N. Ry. Co. v. I. R. C. [1901], 1 K. B. 416; 70 L. J. K. B. 336.

Release on termination of a realty settlement.

For a form of release on the termination of a realty settlement, in the lifetime of the tenant for life, by the S. L. Act trustees, pursuant to S. L. Act, 1925, s. 17, see Settlements (Real), Precs. XIII and XIX, pp. 368, 388.

PROVIDED that this deed shall, notwithstanding that the said —— shall neglect or refuse on attaining full age to confirm this deed, be binding on the other parties hereto as from the date hereof.

Presumption.

There is a presumption that parties to any "conveyance" are of full age: L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 15, 205 (1) (ii), and "conveyance" includes an assurance of any property otherwise than by Will.

B., Spinster) of the 2nd part, and the Sub-Settlement Trustees of the 3rd part, assigned by the said F. (10) The parties hereto of the first four parts have examined the capital accounts kept by the Settlement Trustees, and have fully approved of the dealings with the Trust Fund as therein mentioned, and as evidence of such approval have respectively signed all [the last of] such accounts at the foot thereof.

Or where accounts have been made out for the purposes of the release, the following recital can be used :—

(10) The Settlement Trustees have rendered to each of the parties hereto of the first four parts accounts of the Trust Fund and of the application, disposal and distribution thereof, and each of such parties has examined and approved such accounts, and as evidence of such approval has signed the same at the foot thereof.

Jane B., but received after her death, has been duly accounted for to her personal representatives:

Duties.

(f) Semble, estate duty was payable on the death of X. B. in respect of property settled by him, but no duty would be payable on the property (if any) settled by Jane B., the survivor, until her death, whether she gave her husband the first life interest in her property or not: Fin. Act, 1894, s. 21 (5); Re Waller [1916], 1 Ch. 153; 85 L. J. Ch. 188.

Succession duty between husband and wife.

Succession duty is now made payable in certain cases as between husband and wife: Fin. (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 58 (2).

Duties on death of deceased child.

(g) It is generally more convenient to omit this recital, bringing the capital account up to date and showing therein the payment of the duties and costs. With regard to the estate duty payable on the share of E. B., the deceased child, the personal representatives are accountable for such duty on all property of which the deceased was at the time of his death competent to dispose: Fin. Act, 1894, ss. 8 (3) and 2 (1) (a). On E. B.'s death he had a vested reversionary share liable to be divested by an appointment, and s. 2 (1) (a) includes free personalty in reversion, see Austen-Cartmell, 5th ed., 13. Hence, it would seem that the administrator is the proper person to pay the duty and not the settlement trustees. S. 8 (4) only makes trustees accountable where the personal representative is not.

Persons accountable.

See now as to persons accountable for duties payable in respect of land: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 16; and as to registered land: L. R. Act, 1925, s. 73.

Breaches of trust.

No. II.

RELEASE to TRUSTEES of a REALTY SETTLEMENT (where the entail has been barred) in respect of the land comprised in an ASSENT, heirlooms and capital money. (Equitable Interests.)

Parties.

THIS RELEASE is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Estate Owner), of the one part, and C. T., of, &c., and C. C. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), of the other part: WHEREAS:—

(1) This Deed is supplemental to—

Settlement, &c., under which A. B. is seised in fee simple.(k)

(i) A Settlement (hereinafter called the Principal Deed) dated, &c., and made, &c. (being a Settlement of certain freehold, copyhold and leasehold properties in the Counties of ——, and certain capital money for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts and chattels settled to devolve as heirlooms with the said freehold properties);

(ii) The appointments of New Trustees [Deeds of Discharge] and Deeds of Declaration mentioned in the First Schedule hereto from which it appears that at the date of the Disentailing Assurance hereinafter mentioned the Trustees were the trustees of the Principal Deed for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925;

(iii) A Vesting Deed dated, &c., and made between, &c., from which it appears that the freehold properties, enfranchised lands and leasehold properties then subject to the limitations of the Principal Deed were then vested in the said John B. (the father of the Estate Owner), Upon the trusts affecting the same under the Principal Deed or otherwise;

(iv) The Conveyances to Uses, Subsidiary Vesting Deeds and Compensation Agreements mentioned in the Second Schedule hereto, from which it appears that certain other lands were acquired and made subject to the Principal Deed, and that the manorial incidents affecting the said enfranchised lands had at the date of the said Disentailing Assurance been extinguished:

(k) It is assumed here that the land was limited to A. B.'s father for life, with remainder (subject to a rentcharge) to the first and other sons of A. B.'s father in tail male, &c.

How far an instrument may be made supplemental to other documents.

It is a mistaken idea to suppose that after 1925 an instrument may not properly be made supplemental to a document unless that document will be handed over to the person claiming under the instrument. L. P. Act, 1925, s. 58, says, "as if the supplemental instrument contained a full recital of the previous instrument"; a purchaser may accept the same evidence that the previous instrument did not affect the title as if it had merely been mentioned: ib

(v) The Will dated, &c., of the said John B., who died on (date), and which was on the (date) duly proved by the Trustees at the —— Probate Registry, the grant to them being specially limited to the land remaining subject to the Principal Deed ;

(vi) A Disentailing Assurance dated, &c., and made between the Estate Owner of the one part and the Trustees of the other part ;

(vii) An absolute Assent dated, &c., made between the Trustees of the one part and the Estate Owner of the other part, whereby the Trustees assented to the lands therein described (being the lands remaining subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed) vesting in the Estate Owner in fee simple or absolutely without nominating trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925 :

Title of the estate owner.

(2) By reason of the death of the said John B., as aforesaid, and of his wife Jane B., on the (date), having had issue (l) one child only, namely the Estate Owner (who was born on the (date)), and by virtue of the said Disentailing Assurance the Estate Owner became entitled in fee simple or absolutely to all the property of every description, subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed, and the Trustees (being satisfied that he had not re-settled or otherwise dealt with his interest in the real estate and chattels real) executed the absolute Assent hereinbefore mentioned :

Sales, &c., of the land and application of the capital money.(m)

(3) From time to time divers sales and exchanges of the properties settled by the Principal Deed have been made and part of the capital money settled by the Principal Deed, or arising from sales or representing money received by way of equality on an exchange, has been applied in the purchase of other properties which were made subject to the Principal Deed as aforesaid, or applied in making improvements upon the settled land or otherwise as authorised by the Principal Deed and the Settled Land Act, 1925 ; And short particulars of such sales and exchanges, and of the money and investments representing the residue of the said capital money, are contained in the Third and Fourth Schedules hereto :

(l) This shows that A. B. had attained full age, and that no portion became raisable.

Form of assent.

For a form of the assent by the representatives of the deceased tenant for life, see next Precedent and notes thereto.

Breaches of trust.

(m) If any breaches of trust are known to have occurred they should be expressly stated and referred to as such either in the schedules or in the recitals.

Dealings with heirlooms.

(4) Certain of the chattels settled as heirlooms by the Principal Deed have from time to time been sold and exchanged under the statutory powers as extended by that Deed:

Transfer of investments and delivery of chattels.

(5) All the investments and money held by the Trustees as capital money, as appears from the Fourth Schedule hereto, have been transferred (subject to discharging thereout the duties payable on the deaths of the said John B. and Jane B., and the costs relating to this release and the recited Assent) into the name of the Estate Owner, and all the chattels or heirlooms remaining subject to the trusts of the Principal Deed have been handed over to him, as he hereby acknowledges:

Advertisements for claims.

(6) The Trustees have with the consent of the Estate Owner issued the usual statutory advertisements for claims:(n)

Agreement for release.

(7) Upon the execution of the said Assent and transfers and the delivery of the heirlooms, the Estate Owner being satisfied in all respects with the matters and things relating to the execution of the trusts of the Principal Deed, agreed to execute such release and covenant for indemnity as are hereinafter contained:

NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement and in consideration of the premises, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows:—

purported execution of the trusts and powers of the Principal Deed or of any statutory power [and whether during a minority or not], or otherwise howsoever in relation to the premises.

Covenant for indemnity.(p)

The Estate Owner hereby covenants with the Trustees that the Estate Owner and his estate and effects will at all times hereafter save harmless and keep indemnified the Trustees and each of them and their respective estates and effects, and also the respective estates and effects of all former trustees of the Principal Deed and the estate and effects of the said John B. (deceased), from all liabilities whatsoever which the Trustees or their predecessors in office or any of them or the said John B. or his estate and effects may have sustained or incurred or may hereafter incur by reason of the acceptance or acquisition of any property or the taking out of limited probate to the estate of the said John B. or the making of the said Assent in favour of the Estate Owner or by reason of any disposition, release, covenant, agreement, obligation, breach of trust, act, deed, matter or thing whatsoever, and whether hereinbefore or in any Schedule hereto mentioned or referred to or not ever accepted, made, done, omitted or neglected in the execution or purported execution of the trusts or powers of the Principal Deed or any statutory power [and whether during a minority or not], or otherwise howsoever in relation to the premises.(q)

No. IV.

ABSOLUTE ASSENT to the vesting of REAL ESTATE in a RESIDUARY LEGATEE of a share of the proceeds of sale pursuant to an APPROPRIATION and in part SATISFACTION of the share or to a person who has otherwise become absolutely entitled.(a) (Legal Estate.)

Absolute assent. NOW, the Executors, As the Personal Representatives of the Testator, hereby assent to the vesting of:

ALL, &c. (parcels by reference to Schedule) in the Estate Owner in fee simple.

AS WITNESS, &c. (Add Schedule.)

Appropriations affect equitable interests. Assent to a purchaser from a beneficiary. Transfers of stock to beneficiaries. Forms of assents. Notice. Stamp.

(a) The fact that an appropriation has been made must not be recited, that affects the equitable interest. It is immaterial how the beneficial title of the estate owner arose, he may have been a purchaser from a beneficiary, all that is essential is that the executors or administrators should be satisfied that his claim to be clothed with the legal estate is a good one; it follows that absolute assents to the vesting of real estate (not of mortgage estates, see next Prec.) will, in nearly all cases, be in the same form: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 36. The principle is the same as that governing transfers of stock to persons who become entitled thereto, the equitable interest or the right to call for the stock, whether in a beneficial or fiduciary capacity, is not disclosed, but where the land ought to be held on trust for sale the assent will declare a trust for sale, while if the land ought to be held as settled land the assent will take the form of a vesting assent and nominate S. L. Act trustees. Notice of the assent must be endorsed on the probate or letters of administration; no stamp duty is payable.

Assents subject to legal estates. Over-reachable equitable interests.

(b) Assents may be properly made subject to any legal estate (including charges by way of legal mortgage), but should not be made subject to over-reachable equitable interests or powers. In such cases, even though the estate owner may have a right under L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1, to convey his legal estate (e.g., for mortgage purposes) subject to the equitable interest, the assent should either take the form of a vesting assent or a special trust for sale so that he may retain his option of conveying free therefrom.

(hereinafter called the Annuitant), of the 2nd part, L. A., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Legatee), of the 3rd part, and T. L., of, &c. it will not be worth while if the capital has become absolutely vested in the children, subject, as regards half of the estate, to the life interest, to hold that half in trust during the residue of the life of the surviving spouse. Property can be appropriated in or towards satisfaction of the redemption money: ib., ss. 41 and 48 (2) (b). Appropriation of property.

If the life interest has been assigned to a purchaser, a release may be required when the money is paid.

(m) As a general rule no deed of appropriation is required, evidence of the appropriation will generally be shown by recitals in a release, and letters of consent will be kept if the consenting parties do not join in the release. But in the case in the text, though the interests provided for are equitable interests, the estate owner will require the deed, or a duplicate of it, to show that he can make title free from the charges without a vesting deed and independently of the S. L. Act, or a special trust for sale. It will also be material to the purchasers who have taken subject to the family charges. If arrangements can be made to file the deed at the Central Office, this will be deemed expedient. Appropriation deeds generally unnecessary.

NOW, in exercise of the power for this purpose conferred by section forty-one of the Administration of Estates Act, 1925, and of all other powers, THIS DEED WITNESSETH as follows :—

Appropriation.

1. THE Personal Representatives with the consent of the Annuitant and of the Legatee, hereby appropriate the investments mentioned in the Schedule hereto (being part of the residuary personal estate of the Testator), to answer by means of the income thereof the said annuity in manner hereinafter mentioned, and as regards the capital and income after the cesser of the said annuity in satisfaction of the said reversionary legacy in exoneration of all other property charged with the payment of the said annuity and reversionary legacy including the properties so sold by the Estate Owner as aforesaid.

Trusts for giving effect to the appropriation.

2. FOR giving effect to the said appropriation the Personal Representatives shall stand possessed of the said investments, and the investments from time to time representing the same (hereinafter called the Appropriated Fund), Upon the following trusts, namely—

Trust to pay annuity.

(1) UPON TRUST out of the income thereof to pay the said annuity and all arrears (if any) thereof, and to pay the surplus income accruing during the subsistence of the said annuity, and not required to answer the same to the Estate Owner or the persons deriving title under him :

Trust for legatees.

(2) Subject to the trusts aforesaid the Appropriated Fund and the income thereof shall after the death of the Annuitant [or the earlier cesser of the said annuity] be held IN TRUST for the Legatee, and the said Mary A., in equal shares, or the persons respectively deriving title under them in satisfaction of all claims in respect of the said reversionary legacy :

Changes of investment.

(3) During the subsistence of the said annuity all changes of the investments representing the Appropriated Fund shall be made with the consent of the Annuitant.

New trustees.

3. DURING the subsistence of the said annuity the Annuitant shall have power to appoint new trustees hereof.

IN WITNESS, &c.(n) (Add Schedule of investments.)

Other modes of making title.

(n) The representatives become the S. L. Act trustees of the Will: S. L. Act, 1925, s. 30 (3), and could execute a vesting deed : ib., 2nd Sch., para. 1. Had the land been vested in them they could have executed a vesting assent : ib., 2nd Sch., para. 2. These methods would have enabled the estate owner to make a title, in future, free from the family charges without an appropriation, but would not have cleared the titles which had been made subject thereto. He could have continued to make titles subject to the family charges under L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1926, s. 1, and would, apart from an appropriation, have done so where money had to be raised for his own purposes. It would also have been open to him to have created a special trust for sale : L. P. Act, 1925, s. 2 (2), as amended.

Searches on the winding up of an estate or trust.

It is recognised in T. Act, 1925, s. 27 (2) (b), that trustees and personal representatives, when conveying a legal estate in land (by an assent or otherwise) to a person interested on the winding up of the trust or estate, may have to obtain official certificates of search corresponding to those which a purchaser would require : L. P. Act, 1925, ss. 197, 198. In practice, these searches against the back title will seldom be required, for the trustees or representatives will generally know the material facts ; but they must satisfy themselves that they are vesting the legal estate in the proper person.

DIVISION IV.

SEPARATION DEEDS.

PRELIMINARY NOTE.

Validity of separation contracts.

AN executory contract for separation is binding on the parties, and will be specifically enforced by the court if founded on good and valuable consideration: Vaizey, 1447; Lush, 3rd ed., 455, 480; but even then the deed would not be enforced if it were contrary to public policy according to English law: ib., 456; and see Harrison v. H. (No. 1) [1910], 1 K. B. 35; 79 L. J. K. B. 133. But an agreement for or conditional on future separation is void: Cocksedge v. C., 5 Hare, 397; Brodie v. B. [1917], P. 271, unless contained in a reconciliation agreement; see Harrison v. H., supra, and Re Meyrick [1921], 1 Ch. 311.

Separation agreement may be pleaded as a bar to action for restitution of conjugal rights.

An agreement by husband and wife to live separately is not illegal as contrary to public policy, it should be made in contemplation of immediate separation, and if acted on may be pleaded by way of defence to a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights or for a judicial separation: Hunt v. H. (1861), 4 D. F. & J. 221; 31 L. J. Ch. 161; Marshall v. M. (1879), 5 P. D. 19; 48 L. J. P. 49; Besant v. Wood (1879), 12 Ch. D. 605; 48 L. J. Ch. 497; Welch v. W. [1916], 85 L. J. P. 188; Roe v. R. [1916], P. 163, and see Kennedy v. K. [1907], P. 49; 76 L. J. P. 34, and cases there cited, but is no defence where the husband has become bankrupt and is unable to pay an annuity to the wife, which he had covenanted to pay: McQuiban v. M. [1913], P. 208; nor where the deed has been repudiated: cf. Looker v. L. [1918], P. 132. Restitution may be ordered if the other side does not set up the deed: Williams v. W. [1921], P. 131, if the court is satisfied as to the sincerity of the applicant: Harnett v. H. [1924], P. 126.

Compromise of a matrimonial suit, or of threatened proceedings, a sufficient consideration.

The compromise of matrimonial proceedings, or the abandonment of threatened proceedings where circumstances exist which would be a ground for such proceedings, is a sufficient consideration for a separation agreement and for any stipulations as to money or property which either party may, as part of the same arrangement, make in favour of the other: McGregor v. M. (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 424; 57 L. J. Ch. 591; Cahill v. C. (1883), 8 A. C. 420; Hulse v. H. (1910), 103 L. T. 804.

Covenant by wife if she has separate property a sufficient consideration for covenant by husband.

A covenant by a trustee, or (since the M. W. P. Act, 1893) by the wife herself, to indemnify the husband against her debts is a sufficient consideration for a covenant by the husband to make her an allowance, or to give her any other benefit: Stephens v. Olive (1786), 2 Bro. C. C. 90; Worrall v. Jacob (1817), 3 Mer. 256; Walrond v. W. (1858), Johns 18; 28 L. J. Ch. 97; Sweet v. S. [1895], 1 Q. B. 12; 64 L. J. Q. B. 108. A covenant by the wife to indemnify the husband against antecedent debts is not a usual covenant in a separation deed: Brailey v. B. [1922], P. 15; 91 L. J. P. 65.

Provisions of separation deed generally avoided by reconciliation.

The general rule is that the provisions of a separation deed come to an end if the parties become reconciled and resume cohabitation: Bateman v. Ross (1813), 1 Dow, 235; Nicol v. N. (1886), 31 Ch. D. 524; 55 L. J. Ch. 437; as to resumption of cohabitation, see article in (1926), 70 Sol. J. 627–8. But it is a question of construction whether any particular provision is intended to remain in force afterwards; when such an intention is shown, the deed will operate to that extent as a post-nuptial settlement: Ruffles v. Alston (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 539; Re Spark [1904], 1 Ch. 451; [1904], 2 Ch. 121 (C. A.). On a reconciliation it is not contrary to public policy to provide for the future maintenance of the wife if the parties again agree to separate: MacMahon v. M. [1913], 1 Ir. R. 428; Re Meyrick [1921], 1 Ch. 311; 90 L. J. Ch. 152.

A deed made in contemplation of a separation which never takes place is void: Bindley v. Mulloney (1869), L. R. 7 Eq. 343; and a separation deed providing an allowance for a wife is void if the marriage was invalid: Law v. Harrigan (1917), 61 Sol. J. 546. A deed may be set aside for fraudulent misrepresentation by the husband as to his means: Hulton v. H. [1917], 1 K. B. 813.

Stamp.

The stamp on a separation deed is 10*s.*; where it contains a covenant for the payment of an annuity, an ad valorem stamp (2*s.* 6*d.* for every £5) on the "sum periodically payable," is charged. Semble, the Finance (1909-10) Act, 1910, s. 74 (5), does not alter this, but the stamp should be adjudicated.

Weekly sum.

As the ad valorem stamp is calculated on "the sum periodically payable," it is advisable to make the annuity payable weekly, so that the stamp duty will be only ad valorem on the weekly sum: Jackson v. I. R. C. (1902), 50 W. R. 666; Hulse v. H. (1910), 54 Sol. J. 704; and cf. Lewis v. I. R. C. [1898], 2 Q. B. 290; 67 L. J. Q. B. 694; Highmore, 4th ed., 135, 136.

No. I.

DEED of SEPARATION between HUSBAND and WIFE, COVENANT by HUSBAND to permit his WIFE to live separate; COVENANTS by the TRUSTEE to indemnify the HUSBAND against all obligations to MAINTAIN his WIFE, or to answer for her DEBTS. PROVISION as to CUSTODY of CHILDREN.

Parties.

THIS SEPARATION DEED is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Husband), of the 1st part, C. B., of, &c., wife of the said A. B. (hereinafter called the Wife), of the 2nd part, and E. T., of, &c., and F. T., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Trustees), of the 3rd part: WHEREAS:—

Differences have arisen.

(1) Unhappy differences have arisen between the Husband and Wife, and they have accordingly agreed to live separate from each other for the future and to enter into such arrangement as is hereinafter contained:

Issue of marriage.

(2) The Husband and Wife have two children (namely), L. B., now of the age of —— years, and M. B., now of the age of —— years:

NOW, in pursuance of the said agreement and in consideration of the covenants hereinafter contained and of the premises, THIS DEED WITNESSETH and it is hereby agreed as follows:—

Covenants by the husband. (a)

1. THE Husband hereby covenants with the Wife, and as a separate covenant with the Trustees, as follows—

(1) That the Wife shall, and may at all times hereafter, notwithstanding her coverture, live separate and apart from the Husband, as if she were unmarried:

(2) That she shall henceforth be free from the control and authority of the Husband, and be at liberty to reside in such place and in such manner as she shall think fit:

(3) That the Husband will not at any time hereafter require her to live with him, or institute any legal proceedings or take any other steps whatsoever for that purpose:

(4) That he will not in any wise molest or interfere with the Wife in her manner of living or otherwise:

(5) That the Husband will (b) during the joint lives of himself and the Wife if they shall so long live separate from each other, (c)

(a) Where a covenant to live apart has been omitted from a deed of separation it may be implied from the recital: Re Weston [1900], 2 Ch. 164; 69 L. J. Ch. 555.

The covenant with the trustees jointly also operates as a covenant with each of them: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 81. It is not necessary in this case to have more than one trustee as a surety.

Annuity.

(b) Income tax can be deducted from the annuity: Re Barry [1906], 2 Ch. 358; Re Hatch [1919], 1 Ch. 351; 88 L. J. Ch. 147; see Burroughes v. Abbott [1922], 1 Ch. 86; 91 L. J. Ch. 157; and 156 L. T. Newsp. 420; 33 L. Q. R. 172. A covenant to pay an annuity to the wife during her life if she should "so long continue to live separate and apart" ceases on the husband's death: Re Gilling [1905], 74 L. J. Ch. 335. See Preliminary Note as to stamp duty. If the annuity is to be "for such a sum as after deducting income tax and super tax (if any) shall amount to a net annual sum of £——" then an obligation should be imposed on the wife to claim any reduction to which she may be entitled, and to account to the husband for the money recovered after deducting costs.

Annuity free of tax.

Sums payable to the wife under this covenant can be proved in the husband's bankruptcy; but on his bankruptcy no action can be maintained for arrears or future payments: Victor v. V. [1912], 1 K. B. 247; 81 L. J. K. B. 354.

An agreement for separation cannot, though an order can, effectively provide that an allowance is to be paid free of tax: Daynell-Steyning v. D.-S. [1922], P. 280. As to the correct form of order: ib.; Smith v. S. [1923], P. 191. Even if the agreement is to be made a rule of court: Croft v. C. (1922), 38 T. L. R. 648; it must stipulate, in effect, for payment of an additional sum equal to the tax if a net sum is to be paid: cf. Burroughes v. Abbot, supra; Re Gordon [1924], 1 Ch. 146.

Dum casta clause.

(c) There are cases in which it would be prudent (see Wasteneys v. W. [1900], A. C. 446; 69 L. J. P. C. 83) on the part of the husband to stipulate that pay to the Trustees the annual sum of £—— to be held by them UPON TRUST for the Wife without power of anticipation, the said annual sum to be paid by equal half-yearly payments on the —— day of —— and the —— day of —— in every year, the first payment thereof to be made on the —— day of —— next [or, to be paid by equal weekly instalments on each Saturday, the first payment to be made on the Saturday next after the date hereof]: PROVIDED as follows—

(i) The said annual sum shall cease if the marriage between the Husband and Wife shall at any time hereafter be dissolved by a court of competent jurisdiction ;(d)

(ii) The Husband may give a direction to his bankers to pay the said annual sum to the bankers of the Wife to be placed to her credit, and such payments when made shall be accepted in or towards satisfaction of the said annual sum.

[(5A) All property and things in action (if any) now belonging to the Wife for any estate or interest, whether in possession, reversion or otherwise, shall belong to her for her separate use :(e)]

(6) If the Wife dies intestate in the lifetime of the Husband all property and things in action (if any) of the Wife the payment shall continue so long only as the wife remains chaste. In such a case the words "and the Wife shall continue to lead a chaste life" should be introduced here. Such a condition could not be insisted on in the absence of an express stipulation: Hart v. H. (1881), 18 Ch. D. 670; 50 L. J. Ch. 697; Bradley v. B. (1882), 7 P. D. 237; 51 L. J. P. 87; Sweet v. S. [1895], 1 Q. B. 12; 64 L. J. Q. B. 108. Where a separation deed contained a recital to the effect that a sum should be paid to the wife while chaste, a dum casta clause was implied in the operative part: Crouch v. C. [1912], 1 K. B. 378; 81 L. J. K. B. 275.

---

"Living separate."

As to the meaning of "live separate from each other," see Rowell v. R. [1900], 1 Q. B. 9; 69 L. J. Q. B. 55, where it was held that occasional acts of marital intercourse may take place without necessarily putting an end to the separation; see also Macan v. M. [1900], 70 L. J. Q. B. 90.

Provision made for wife by separation deed liable to be altered by court in the event of a divorce.

(d) In the absence of this proviso, the court would have power, under the Jud. Act, 1925, s. 192, after a decree for dissolution of the marriage, to relieve the husband either wholly or partially from the covenant: Worsley v. W. (1872), L. R. 1 P. & M. 648; 38 L. J. P. 43; Bullock v. B. (1869), L. R. 2 P. & M. 389; 41 L. J. P. 83; Jump v. J. (1883), 8 P. D. 159; 52 L. J. P. 71; Churchward v. C. [1910], P. 195; 79 L. J. P. 59; Bosworthick v. B. [1926], P. 159. If the annual sum is made payable so long only as the wife remains chaste, this proviso will be omitted as unnecessary, though in case of a previous undisclosed adultery it may be safer to retain the proviso.

Alimony.

Under the Jud. Act, 1925, s. 190, the court can grant maintenance and alimony on any decree for dissolution or nullity of marriage: K. v. K [1910], P. 140; 79 L. J. P. 33. See also Chap. II, Sect. V, supra.

(e) This provision will be unnecessary if the marriage took place after 1882.

which, but for this provision, would on her death go and belong to the Husband as statutory next-of-kin or (as respects entailed interests) as tenant by the curtesy, or otherwise, shall go to and be held IN TRUST for the persons and in the manner to whom and which the same would have gone if the Husband had died in her lifetime, and the Husband shall renounce all rights to obtain representation to her estate.(f)

Covenants by the wife and her trustees.

2. THE Wife and the Trustees as her sureties hereby jointly and severally covenant with the Husband as follows—

(1) That the Wife and the Trustees will at all times hereafter,(ff) during the continuance of the said separation, save harmless and keep indemnified the Husband from and against all debts and liabilities hereafter to be contracted or incurred by the Wife, whether for her wearing apparel, maintenance, support or otherwise, and from and against all claims and demands in respect thereof:

(2) That the Wife, or any person on her behalf, will not at any time hereafter commence or prosecute any action or other proceeding (g) for compelling the Husband to cohabit with the Wife or to allow her any support, maintenance or alimony (except the said annual sum hereinbefore covenanted to be paid to her,(h)) and will not molest (i) the Husband in any manner.

Rights of husband on intestacy of wife.

(f) As to the husband's beneficial rights on an intestacy where the wife dies after 1925: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 46. He may become entitled to an equitable estate by the curtesy under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 130.

(ff) This is correct, see Brailey v. B. [1922], P. 15; 91 L. J. P. 65.

Covenant not to sue ineffectual in certain cases.

(g) A covenant by a wife in a separation deed that all proceedings instituted against her husband shall be stayed, and that she will not revive them, does not preclude the wife from setting up former acts of cruelty coupled with subsequent adultery in a suit for dissolution: Norman v. N. [1908], P. 6; 77 L. J. P. 8; Balcombe v. B. [1908], P. 176; 77 L. J. P. 81; cf. Rose v. R. (1883), 8 P. D. 98; 52 L. J. P. 25; McQuiban v. M. [1913], P. 208; 83 L. J. P. 19.

A wife may, in certain cases, obtain a decree for restitution of conjugal rights, notwithstanding a deed of separation containing a covenant not to sue for restitution: Kennedy v. K. [1907], P. 49; 76 L. J. P. 34.

Effect of dissolution of marriage.

(h) This covenant is binding on the wife, though there may be afterwards a decree for judicial separation on account of the husband's adultery: Gandy v. G. (1882), 7 P. D. 168; 51 L. J. P. 41. But if there is a dissolution of the marriage, the court can vary the deed and order a larger sum for alimony: Morrall v. M. (1881), 6 P. D. 98; 50 L. J. P. 62; Bishop v. B. [1897], P. 138; 66 L. J. P. 69; Barry v. B. [1901], P. 87; 70 L. J. P. 17; and see Jud. Act, 1925, ss. 190, 192. Alimony granted by order of the court cannot be assigned or released: cf. Underwood v. U. [1894], P. 204; 63 L. J. P. 109; Watkins v. W. [1896], P. 222, nor can maintenance under Jud. Act, 1925, s. 190 (2). Alimony is not, nor is a sum paid under an agreement and taken into account in calculating maintenance, liable to equitable execution: Walls Ltd. v. Legge

Alimoney not assignable.

Agreement as to custody of children.

3. (1) THE Husband shall have the custody of the said L. B., and the Wife shall have the custody of the said M. B.:

(2) THE Husband shall have access to the said M. B., and the Wife shall have access to the said L. B. under such arrangements as shall from time to time be made between them for that purpose, or if they shall be unable to agree, then under such arrangements as shall be made by the Trustees.(j)

No. II.

DEED of SEPARATION between HUSBAND and WIFE where there has been a MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT (another Form where there is no Trustee).(k)

Parties.

THIS SEPARATION DEED is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B.,

[1923], 2 K. B. 240; secus, maintenance under ib., s. 190 (1); Harrison v. H., 13 P. D. 180. The order (enforceable only in the P. D. and A. Division though arrears may be claimed in an administration action: Re Stillwell [1916], 1 Ch. 365), may make it payable free from deduction for income tax either expressly or by implication: Daynell-Steyning v. D.-S. [1922], P. 280; q.v., as to form of order: Smith v. S. [1923], P. 191, but a subsequent deed of covenant cannot make it payable free from the tax: Blount v. B. [1916], 1 K. B. 230; cf. Burroughes v. Abbott [1922], 1 Ch. 86; 91 L. J. Ch. 157.

Income tax.

(i) As to what is molestation: Fearon v. Earl of Aylesford (1884), 14 Q. B. D. 792; 54 L. J. Q. B. 33; Sweet v. S. [1895], 1 Q. B. 12; 64 L. J. Q. B. 108; Hunt v. H. [1897], 2 Q. B. 547; 67 L. J. Q. B. 18.

"Molestation."

(j) The father has at common law the right to the custody of all his infant children, but under the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1925, the father and mother have equal rights, and see Re Thain [1926], Ch. 576. The Custody of Infants Act, 1873, s. 2, provides that no agreement contained in any separation deed made between the father and mother of an infant should be held invalid by reason only of its providing that the father shall give up the custody or control of the infant to the mother, but with a proviso that no court shall enforce such agreement if it will not be for the benefit of the infant to give effect thereto. Under the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886, s. 5, as extended by ib., 1925, s. 3, the court may, on the application of the mother, make such order as it may think fit regarding the custody of any infant and the right of access thereto of either parent. Thus the court has full jurisdiction as to custody. As to the principles which guide the court in cases relating to the custody of infants: Re Taylor (1876), 4 Ch. D. 157; 46 L. J. Ch. 399; Re Besant (1879), 11 Ch. D. 508; 48 L. J. Ch. 497; Re A. and B. [1897], 1 Ch. 786; 66 L. J. Ch. 592; Re G. [1899], 1 Ch. 719; 68 L. J. Ch. 374; Re X. [1899], 1 Ch. 526; 68 L. J. Ch. 265; F. v. F. [1902], 1 Ch. 688; 71 L. J. Ch. 415; Ward v. Laverty [1925], A. C. 101; Re Thain, supra. As to appointment of guardians: Act of 1925, ss. 4, 5 and 6; as to summary jurisdiction: ib., s. 7; see also Custody of Children Act, 1891.

Who is entitled to the custody of the children after separation of the parents.

Where a decree for judicial separation or divorce is made by the court (see Jud. Act, 1925, s. 192; Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886, s. 7), non-compliance with an order for restitution does not prevent the court from allowing the defaulter to retain custody: W. v. W. [1926], P. 111.

(k) See notes to last Precedent. Notice of this deed must be given to the settlement trustees.

2. SEPARATION AGREEMENT (a Short Form suitable for PERSONS of the WORKING CLASS).(n)

Parties.

THIS SEPARATION AGREEMENT is made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (hereinafter called the Husband), of the one part, and C. B., the wife of the said A. B. (hereinafter called the Wife), of the other part:

Introductory recital.

WHEREAS unhappy differences having arisen between the parties hereto, they have agreed to enter into the arrangement hereinafter contained:

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:—

Parties to live separate.

1. THE parties shall henceforth live separate and apart from each other, and neither of them shall molest the other.

(m) This clause does not exclude the husband's right in the event of intestacy but see last Precedent. It will be omitted if the marriage has taken place after 1882.

(n) In many cases a voluntary separation agreement will be found more in the interests of the parties than an application under the Summary Jurisdiction (Married Women) Act, 1895, for a separation order. See Guardianship of Infants Act, 1925, s. 7, as to summary jurisdiction respecting custody and maintenance of infants. The stamp on this agreement will be ad valorem on the weekly sum and a 6*d*. agreement stamp; see Preliminary Note, p. 567.

Husband to pay weekly sum to wife.

2. THE Husband shall pay to the Wife during their joint lives the weekly sum of —— shillings so long as she shall remain chaste, the same to be paid on every —— morning.

Wife to have custody of children and to maintain them out of weekly sum.

3. THE Wife shall have the custody of the children (namely) (state their names and ages), and shall, out of the said weekly sum, properly maintain and provide for the said children until they shall respectively attain the age of sixteen years, and shall keep indemnified the Husband against all claims in respect of such children. (A provision might here be inserted, if desired, reducing the weekly sum as the children grow up.)

Agreement to be void if children become chargeable to parish.

4. IF by reason of the neglect of the Wife the said children, or any of them, shall become chargeable to the parish, this agreement shall thenceforth be void.

IN WITNESS, &c.

CHAPTER IV.

NEW LAW OF WILLS.(a)

SECT. I.—What property may be disposed of by Will, who may make a Will, how a Will must be executed and attested, and what is a revocation of a Will.

What property might be disposed of by Will under old law.

THE Wills Act, 1837, enabled every person to dispose by Will of all real and personal estate which he was entitled to, at law or in equity, at the time of his death, and which, if not so disposed of, would under the old law have devolved upon his heir-at-law or customary heir, or if he became entitled by descent, upon the heir-at-law or customary heir of his ancestor, or upon his executor or administrator, including estates pur autre vie, contingent, executory, or other future interests, and rights of entry for conditions broken. A person in sole possession of land without any other title has a devisable interest: Asher v. Whitlock (1865), L. R. 1 Q. B. 1; 35 L. J. Q. B. 17; and a possibility of reverter on failure of a fee simple conditional is devisable as a right of entry for condition broken.(b)

Possibility of reverter.

EFFECT UNDER NEW LAW.

The following cannot be disposed of by a Will:—

(1) The corpse.

(2) Shares in a company if the articles prohibit such alienation.

(3) Rights of action of a personal nature.

(4) Friendly society benefits under a nomination.

(5) Wages, &c., payable by the Admiralty.

Where a testator dies after 1925, his Will takes effect to enable equitable interests to be disposed of, subject and without prejudice to the estate and powers of the personal representative: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1924, 9th Sch., para. 3.

New law. Wills operate in equity.

(a) Generally on this subject, see Theobald, 7th ed.; Jarman, 6th ed.

(b) Pemberton v. Barnes [1899], 1 Ch. 544; 68 L. J. Ch. 192. The doubt whether a bastard without issue could dispose of real estate or chattels real is removed by L. P. Act, 1925, s. 178.

Bastards' Wills.

Title of personal representatives.

Trust and mortgage estates.

Under Ad. of E. Act, 1925, Pt. I, all the disposable interests of a testator in real estate, including chattels real, together with trust and mortgage estates, pass to the personal representatives. Trust estates, include "settled land," but in this case separate representation will be granted to the S. L. Act trustees: ib., ss. 22–24; Jud. Act, 1925, s. 162. Where no S. L. Act trustees have been appointed, or they have renounced, and the tenant for life has died intestate, the next person entitled to the fee simple (the land having ceased to be settled land) may take out a separate grant of administration limited to the land under Jud. Act, 1925, s. 155.

General powers.

Entailed interests.

An appointment under a general testamentary power operates to pass the real estate and chattels real appointed to the personal representatives: ib., s. 3 (2). Similarly if an entailed interest in property in possession is disposed of under L. P. Act, 1925, s. 176, it will vest in the personal representatives: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 3 (3).

No copyholds.

Production to steward.

There are no copyhold estates after 1925: L. P. Act, 1922, Pt. V, hence the Cop. Act, 1894, s. 88, becomes obsolete: L. P. (Amend.) Act, 1924, 9th Sch., para. 6. The enfranchised lands will after 1925 pass to the personal representatives; nor will it be necessary to produce the probate to the steward till some dealing with a legal estate takes place (not being the grant of a lease or tenancy for a year or less or from year to year), but a dealing includes an assent: L. P. Act, 1922, s. 129 (9).

Lunatics.

Though in the case of a lunatic or defective living and of full age on 1st January, 1926, who dies intestate, without having recovered his testamentary capacity, the heir-at-law does not lose his beneficial rights in the real estate, still the real estate will vest in the personal representatives, and the title of the heir will remain to be completed by an assent in writing: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 51 (2); as to assents, which are available assurances whether the deceased died testate or intestate: ib., s. 36.

Assent requisite to pass a legal estate.

The general result is that a good equitable title can be obtained under a Will, but to clothe the person entitled, whether as beneficial owner, tenant for life or statutory owner (as trustee of settled land), trustee for sale, personal representative of a claimant or otherwise, an assent in writing is requisite for conferring a legal estate. For general purposes a title to land cannot be made without the legal estate: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 42. Assents may be said to be available for all assurances of interests in land (not being mortgage debts), save when the personal representatives are themselves making title for value, when a conveyance, deed of exchange, mortgage or lease should be employed according to the nature of the transaction.

Deaths before 1926.

Even where the testator or intestate dies before 1926, if the land is vested in personal representatives the new powers of assenting or conveying will be available: Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 36 (12).

Who may make a Will.

Infants.

A Will made by an infant is void: Wills Act, 1837, s. 7; unless made by a sailor or soldier while on active service: Wills (Sailors and Soldiers) Act, 1918; Re Wernher [1918], 2 Ch. 82. In any case he cannot hold a legal estate: L. P. Act, 1925, s. 1. Moreover, if an infant dies after 1925 without having been married, and independently of Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 51 (3), he would have been equitably entitled under a settlement (including a Will) to a fee simple or absolute interest in freeholds or in any property settled therewith or as freehold land, such infant will, by virtue of that section, be deemed to have had an entailed interest, hence the property will not pass under his intestacy to his representatives as part of his estate.

Married women.

Under the M. W. P. Act, 1882,(c) a woman married after 1882 has power to dispose by Will of all property belonging to her at the time of the marriage, or acquired by or devolving on her afterwards, and a woman married before 1883 has the same testamentary power over property her title to which (in possession, reversion, or remainder) accrues after 1882: M. W. P. Act, 1882, ss. 2, 5; while the M. W. P. Act, 1893, s. 3, makes the Will of a married woman operate upon all the property to which she was entitled at her death: Re James [1910], 1 Ch. 157; 79 L. J. Ch. 45.

Traitors and felons.

Traitors and felons may dispose of their property by Will, but not otherwise: Theobald, 7th ed., 25; Forfeiture Act, 1870.

Lunatics, &c.

Lunatics, defectives, and other persons incapacitated by mental infirmity from disposing of property by deed are equally incapable of making a Will. A Will, made during a lucid interval, is valid: Roe v. Nix [1893], P. 55. For the purposes, however, of Ad. of E. Act, 1925, s. 51 (2), he will not be deemed to have recovered his testamentary power till his committee or receiver has been discharged. If a committee or receiver has not been appointed he is not treated as a lunatic.

(c) As to the law before this Act, see Theobald, 7th ed., 20: Willock v. Noble (1875), L. R. 7 H. L. 580; 44 L. J. Ch. 345.

Execution and attestation.

Under Wills Act, how Will must be executed.

Every Will made since the Wills Act, 1837, must be in writing and signed at the foot or end thereof by the testator or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, and such signature must be made or acknowledged by the testator in the presence of two or more witnesses present at the same time, and the witnesses must attest and subscribe the Will in the presence of the testator, but no special form of attestation is prescribed.

As to appointments in exercise of power.

An appointment made by Will in exercise of any power must be executed in like manner, and such execution is sufficient, notwithstanding that some additional or other form of execution or solemnity may be required by the instrument creating the power: Wills Act, 1837, ss. 9, 10. This does not apply where the power does not in terms authorise an appointment by Will.

Sealing.

Thus, if the power is to appoint by a writing under the hand and seal of the donee, sealing is essential.(d)

Foreign domicile.

A Will properly and validly made according to the law of a testator's foreign domicile and admitted to probate in England may, without complying with these provisions, exercise a general or special testamentary power of appointment over trust funds of an English settlement.(e)

Soldiers and sailors.

The Wills of soldiers and sailors in actual service are excepted from the provisions of the Act as to execution.(f)

Position of the signature.

Under the Wills Act Amendment Act, 1852, the signature is sufficient if so placed at, or after, or following, or under, or beside, or opposite to, the end of the Will, that it is apparent on the face of the Will that the testator intended to give effect by his signature to the writing signed as his Will; but no signature is operative to give effect to any disposition or direction which is underneath or which follows it, or is inserted after the signature is made.(g)

Presumption that Will is duly executed

Where a Will has a formal attestation clause, and appears on the face of it to be properly executed, the court will presume

"Actual service."

(f) S. 11; see also the Navy and Marines (Wills) Acts, 1865 and 1897; Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, s. 177. As to the meaning of "in actual service," see Re Hiscock [1901], P. 78; 70 L. J. P. 22; Gattward v. Knee [1902], P. 99; 71 L. J. P. 34; Re Gordon (1905), 21 T. L. R. 653; In b. Stanley [1916], P. 192; *In b. that the requirements of the Wills Act have been complied with, though the memory of the witnesses may have failed.(h) When the attestation clause is informal, the presumption omnia rite esse acta applies with less force; but even in that case, the leaning of the court is not to allow the testator's intention to be frustrated by lapse of time and failure of the memory of the witnesses; hence, if the circumstances are such as may reasonably result in the conclusion that the Will was duly executed, the court will adopt that conclusion.(i) Even where there is a regular attestation clause, the court cannot pronounce a Will to be duly executed in the face of the direct testimony of the attesting witnesses to the contrary.(j) and attested, when it applies.

Where a Will is signed before the witnesses are called in, it is a sufficient acknowledgment by the testator of his signature if the signature is so placed that the witnesses might see it and they are asked by the testator to sign their names.(k)

Legacy to witness void.

Under the Wills Act, 1837, a legacy or other benefit given to an attesting witness,(l) or to his or her wife or husband,(m) is void, but the Will is in other respects good, and the legatee, &c., is an admissible witness.(n)

Creditor or executor a competent witness.

A creditor may be an attesting witness, so also may an executor: ss. 16 and 17.

Legacy to attesting witness rendered valid by subsequent codicil.

A legacy given by a Will to an attesting witness is rendered valid by a codicil confirming the Will attested by other witnesses.(o) It is not invalidated if the attestation was unnecessary: Re Limond [1915], 2 Ch. 240.
